

TWO different types of men were described on this page last Monday by Muriel Segal. She called them Peter (easy-going, with a charming smile) and David (dynamic, utterly sincere, but not universally popular). Readers were invited to say which of the two they preferred—and by more than two to one they have chosen David. The winning letters are published below.

David Tops the Poll!

staunchness and seriousness being two important ingredients. The dynamic qualities of David and his associations would fully compensate for any chaotic upheavals due to his extreme sensitiveness.

With Peter, life would become unbearable—his agonizing lack of concentration and forethought would be intolerable. Of the two, David would have deeper powers of sympathy and understanding, while Peter's "happy-go-lucky" selfish attitude bodes ill for the achievement of "living happy ever after."—P. S.

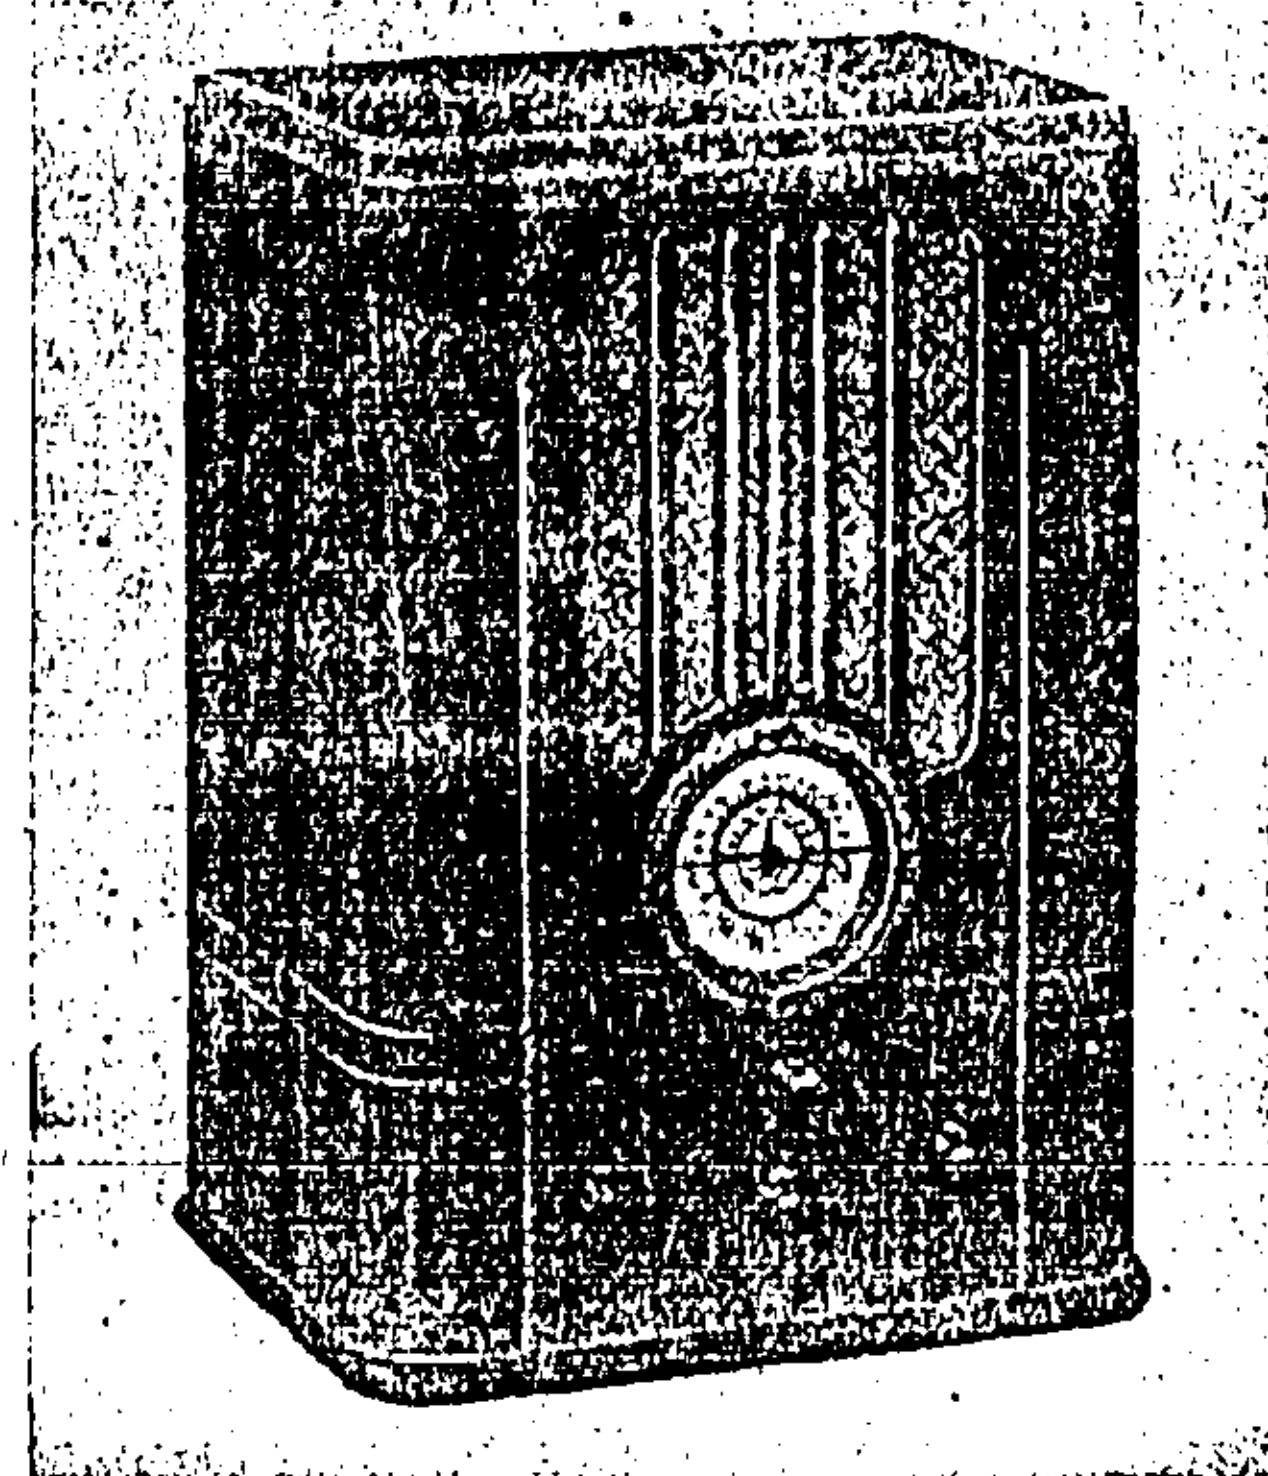

PETER is the stuff of which pioneers are made. He is the type which compels love in spite of feminine reason and intuition. Were life an endless road of sunshine—he is the incomparable companion.

David brings certain gifts—exhilarating. Think of the splendid clash of wits; sharpening of mind on mind; gaiety of intellectual battle. With him life might be no banquet, but it would not be dull. David's outlook can be summarized, "The more I succeed—the better for you, darling"; while Peter's is, "Let's be happy together to-day—to-morrow never comes."

Because I'm of the legion of cautious women who prefer love with security rather than affection without it—David's my choice.—F. H.

OYSTERS GOOSEBERRY FOOL

FOR the corn oysters you want a tin of sweet corn, not on the cob. Put two cups of this into a saucepan, bring to the boil and simmer for a quarter of an hour. Now add a teaspoonful and a half of salt, a little pepper, a couple of tablespoonsful of milk, a well-beaten egg and three quarters of a cup of powdered cream crackers or water biscuits. Melt a little bacon fat in a thick frying-pan, drop spoonfuls of the mixture into it, and brown them on both sides.

SAFE-GUARD YOUR CHILDREN AGAINST SUMMER ILLS.

Throughout the hot season there is always a danger of infants and little children developing diarrhoea, colic, and other stomach and bowel troubles. Neglect, or delay, in such circumstances may be fatal, so the wise mother safeguards her little ones by keeping Baby's Own Tablets ready at hand, to meet emergencies.

The formula of an eminent physician child-specialist, Baby's Own Tablets consist only of ingredients which—whilst simple, pure and entirely safe—are exactly suited for the prompt correction of digestive and intestinal troubles in the very young.

Administered in small doses, and without difficulty because they are pleasant-tasting and children like them, Baby's Own Tablets quickly yet very gently, cleanse the system of offensive matter, thus purifying and sweetening the whole digestive tract. In this way they quickly remove the causes of constipation and also of diarrhoea, allay colic and teething pains, cool feverishness, relieve cramp and colds, correct indigestion, expel worms, quiet the nerves and induce natural, health giving sleep.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS
"For Children of All Ages".

I PREFER the David of the large intense faults and virtues to the Peter of so many peccadilloes.

Peter, having the world for a friend, has no friend, while David, individualistic and sincere, has enemies—the hall-mark of personality.

Economically and emotionally a woman is dependent on her man; and Peter lacks both sympathy and prudence in money matters. His woman will be incidental in his life; David's will be instrumental.

The woman confers life. In David's hands that life will be blessed, for, while the Peters, having raised themselves from primeval slime, contentedly sun themselves on their mud-banks, the Davids, pioneers of racial development, evolve a new heaven and a new earth for generations yet unborn.—R. D.

PETER has, obviously, become engaged in much the same way that he might "drop into the nearest pub for a couple of drinks." No one woman is essential to his happiness, and he makes no pretence even of showing "her" the little preferences which an engaged man usually delights in. What a prelude to marriage!

Now, David needs one woman, and glories in getting her on a pedestal and worshipping her. Without the brilliance of his intellect, life with him might be dull, albeit safe, but with that intellect, allied to his idealistic, quelling spirit, it promises to the right woman—intense and never-ending happiness. Probably only she will ever know the real David and she may count herself blessed above all women.—R. P.

NOT being a superwoman, I choose Peter. Life with him may not make for peace of mind, but, given tolerance, it could be happy.

Peter may not notice my headache or share my anxiety about the rent, but then, neither will he nag about my pronunciation or fly into a rage because I prefer Bing Crosby to Wagner. He sets no impossible standards. Neither should I. What if he is happy-go-lucky, charming, casual? I fell in love with him because he was—Peter.

And when David has worn his wife's nerves to shreds, and ended either in greatness or the gas oven, Peter will still be the same exasperatingly-lovable companion. And companionship does count when it comes to choosing a man.—J. P.

I CHOSE David! Never again! His ambition dominates everything. No one dare speak—there must be quiet for studying. All spare money goes to further his research. The children, the home and I are painfully shabby. It is years since he took me out; he has lost interest in all things except duty. No one is allowed to call.

His temperamental moodiness has developed into sheer, common dominating. My personality, common college-trained myself—has been so subjugated that I am a person whom I do not know now. Live in fear and dread the future. The children are difficult because of my husband's attitude towards me. His

I defy anyone to have foreseen this result. Peter's faults are at least open ones. To a large extent, one would know what to expect. Embittered Wife.

GIVE me a Peter every time! We need gaiety, enjoyment and good companionship in this life and with Peter we get it. He is the ideal companion after a hard day's work; the ideal escort after a trying day in his bright company and inconsequential chatter. And the inconsequential Peter of pre-marriage days generally settles down and becomes, after marriage, quite as thoughtful and attentive as the serious David. So we have it both ways—both "eat our cake and have it."—R. H.

SEVENTEEN years ago I married a "Peter." In the struggle to make ends meet and bring up a family, at 40 I am feeling and looking middle-aged, whereas the years have stood still for him; he simply will not worry about the future.

Mary may well "give Peter the air." I can assure her he will always respect her, spend every penny available, be annoyed at her tears, shoulder every responsibility and unpleasantness she meets in life.—J. R.

WHICH man do I prefer? I laughed uproariously—the first time for years—when I read of Peter and David. There is only one possible answer for me. I know both types; for I courted "Peter" and, tragically enough, married a "David."

I am not complaining. David is nice, loyal and true—but he demands too much. Although brilliantly successful, he is still moody and temperamental, so that I have to be continually "soothing" him.

Peter I dismissed because I thought him too frivolous and unreliable; now I long for the sound of laughter, and the boyish exuberance of Peter would more than compensate me for his failings.—"David's Wife."

DAVID is my choice every time. . . his stormy brilliance tempered with the attractive stolidness of reliability and his varying moods giving spice and variety to life, which Peter's complacency would fail to produce.

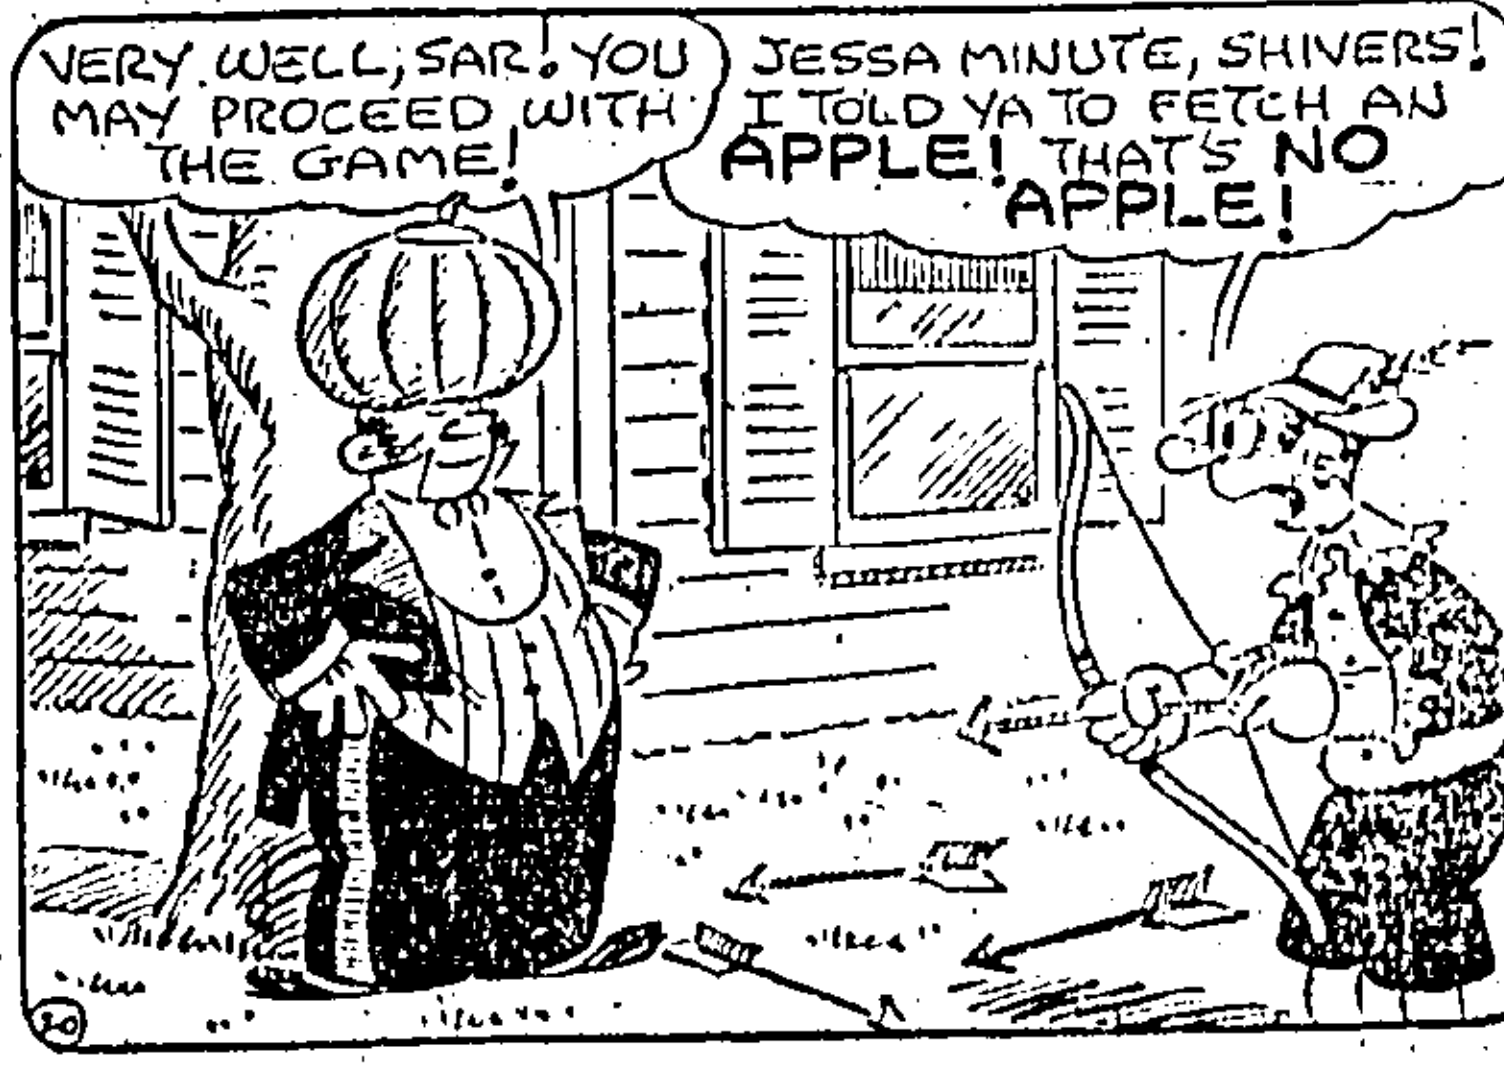

David would mature into a good, if not model, husband and father, his

DEAD CURATE'S SON BANNED FROM COMMUNION

"This Grave Wrong You Have Done"

LEGAL ADVICE SOUGHT ON BISHOP'S LETTER

"IN view of the grave wrong which you have done to your neighbours and the Church you must not present yourself for Holy Communion in any church or place of worship in the diocese of Chichester until further order is given."

The Bishop of Chichester, Dr. G. K. A. Bell, writes these words in a letter to Mr. James P. Bunting, the son of the Sussex curate who, with his wife, was found gassed in his Camelsdale home.

At the inquest the jury censured Mr. Bunting for not helping his parents when they were in financial difficulties. The foreman said that they thought the son "acted in a very callous manner in not coming forward to see his father."

"My conscience is clear," said Mr. Bunting. He said he had taken legal opinion about the letter.

"GREAT SORROW"

The Bishop's letter to Mr. Bunting reads:

"Dear Sir, I write as Bishop of the diocese in which your father, the Rev. W. H. Boyne Bunting, was vicar at the time of his unhappy death, to inform you that I have read with great sorrow the account of the coroner's inquest."

"I have received a personal report also from those who were present at the inquest upon your father and mother and I have noted the rider attached to the verdict at the jury's request and its reference to your callousness as a son—rider which I am sorry to say, it appears to me to be fully justified."

"I desire you to take note that, in view of the grave wrong indicated in the rider which you have done to your neighbours and the Church, you must not present yourself for Holy Communion in any church or place of worship in the diocese of Chichester until further order is given."

"The wrong which you have done is one that calls for much repentance and I will call upon you to consider how gravely you have sinned and how much you must repent."

"Should you have anything to say as to why you should not be thus repelled from the Holy Communion I am ready to hear it. In the meantime, this order stands."

I am,

Yours faithfully,

George Chichester.

"GROSSLY UNFAIR"

Mr. Bunting said: "It is all grossly unfair. I am apparently the biggest sinner ever. Even murderers are not excommunicated nowadays. I am told."

"This is all being done without an attempt being made to find out the full and true state of affairs. They have not even bothered to inquire into them."

"In the past it may be that I was a 'naughty boy,' but there are lots of sons who have been naughty boys. My father's letter explained the true circumstances and I can honestly say that my conscience is clear."

"The Bishop's letter was terribly cruel and it contains no sympathy whatsoever. I understand my 'excommunication' is the first, apart from the Roman Catholic Church, for about 100 years."

MAKING GOOD

"I am not going to quibble about the money I received. I had between £3,000 and £4,000 from them, but my father, in the letter, plainly stated that he did not attach any blame to me because I had pulled up in recent months and was now setting out on a career upon which I was making good and had started to help them."

"I had given them about £600 in the last few months."

"I would have thought that in a letter so personal as the one I received that the envelope would at least have been addressed 'Confidential' and the letter itself would have been written in character, having been typewritten."

Mr. Bunting said that he had no intention of challenging the right of the Bishop.

BISHOP'S COMMENT

"I wrote a letter to the Bishop this morning in reply to his, setting out my explanation, but I have now decided not to send it," he added.

"I feel that no good will ever come from writing to him."

Dr. Bell, asked to comment on Mr. Bunting's statement, said:

"Mr. Bunting has no business to give the letter to the Press. The recipient of a letter cannot publish it without the consent of the writer."

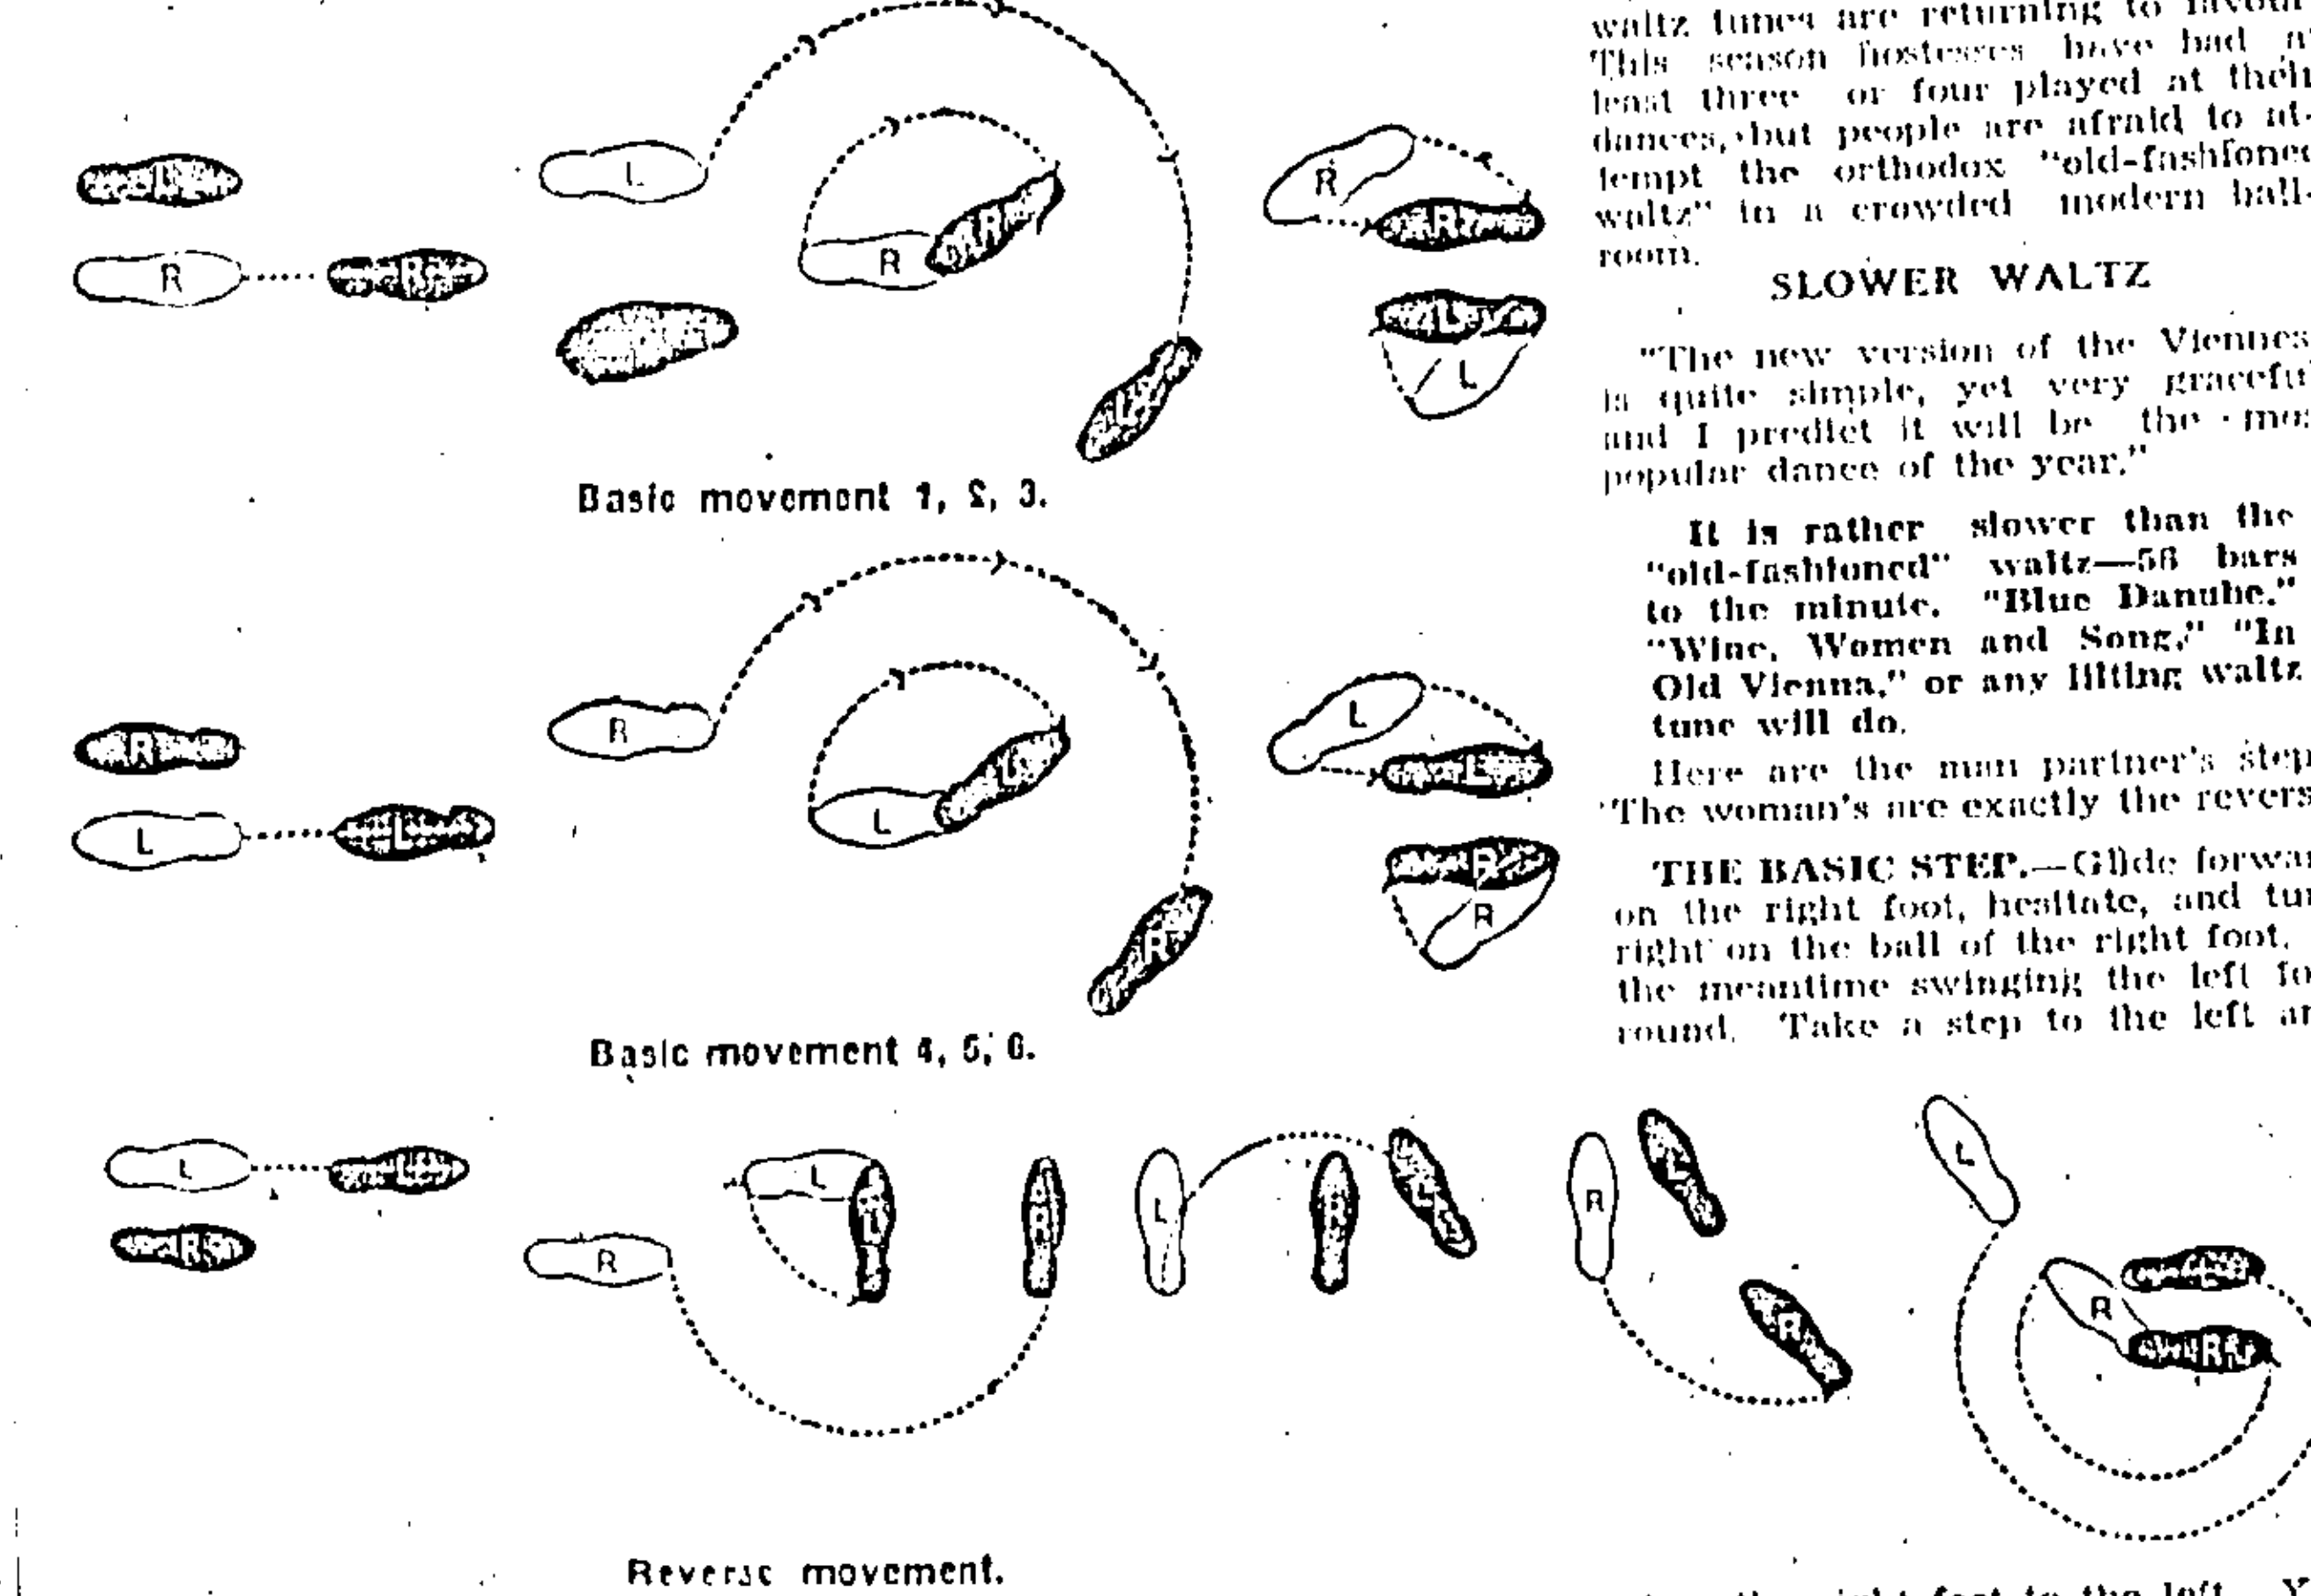

He declined to comment further, beyond saying that the letter spoke for itself.

OLD STYLE WALTZ UP TO DATE

This is a pre-view for "Telegraph" readers of a dance that professionals from all over the British Isles are teaching in London this month.

By A Special Correspondent

GRACE is returning to the ballroom. The dance that shocked our grandmothers ("actually held in a man's arms, my dear") is returning in a new guise.

The Imperial Society of Teachers of Dance has determined to launch a dance which will combine

All the grace and safety of Old Vienna with the technique and smoothness of modern "pocket-handkerchief" ballroom dancing.

It is called the "New Viennese Waltz." Phyllis Haylor and Charles Serimshaw, famous professional dancers of the Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, demonstrated it to me recently.

Miss Haylor said: "The old waltz tunes are returning to favour. This season hostesses have had at least three or four played at their dances, that people are afraid to attempt the orthodox 'old-fashioned waltz' in a crowded modern ballroom."

SLOWER WALTZ

"The new version of the Viennese is quite simple, yet very graceful, and I predict it will be the most popular dance of the year."

It is rather slower than the "old-fashioned" waltz—56 bars to the minute. "Blue Danube," "Wine, Women and Song," "In Old Vienna," or any lilting waltz tune will do.

THE "SCISSORS"

This is repeated several times. Through the movement the man does not move his feet. He stands with crossed feet, swaying slightly to his partner's movements.

Gaol And Fine For Not Flying Church Flag

FATHER Alois Eckert, a priest, was sentenced at Frankfurt to three months' imprisonment and a fine of £80 for not flying the Swastika flag on his church when the 12th anniversary of Herr Hitler's unsuccessful Munich putsch was celebrated.

indignantly: "But we are at all to blame?"

Sir Archibald, knowing, of course, that it was not only a question of export, but also of import restrictions, replied at once:

"Certainly! Of course this Government is to blame—because of the Ottawa agreements, because of import duties imposed under these agreements and the quota restrictions placed on Japanese goods."

Such restrictions made it more difficult for Germany and other countries to sell their goods and therefore made it more difficult for them to buy the raw materials they wanted. (Hear, hear.)

Liberals attached the utmost importance to the reversion of the principle of the open door in the interests of the Colonies, the restoration of world trade, and the preservation of world peace.

He claimed that the "narrow economic nationalism" of other countries was to blame. The whole difficulty of our colonies was to find markets for their produce because other countries imposed quotas, tariffs and other restrictions on every thing we wished to sell them.

Tin, he said, was the only colonial product subject to any export restriction. With that single exception Germany, or any other country, could buy as freely as we could.

Sir Archibald Bledaie, the Liberal leader, protested at once against the Minister's reference to the "old Cobdenite group" and pointed out that Mr. Morgan Jones, earlier in the debate, had stressed, on behalf of Labour, the importance of the open door in the interests of peace.

RESTRICTIONS BY OTHER COUNTRIES

Mr. Ormsby Gore interrupted to claim that it was not British colonies but those of other countries which had imposed restrictions on exports.

Sir Archibald agreed that other countries must share the blame with us, but this did not satisfy the Minister. He jumped up again to ask

COMMONS DEBATE OTTAWA

COLONIES AND THE "OPEN DOOR"

By A Parliamentary Correspondent

DO the Ottawa agreements—one of the first results of the Protectionist policy of the Government—stand in the way of a fair distribution of raw materials and the prospects of world peace?

This question was raised by Liberals in the House of Commons recently and drew an indignant denial from Mr. Ormsby Gore (Colonial Secretary).

After Mr. J. A. de Rothschild (Lib., Isle of Ely) had stressed the importance of the open door, and Mr. D. O. Evans (Lib., Cardigan) had recalled that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain when Colonial Secretary had insisted that our colonies offered "the same open field to foreigners as to our own subjects and on the same terms,"

Mr. Ormsby Gore surprised the House by asserting that the question of the open door in the Empire was raised only by "the old Cobdenite group."

NO CHECK ON RAW MATERIALS

He was amazed, he protested, at the suggestion that there was anything in our colonial policy which interfered with the free supply of raw materials to Germany or any other foreign country.

He claimed that the "narrow economic nationalism" of other countries was to blame. The whole difficulty of our colonies was to find markets for their produce because other countries imposed quotas, tariffs and other restrictions on every thing we wished to sell them.

Tin, he said, was the only colonial product subject to any export restriction. With that single exception Germany, or any other country, could buy as freely as we could.

The King's First Parliament: November

King Edward will open his first Parliament in state in November.

According to present plans, it is intended to adjourn Parliament on July 31, and resume on October 27.

The new session will be opened some time in November. Because the King is a bachelor, the settling of the House of Lords—where the Royal opening takes place—has been altered. There is only one throne on the gilded and crimson dais, instead of two, and the ornate chair on which the Prince of Wales used to sit has been taken away.

The King will read a speech from the Throne outlining the Government's programme for the new session.

Before he does so, as this will be his first appearance before "the Lords and faithful Commons, in Parliament assembled," he will take an oath of loyalty and determination to carry out the duties of his office.

And as it gives its beautiful finish 'MANSION' leaves a fresh, clean, germ-free surface that means a brighter and healthier home.

name. All our life, as the Arabs say, are gazelles.

Freud has immensely helped the make-believers to dodge reality by rechristening it. And manners are now merely inferiority complex. Juvenile depravity is mother fixation. Crime is misquid self-expression, or else the reaction of repressions.

A lady deputy prison governor, exulting in the fact that she is now running evening dancing classes for the women prisoners, assures us that prison is no longer "regarded" as a jail, but as "a hospital."

Examples of this curious modern tendency to call a shovel an agricultural implement might be extended to weary lengths. But the tendency is one that calls for serious reflection by thoughtful people. Never before in human history has there been a more subtle meaning imparted to Edmund Burke's rhetorical exclamation, "What shadows we are and what shadows we pursue!"

CINEMA NOTES

"Come equipped with honesty and a deep humanity if you would succeed in film to-day," Phyllis Loughton, coach and director of Paramount's dramatic school, advises girls. Miss Loughton explains that Hollywood gets too few girls with inherent honesty of purpose, and that those who possess sincerity and character. "Such a girl is Katharine De Mille." It is a tribute to Katharine's versatility and character, that she could be entrusted with two such diverse roles as Alice, Queen of France, in "The Crusades," and Molly Dunn, the brave Western girl, in "Drift Fence," which Paramount produced from Zane Grey's story of that name, and which is now at the Alhambra Theatre.

"G Men." First National's sensational picture written about the heroic deed of the secret service men in the United States Government Department of Justice, is today at the Star Theatre. The picture is one of the most thrilling and dramatic pictures ever presented, based on sensational newspaper headlines which have covered the front pages of all the dailies of the country. While the picture presents no names of the public enemies nor emphasizes any time or place of the actual battles, few will miss the actual extraction of the occurrences that take place. The production is enacted by all star cast headed by James Cagney as the leading "G Man," the red-headed star having turned from crook roles to government agent. Margaret Lindsay has the leading feminine role opposite him. There is an unusual number of scenes of beautiful girls dance, with Ann Dvorak leading the chorus, and singing a song specially written for her by Fats and Kahal. William Keighley directed.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Moonlight Murder" now playing at the King's Theatre. The background is a gain performance of "H. Suspicion falls on opera stars and others as Chester Morris, in the role of the detective, copes with the mystery, aided by his sweetheart as played by Madge Evans. world Swami, a murder in a dark chamber, these are elements of thrill interspersed with gorgeous opera which is an integral part of the drama itself. Edwin L. Marin, famous for his Phila Vance pictures, directed the new mystery play with deft skill. H. H. Warner plays the suspected opera conductor, Leo Carrillo is comical and musical as D'Acosta, the tenor, Robert McWade injects comedy as the captain of detectives, and J. Carroll Nash is mysterious as the demented man. Duncan Renaldo and Benita Hume are paired as fiery Spanish dancers, and Katharine Alexander is statuesque as the prima donna. Grant Mitchell plays the doctor who aids with his science. Frank McHugh the opera star's comical servant, and Pedro de Cordoba the Swami. The story is by Albert Cohen and Robert T. Shannon, with screen play by Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf. It was produced by Lucien Hubbard and Ned Marin.

"St. Louis Kid" An exceptionally large and talented cast was selected to play in support of James Cagney in his latest starring vehicle for Warner Brothers "The St. Louis Kid," which comes to the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday. Jimmy himself is said to have won new laurels in this picture which has been hailed as his most hilarious and most exciting up to date. Patricia Ellis has the leading feminine role opposite Jimmy. Allen Jenkins, Robert Cavanaugh, Spencer Charters, Dorothy Dore and Arthur Aylesworth form an excellent comedy team for the hilarious situations in the picture. All are among Hollywood's most famous comedians. Other well known players include Robert Barral, Adolphe Richard, Charles Wilson, William Davidson, Harry Woods, Gertrude Short and Eddie Shubert. The picture, based on a story by Frederick Hazlett Breenan, combines riotous comedy with melodramatic thrills and a novel romance.

IMPORTANT TO LIVER SUFFERERS

By Dr. Quignon of the Faculty of Medicine, Paris

Just now I am kept very busy by an epidemic of "liver" disorders—a great many people feeling "out of sorts," bilious, depressed and unable to enjoy their food. Undoubtedly the best remedy for an upset liver is provided by certain famous Continental Mineral Springs, but science has now made it possible for all liver sufferers to enjoy in their homes, all the benefits of Continental Spa treatment, at little cost. By reproducing in crystalline form the essential principles of seven world renowned Spas, including those at Vichy, Carlsbad, Aix-les-Bains and Marienbad, 'Aikia Saltrates' provides what is probably the finest liver tonic and corrective known. It is obtainable from all high class Dispensaries and Stores.

To men and women who are feeling liverish and "out of sorts," and to those who are suffering from Rheumatism, Lumbago, Kidney trouble and High Blood Pressure I can recommend 'Aikia Saltrates' with confidence and I advise them to start the treatment without delay.

KING ENJOYS HOLIDAY

IN SEARCH OF QUIETUDE

Belgrade, Aug. 11. After spending the night anchored off one of the uninhabited rocky islets to the south of Sebeniko, the yacht 'Nahlin,' with H. M. King Edward VIII on board, sailed early this morning en route to Dubrovnik. Later, the yacht anchored in the beautiful bay of Plochivist, where the King spent a considerable time fishing. Owing to His Majesty's desire for privacy and quietude, no fixed programme for the cruise has been arranged.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S NEW CRITICS

As one looks over the international situation to-day, it would seem that the dictators are having all the diplomatic triumphs. Against their recent successes, the main pillars of the League of Nations have little to show except a melancholy record of misfortune, mistakes and dissensions. It is not surprising, therefore, that critics of the British Government—a Government which tried might and main to support the rights of the victims of aggression—should now come forward and reproach it for a policy which, even after the decision to remove sanctions was made, is said likely to antagonise Italy. It is suggested by these people that British policy has been the means of throwing Germany and Italy into each other's arms, and has made it more difficult for Italy to co-operate within the framework of the League in efforts to strengthen European security. These critics present the usual spectacle of wisdom after the event. They have apparently ceased to view the Ethiopian affair from the point of view of its rights and wrongs, and its connective responsibilities, and would have Britain bow down ineffectually before the Duce and the accomplished facts, even to the point of recognising the annexation of Ethiopia. They have, in fact, become worshippers of success as success, now matter how it is attained. Might seems to them to be the only right. And yet some of these self-same critics were, not long since, loud in protesting that Ethiopia must be saved from the aggressor at all costs. As we look back on all that has occurred during the past six months, marked by situations without military or diplomatic precedent, it is difficult to escape the conviction that the British Government would have been charged in some quarters with bungling and indecision, or indiscretion, whatever line it took. So far as the perpetuation of sanctions is concerned, it is clear that Britain reluctantly fell in with the viewpoint of other Powers, for the very simple reason that none were prepared to support her in the matter. But it surely cannot now be argued that because of that circumstance Britain should shake hands with the aggressor as if nothing whatever had happened. To worship success and condone actions for which there never was any real justification may appeal to a minority, but that is not, and never has been, the British way.

1. Is your child happy? 2. What is he going to be?

YOUR child's answers to the twenty questions set (this page, Monday) will provide clues to solve these two problems—

1. How happy is he (or she)?
2. What career shall I consider for him?

How Happy Is He?

The child who is unhappy for some reason—

Wants to be stronger, cleverer, better-looking, more popular;
If a girl, often would prefer to be a boy.

Thinks that one has the best fun in life after twenty-five years of age.
Wants to be grown-up.
Feels that grown-ups don't really understand children.

TO be more specific, the child may be unhappy because of: 1. A feeling that he is inferior in some respect; 2. Some difficulty in his relationship with his parents, his brothers and sisters, his teachers, his friends.

He may feel insecure and inferior because he is a weakling physically or has been led to consider himself so, in which case he will admit he is weak, does not like rough games, wants to be grown up and strong like Peter (the strong boy of the school), fancies himself in the first question as a boxer, a policeman, or some one whom he identifies with power.

The girl who feels inferior because of her appearance wants to be better looking, more popular like Mary, the prettiest girl in the school, fancies herself as a movie star, a princess, something glamorous.

The child who is backward—whether through illness, faulty teaching or mental dulness—wants to be brighter in his studies, to go to a different school or no school, wants to be grown up; fancies himself as a detective, a doctor, an inventor or any one whom he identifies with knowledge and its prestige.

The shy child—who feels socially inferior—admits to few friends and wants hundreds; he wants to be grown up and to be popular; he is a day-dreamer.

IN question 1 (Which you like to be?), the child who feels inferior and unhappy often reveals the qualities he lacks by the heroes he chooses: the weakling wants to be a prize-

NOTES OF THE DAY

At the Olympic Games, sport is a genuinely serious thing. But the extent to which the Peruvian people have been aroused by the decision at Berlin to force them to play again a match they won from Austria is regrettable. Not that we cannot understand the bitterness of Peruvians, who believe they were the victims of unfair decisions both during and after the match; but we deprecate such a demonstration as that reported from Lima, where mobs smashed the windows of the German Consulate, tore down the Olympic flag from a German factory and, at Callao, refused to work German vessels. These things rather disturb the contention that the Olympic Games are always beneficial to international relations.

The soccer match replay was ordered at Berlin because Peruvian supporters rushed on the field of play and attacked the Austrian players as a result of allegedly unjust decisions by the referee and unfair tactics by the Austrian footballers. Though Peru eventually won the match, it was the decision of the Olympic Committee that it should be played again. Peru has withdrawn from the Games, and is attempting to draw with it the

WHAT is worth while keeping in mind about the child of the age (eight to fifteen) for which this questionnaire is intended is that:—

1. He needs to belong to a group of companions of his own age;
2. School offers little terror for him if he feels that his teacher is fair to him;
3. He is at the age when children are most ready to co-operate with the work in the home and to learn to help themselves.

Consider His Career

It is too early to choose a career. But it is just the right time to note his bent and to allow his studies to follow that bent: be it science, languages, handicrafts, etc.

IN choosing a career, you must consider the child's (1) capacities, (2) interests, (3) opportunities.

His interests and his aims will suggest which of the three kinds of intelligence predominate: (a) abstract, (b) concrete, (c) social.

Intelligence (which enables him to deal with ideas), (b) mechanical intelligence (which enables him to deal with things), and (c) social intelligence (which enables him to get on with people).

The choice of a career will be indicated by: 1. The quality of his abstract intelligence (whether superior, good, average, etc.); 2. Whether (b) or (c) predominates.

IF he is interested in people and successful with them and his abstract intelligence is superior, he will make a teacher, preacher, politician, physician, lawyer, publicist, expert, etc. With good intelligence, a salesman; receptionist, nurse, reporter, shop-assistant, waitress, bus-conductor, etc.

If he is mechanically minded and of superior abstract intelligence, he will make an engineer, inventor, chemist, scientist, agriculturist, etc. With good intelligence, a fitter, mechanic, craftsman, chauffeur, domestic servant, etc.

With superior intelligence that is predominantly abstract, he will make an architect, accountant, editor, a director of scientific research. With good intelligence, a secretary, clerk, typist, etc.

Careers—such as music, sports master, etc.—should, naturally, only be encouraged if the child has definitely from an early age a very special gift.

World Of Make-Believe

ELDERLY persons must be sedulously on their guard against two heavy afflictions. One is dyspepsia, the other omniscience.

It is possible to suffer from both these troublesome complaints without fully realising it, but far easier in the case of the latter than the former. If your digestion is all wrong, you are almost bound to know about it. But it is fully easy to elude consciousness of the fact that you are usurping a secular papal infallibility.

The conviction deepens in my mind that the peculiar fatality of the present epoch, at home and abroad, but especially in this country, is make-believe. Perhaps it is one unfortunate result of a surfeit of cinema shadow shows.

People of all kinds and degrees seem disposed at all costs to dodge realities and to grasp with fevered avidity at mere illusions. If this is a true diagnosis, as I greatly fear it is, it is a most dangerous condition of mind for any people to be in.

This is a world of very grim reality, and sooner or later the illusionists must have a rude awakening. It may be a long time, but I ground I base this accusation of unreality in our national outlook. The answer is, I think, comprehensive enough. To start with the most obvious example of all, one need go no further than the popular obsession for film performances.

No other country in the world has the same intense devotion to cinema as our people have. Recently an American film magazine publicly thanked his directorial stars that the British were "film mad."

I am far from condemning the habit of cinema-going. No doubt it is far better our people should spend their spare time and money, if they have any, looking even at the most sloppy kind of American films than just sinking themselves in some corner-house taproom.

Yet I think it might be better to give improved reality to the lives and surroundings of such people than to encourage them to continue dwelling in a celluloid Nirvana.

Let me give one example. Not far from my home, in a dreary barrack in a dreadful slum, is a man who earns less than £4 a week as a motor driver. He has a wife and three small children. But he refuses to accept cinema oblivion.

"What Shadows We Pursue"

By AN OLD STAGER

Somehow he has scraped together enough money to buy, with the help of some society, a small plot of land in a pleasant semi-rural suburb. There he is slowly but surely building himself a new home. After his day's work is done, he puts in what time he can on the job. At week-ends he takes his family out there to picnic in a discarded bus that he bought for an old song.

Whilst his wife cooks the meals, the youngsters help father to build their new home. In my view that sort of reality is infinitely better, both for that family and the community, than any thrills of film illusion.

Vain Pretences

Though a prodigious one, the film illusion is not the only symptom. The factory girl's lipstick, dyed fingertips, high heels, and imitation silk gown are all illusions. She is merely aping the ugliness of a class of society to which she does not belong, in which she would be bored stiff, and which is far less jocund, if only she realised the fact, than her own might be were all its opportunities fully seized.

Equally illusive are the really fashionable dame's cosmetics, face-liftings, and other vain pretences. She is trying, at great expense and travail, to look what she is not. She would probably appear far more attractive as what she actually is, and incidentally have a much better time. And having a good time, which frequently is the sole ambition of such people, is itself a soul-destroying illusion. It is one of the great secrets of life that people intent on a good time always have a bad one, whereas those engaged in some useful occupation generally have a good time without effort.

These are minor evidences of the passion for sheer delusion. We can discover plenty of major ones. Halle Selassie could tell us that the League of Nations is an elaborate illusion.

This is because the righteous devotion of European statesmen to the cause of international peace and the sanctity of pledges lacked the grim realism of Mussolini's ambition to found a new Roman Empire. Whilst the rest of Europe played a game of let's pretend, his legions were jurgening and gassing primitive tribes into subjection.

"Letting On"

Mark Twain, like all great humorists a keen student of human nature, invented the artifice of "letting on." When Tom Sawyer found anything in his romantic plans beyond achievement, he "let on" that the thing had been done, as arranged instead of doing it. One may perhaps conjecture that Geneva has read its "Tom Sawyer" to some purpose.

A monumental object lesson in "letting on" was America's prohibition law. At one blow Americans salved their conscience and slaked their thirst. But that illusion was less dangerous than our post-war peace illusion.

How many citizens could recite all the peace pacts, treaties, and pledges signed and sealed by all the Great Powers since the war? I confess I could not name one half. Yet we all knew, in our hearts, that these were all fudge. The nations were just "letting on."

The very redundancy and overlapping of these peace pacts betrayed how little real faith anybody had in them. We alone took the make-believe with apparent sincerity and disarmed to such a pitch that, when stark reality put its foot right through all the benevolent protocols, we found ourselves impotent to stand up to the reality.

Some of us carried self-deception so far that we wanted to make war without weapons. John Bull has been in Wonderland. It is much the same with other projects. We decide to raise the school age, and insert a proviso that nullifies the decision. We "let on" we are doing something we are really not doing at all. What else but this narcotic cult of illusion is behind the renaming of our workhouses and asylums? We call them something else and "let on" they no longer exist.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH LEARNS TO BE A QUEEN

The King, Queen Mary, and Cabinet Plan Her Education

TO HAVE PRIVATE TUTORSLITTLE TOMBOY NOW STUDIOUS

PRINCESS ELIZABETH, third lady in the land, now 10 years old, is to be educated privately—to prepare her for the day when she may be Queen.

Originally, the Duchess of York had expressed a wish that her elder daughter should go to a girls' school and enjoy the normal companionship of girls of her own age.

But after a discussion between King Edward, Queen Mary, the Duke of York and members of the Cabinet it has been decided to substitute a more formal plan of education.

British Princesses have always received private education, and the little Princess, it was felt, might be embarrassed by her rank if she mixed with other children at school.

So, like Queen Victoria, Princess Elizabeth is to be entrusted to tutors and a governess.

Tutors for special subjects are shortly to be engaged.

ONCE A TOMBOY

The Royal Princesses have both made excellent progress with their governess, Miss Marion Crawford, a former pupil of the High School of Dumfries. She will continue to instruct Princess Elizabeth in history and English literature.

Princess Elizabeth will still entertain her little friends regularly in the miniature house presented to her by the people of Wales.

As a small child, Princess Elizabeth was a tomboy, and cared more for her toys than her lessons. She is now definitely studious.

Princess Elizabeth thinks about her lessons long after she has looked the study books in her desk. Often she discusses with Queen Mary and King Edward various phases of history which have intrigued her.

She keeps a scrapbook of other Royal children in Europe with notes as to the relationship these children bear to her.

History is her favourite subject, with geography second, then French, and lastly arithmetic, a subject which brought an expression of impatience to her face when she was younger.

Scottish poems fascinate her. She can also sing and recite in French. From her mother she inherits musical ability, and can play simple tunes on her miniature piano. Her singing voice is pure and sweet.

She reads a lot, her best-loved book being Black Beauty.

TALKS IN FRENCH

By the edgewise of her grandmother, Queen Mary, she is told of the towns and castles famed in English history, and is also taken to see them in their proper background. Recently she visited Hampton Court to view the portraits of the Tudor Kings and Queens.

At private family gatherings her parents encourage her to lead an all-French conversation.

Dexterity in sport and recreation comes naturally to Princess Elizabeth. She has just learned to swim. It is her boast that she can do six strokes without having to touch the bottom.

She cultivates her own garden at Royal Lodge.

"Why Not Let Japan Run China?"

Peiping, Aug. 5. "Why not let the Japanese come in and run the country? They certainly seem to do an efficient job of it in Japan, and China appears to be an awful mess."

This represents the half-expressed feeling of a great many tourists who come through neat, orderly Japan before arriving in China. It even finds some utterance among foreigners living in the treaty ports of China.

For one answer, at least, intelligent Chinese point to the new educational programme recently announced for Manchukuo. The report was carried by an official Japanese agency and presumably is authentic. There are four points:

1. The Japanese language shall be the principal course of study in all schools.

2. No schools above middle school grade (roughly the American high school grade) shall be established. Those who desire higher education must go to Japan for study.

3. All anti-Manchukuo and anti-Japanese schools shall be promptly closed.

4. No graduate of a Chinese school, even in Manchukuo, will be appointed to any official post in Manchukuo.

Travellers arriving from Manchukuo add to this that even though middle schools are tolerated, most of them are vocational, with the overwhelming emphasis on agriculture. Strict military regimentation of the students helps make it evident that the Japanese are bent on moulding the population of Manchukuo into a semi-literate, submissive, entirely agricultural people.—United Press.

Tangshan Murders

OLD CHINESE CUSTOM FAILS TO WORK

Peiping, Aug. 1.

Old and new customs, love, jealousy and hatred combined and resulted in two murders and a suicide in Tangshan, near here.

Tien Hsien-tsai, a graduate of a Peiping university, 28 years old, had married an old-fashioned country girl years ago before he went to school.

Gradually growing to despise her, he recently married as "second wife" a young "modern girl," Liu Shun-ying. On July 15 he took the new wife to live in his home at Tangshan.

DRUNKEN SAILOR SMASHES GLASS OF CHOLERA GERMS

Whole Of City May Be Inoculated

Alexandria, July 25. A drunken sailor from a British steamer broke into the Bacteriological Laboratory of the Harbour Administration here last night and smashed a glass containing full of cholera bacilli.

Although officials of the Ministry for Public Health declare that cholera germs raised in this way soon perish in the open air, the Government authorities have ordered extensive precautions to be taken against an outbreak of an epidemic.

Over 300 persons who had come into contact with the sailor were immediately given protective injections. Among these persons were laboratory workers, Egyptian and British police officials and part of the crew of the cruiser London.

If no cholera cases develop by Thursday the danger can be regarded as satisfactorily disposed of. If, however, symptoms of the disease occur then the whole population of Alexandria will have to be inoculated.

She Lives In World Full Of Mystery

FIVE years ago Miss Mary Lawson, concert artist, of Westbourne Terrace, London, W.1, had an electric shock that drove her into a nerve hospital for ten months.

As a result she claims to have been endowed with a dual existence—one life in the world as we know it, another life in a world of dreams.

Miss Lawson told the Press: "I have two lives, each in a separate world. I'm so afraid people will think me queer, yet it is so real. Dream people come to me each night and they sing to me. I call them my Angel Voices."

She is known to her friends as a "dream composer." She remembers the songs of her Angel Voices as if she sings them in a mystic sort of way after the dream trances pass.

DREAM FRIENDS
Miss Lawson added: "Each night I go to sleep in the usual way. Then, about 3.30 a.m.—always when I sense the dawn coming—I suddenly find myself in another world."

"I can see myself asleep in my bed, yet I walk about the room and talk to my dream friends and listen to their music."

"Always I have the curious sense of breathing very deeply. Then my dream friends, always the same ones, joke and laugh with me and play their songs on the piano. In the morning I can hear their music buzzing in my ears."

NORMANDIE CAPTAIN TO RETIRE

GIVING UP SEA FOR AIR

New York, Aug. 1.

Capt. Rene Pagnet, Commander of the French Line and commander of the Normandie, is to retire from the sea. He has reached the age limit of 55.

Capt. Pagnet has been at sea in sail and steam for 39 years. He was appointed captain of the Normandie when she was launched, and commanded her on her record-breaking maiden voyage. He is now joining Air France in an executive capacity.

The Breakfast Way to Beauty

S LIM BY DIET AND EXERCISE—NOT BY STARVING.

This was the advice given recently by a prominent Harley-street doctor, when discussing an M.P.'s statement in the House of Commons that many women suffer from tuberculosis and other serious illnesses because they starved to slim.

"Women who starve because fashion demands that they must be slim," he said, "are running a grave health risk."

Here are seven beauty breakfasts—one for each day of the week—chosen for their well-balanced food values by the doctor.

They are part of the special beauty series, which has been running in the Sunday Chronicle for the past two weeks.

The object of this series, which has attracted widespread interest, is to give women readers the benefit of a rational beauty treatment devised with the aid of famous experts and based on a system of ordered living.

In previous articles perfect methods of exercise and make-up have been described.

Here are the seven beauty breakfasts:

1. Poached egg on buttered toast.
2. Tea or coffee.
3. Baked apple. Bacon and tomato. Toast, butter and honey or preserve or marmalade. Tea or coffee.
4. Steamed fish. Stewed fruit. Toast, butter and honey or marmalade. Tea or coffee.
5. Grape fruit. Boiled egg. Toast, butter, honey. Tea or coffee.
6. Buttered eggs. Toast, butter, marmalade. Raw raisins or figs. Tea or coffee.
7. Orange juice. Grilled herring. Toast, butter, tea, honey, marmalade. Tea or coffee.

Water plays an important part in every diet and should be taken before or after a meal.

$2,000,000 FILM DEAL

Merger Of British And U.S. Interests

EXCHANGE OF STARS

One of the biggest and most far-reaching deals in the history of the British film industry has been practically concluded in America.

Unless there is last-minute hitch Mr. Isidore Ostrer is to sell 25 per cent. of the shares in the Metropolitan and Bradford Trust, which controls the Gaumont-British Corporation, to Nicholas Schenck, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for $2,000,000.

The new deal, which is being put through by Joseph M. Schenck, head of Twentieth Century-Fox, on behalf of his brother Nicholas, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will bring the biggest American producing organisation into the combine and suggests a gigantic new alliance of forces without parallel in the industry.

MORE BRITISH FILMS IN U.S.
The direct results of the deal, when carried out, will be:

A greater exchange of British and American stars, writers and directors, to make the product of all three companies equally acceptable in all countries.

The opening of the Gaumont-British chain of 450 theatres to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures and the more extensive booking of Gaumont-British productions in America.

The adoption of a more uniform policy in renting and other sides of the industry—in other words, something like rationalisation.

Though a majority of the shares in the Metropolitan and Bradford Trust are now held in America, it is important to note that control will still be British. When the Bromhead brothers sold out to the Ostrer brothers they made it a condition that provision for permanent British control should be embodied in the articles of association. This still holds good.

The history of the Gaumont-British Corporation covers the whole history of films. The company began with Col. Bromhead and an office boy in one room off Charing Cross-road, and has grown until its assets are worth £16,000,000.

The corporation has whole or part ownership of the Gaumont and Galamborough studios, the largest chain of cinemas in the country, music-halls, companies for manufacturing equipment and talkie apparatus, the Baird Television Company, and a number of hotels.

Mr. Isidore Ostrer and Mr. Nicholas Schenck are to meet to settle outstanding details.

HANKOW RAILWAY

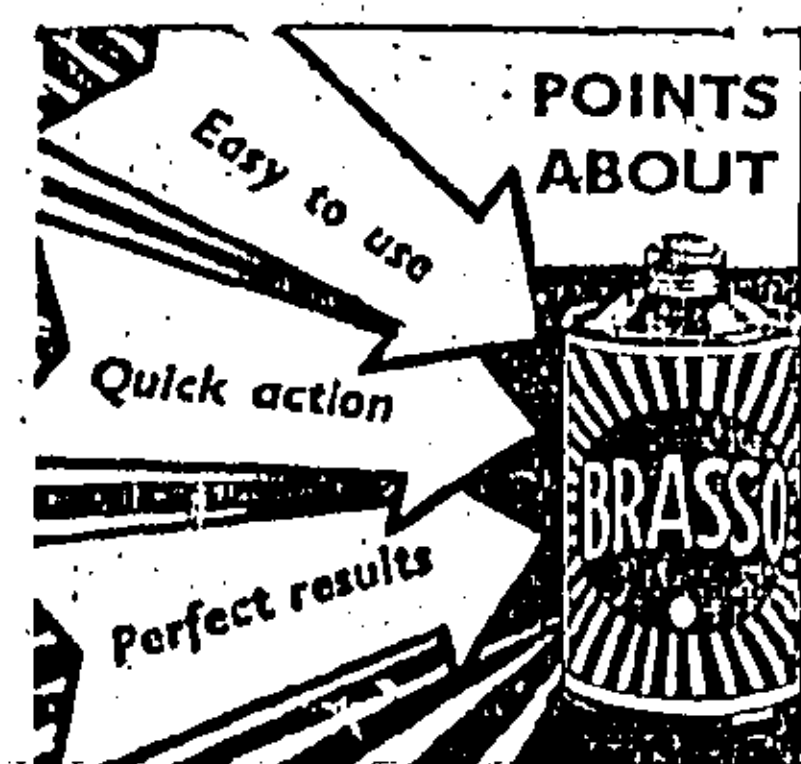

NEW LINE WILL BE OPEN ON OCTOBER 10

Hankow, Aug. 11.

Mr. Ling Hung-fun, the new General Manager of the Canton-Hankow Railway, arrived here from Canton yesterday after taking over the administration of the southern section of the line.

In an interview with pressmen, Mr. Ling said that all arrangements for the formal opening of the Canton-Hankow Railway are being made and it is hoped that the opening ceremony may take place on October 10.

It was stated that, prior to the re-employment of General Chan Chai-tong, his troops had damaged many parts of the railway on the Hunan-Kwangtung border. The worst damage was to the big bridge at Lokartu which was at one time reported to have been damaged beyond repair. Other bridges between Lockchang to Shikwan were also reported damaged, but have been quickly restored. Wah Kiu Yat Po.

HONGKONG-SHANGHAI TENNIS INTERPORT LIKELY

Northerners Invited To Come Here For Double Tenth

ALTERNATIVELY ARMISTICE DAY

RANKING LIST TO BE ISSUED SHORTLY

(By "Veritas")

HONGKONG Lawn Tennis Association last evening decided to extend an invitation to the Shanghai L.T.A. to send men's and ladies' teams to Hongkong for an Interport contest on or about October 10. This decision was reached when the Executive Committee met under the chairmanship of Mr. Ng Sze-kwong.

The Shanghai players are invited to come down here for the Double Tenth, but if this is not suitable, to arrive here in time for Armistice Day. It is suggested that the Interport takes the usual form, namely three singles and two doubles in both contests.

Pending Shanghai's reply, a meeting of the Interport Selection Committee will be held to issue a ranking list for 1935-36, and from such a list will be drawn Hongkong's team to play Shanghai.

Immediately Shanghai's reply is received, and if it is to accept Hongkong's invitation, the selection committee will meet to choose the Colony's teams, after which a series of practice matches will probably be arranged.

Shanghai last sent a tennis team to Hongkong in 1932. It was a men's combination, Shanghai being unable to send a ladies' team. The side was captained by John L. Wade, who has since retired from tennis of this nature, and Hongkong were beaten 3-2.

This contest also marked the debut in Interport tennis of Tsui Wai-pui, who beat Wade in three sets.

Hongkong was represented by S. A. Rumjahn, H. D. Rumjahn, E. C. Fincher, Tsui Wai-pui, M. K. Lo and M. W. Lo. Shanghai's players were Gordon Lum, Guy Cheng, J. L. Wade and Raoul Carnavaro, the latter having since turned professional.

When Hongkong sent two teams to Shanghai last year, they were decisively beaten, the men losing all five matches and the ladies failing by three matches to two.

Colony's teams that time were:—Men: Lee Wai-tong, Tsui Wai-pui, Tsui Yun-pui, Ho Ka-lau and W. C. Hung. Ladies: Mrs. Nora Wilson, Miss R. Hancock, Miss M. Griffiths and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu.

RAIN COSTS CRICKET THOUSANDS OF POUNDS

ALL COUNTY CLUBS REPORT VERY HEAVY LOSSES

LAST MONTH'S COMPLETE WASH-OUT

COUNTY cricket is facing a financial crisis owing to the abnormal weather this summer.

In four matches last month—Northamptonshire v. Sussex, at Rushden; Lancashire v. Derbyshire, at Manchester; Warwickshire v. Gloucestershire, at Birmingham; and Yorkshire v. Nottinghamshire, at Bradford—not a ball could be bowled.

In the first three of these games no play was possible on the first day.

Northamptonshire were breaking new ground at Rushden, and the loss there cannot be estimated.

Rain delayed the start of every other game on the last day except that at Yeovil where Somerset and Worcestershire.

TOTAL LOSSES £10,000

The following messages from Daily Mail correspondents indicate that the financial losses to the counties this season run into more than £10,000:—

Warwickshire.—On games already played there is a loss of £750 compared with the position at this time last year. Present indications are that there will be a deficit of about £2,000 at the end of the season.

Derbyshire's losses are estimated at nearly £2,000.

Lancashire.—"We are about £1,000 down in our takings," the club's secretary told The Daily Mail. "We are hoping to recoup ourselves with the bank holiday fixture with Yorkshire."

Yorkshire estimates its losses due to rain at £2,000. "It is the worst season we have had for a long time," the secretary stated.

Worcestershire's loss to date is between £800 and £1,000. Five days' cricket has been completely washed out.

Leicestershire has lost about £1,000 in gate money.

Glamorgan reports a disastrous season. Compared with last year the club's finances are down by £1,000, and the position is rapidly becoming critical.

Northamptonshire's loss to date is said to be £750.

Sussex.—"We have lost about £400 on matches at Hove and Horsham," the club secretary said.

Somerset's loss runs into hundreds of pounds. Rain interfered with every match the club has played this month.

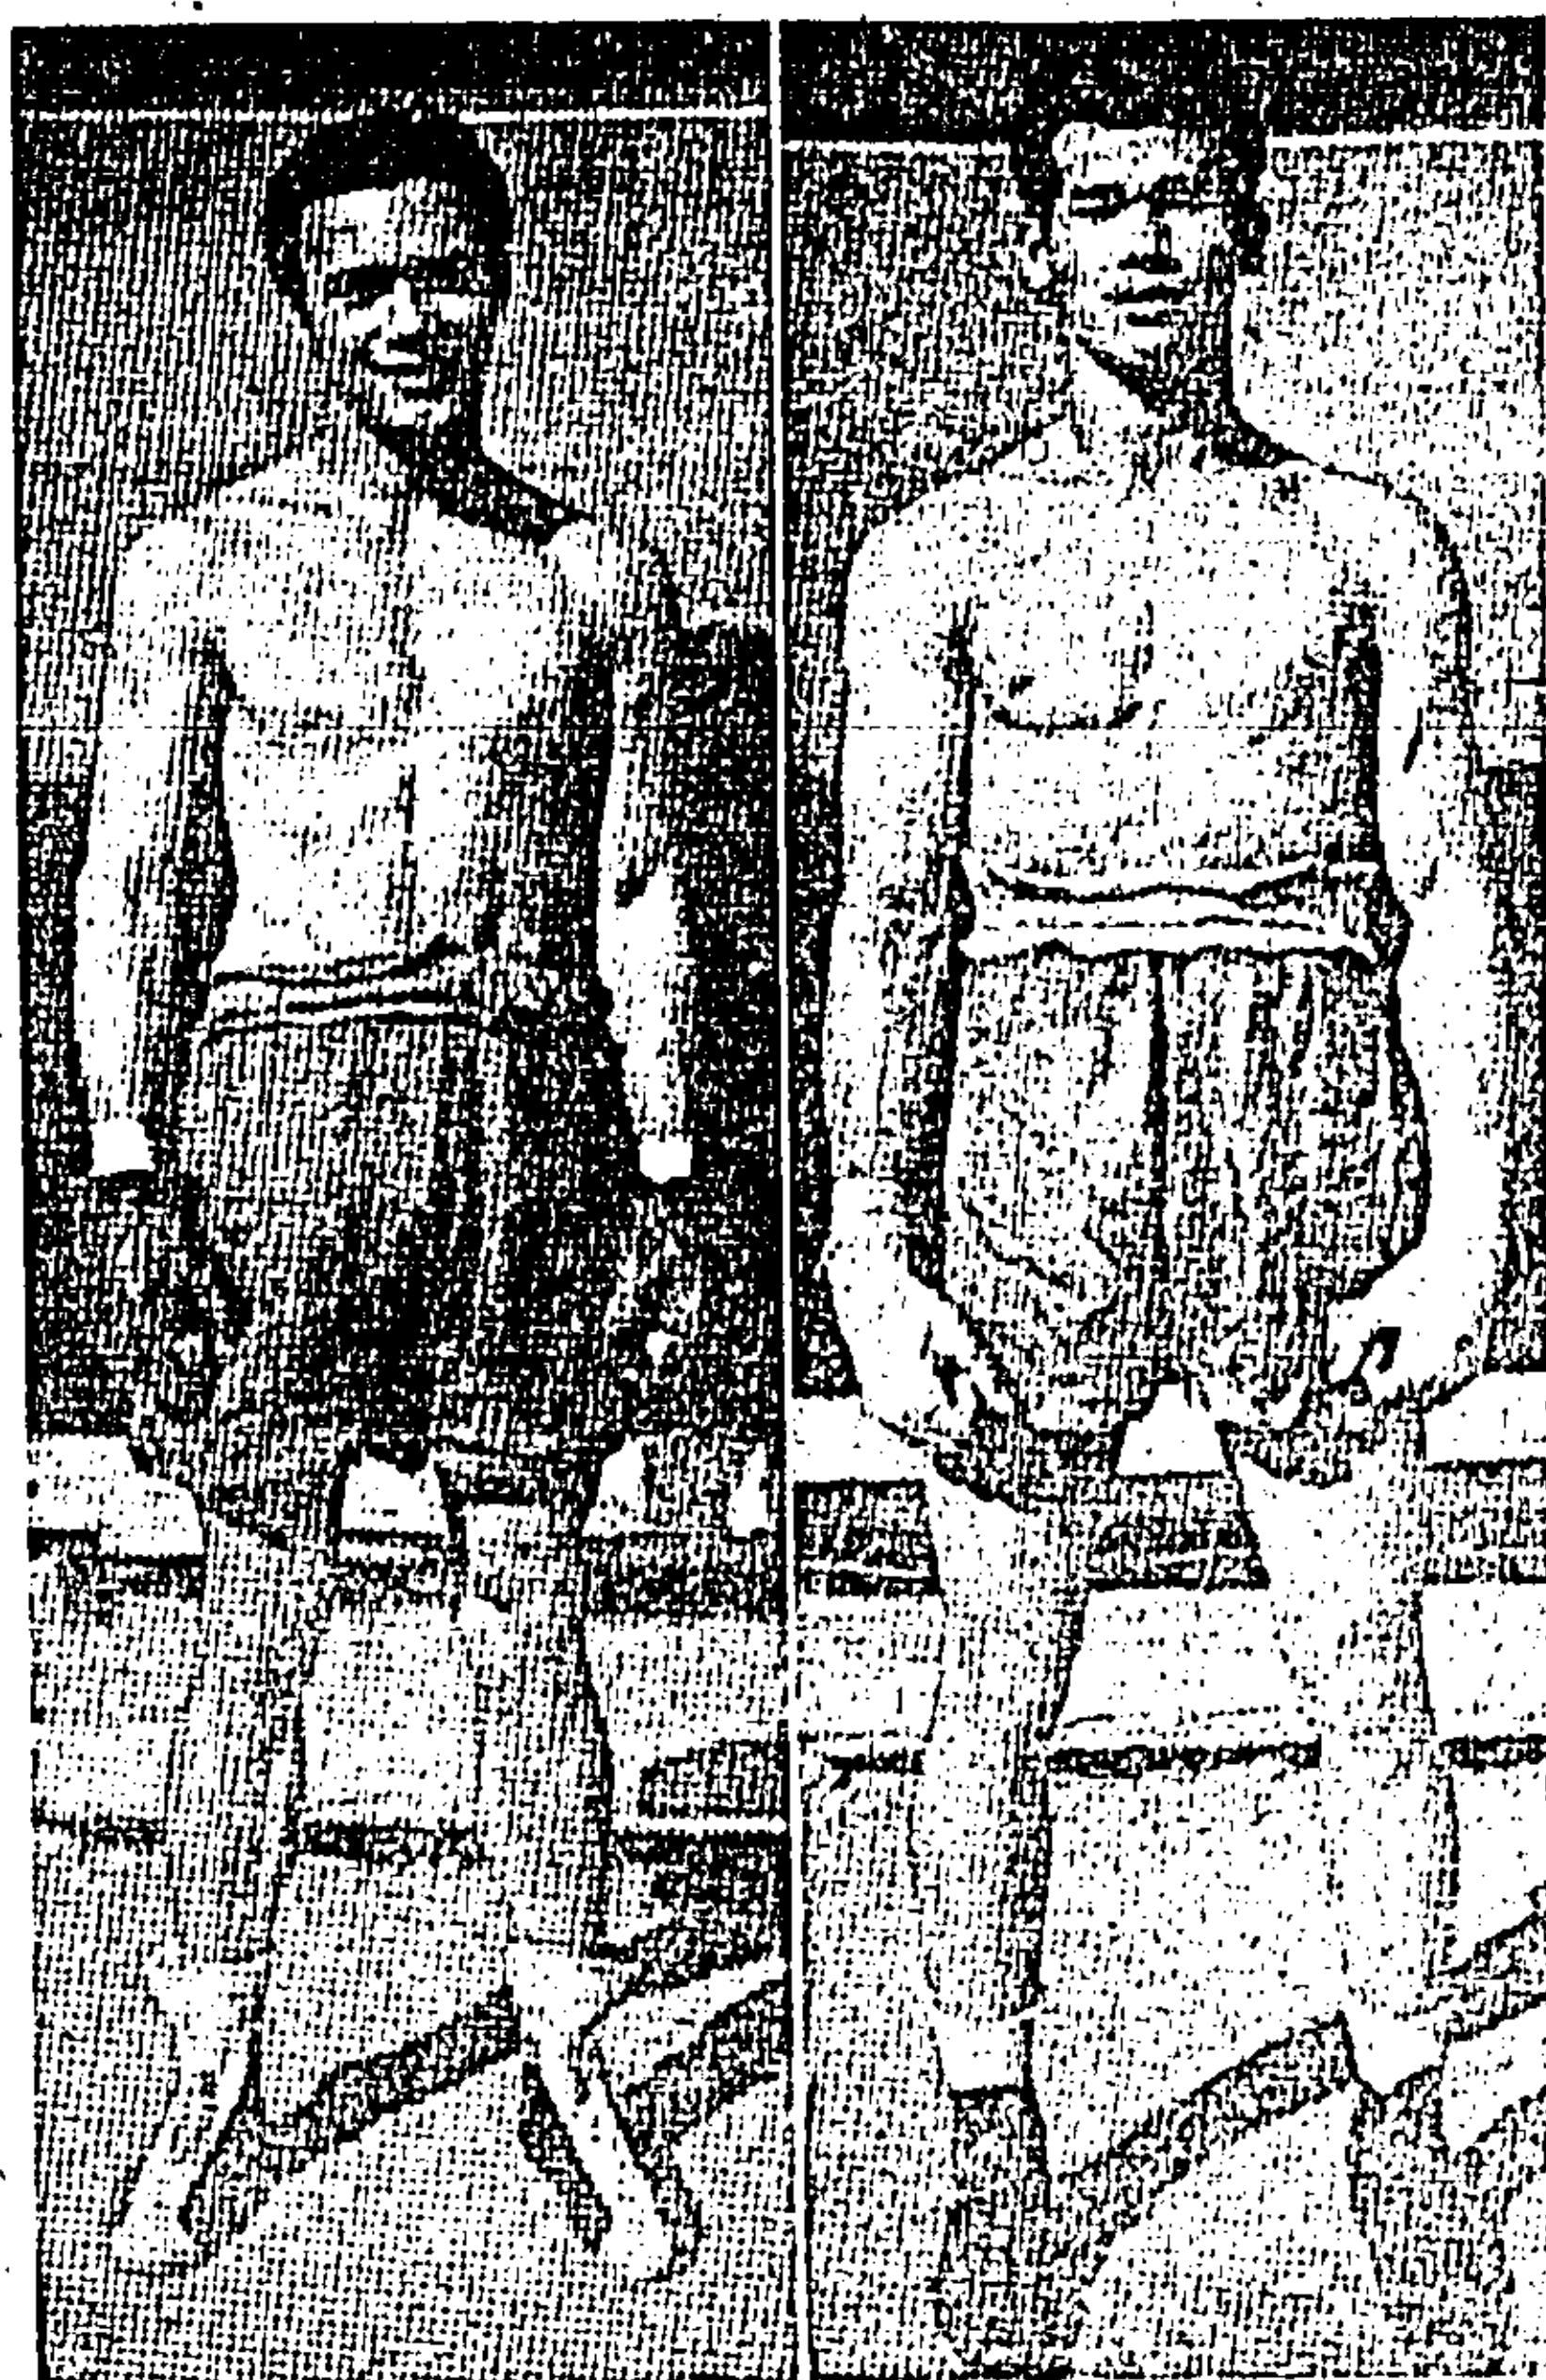

Gloucestershire.—On only two days this season have matches not been interrupted by rain, causing "considerable financial loss." Kent.—Finances have suffered severely, but Canterbury Week, still to come, is one of the club's main sources of revenue.

Essex.—As all this club's home matches take the form of county festivals, where numerous admission tickets are sold beforehand, its finances have not yet been seriously affected by rain.

Surrey.—Gate receipts to date are approximately £2,000 down on normal expectations.

Bad weather at Bletchley, it is estimated, has cost the National Rifle Association about £250.

More Discontent At The Olympics

British Boxers Resent Decision When Chinese Wins On A Foul

Berlin, Aug. 11. China to-day scored a success in the World Olympic boxing tournament, though in a somewhat unsatisfactory way. Ching Kui-ti, taking part in a first round middleweight contest received a decision over Shrimpton the Englishman, the latter being disqualified for hitting too soon after coming out of a clinch in the third round.

An earlier report stated that Shrimpton was disqualified because he hit too low during the third round, but this report was subsequently amended.—Reuter.

BRITISH BOXERS DISGUSTED

Consider Decision Was Absurd

The British team was very dissatisfied with the result, says a Reuter despatch.

The fight opened with Ching Kui-ti flooring Shrimpton in the first few seconds, and then he shook the Briton with a right to the jaw.

In the third round they went into a clinch and Shrimpton knocked out Ching with a left hook to the jaw.

Immediately the count was finished one of the judges protested that Shrimpton had hit the Chinese too soon from the clinch, whereupon the Englishman was disqualified.

The British team was disgusted with what they considered an absurd decision and wondered what they must do to win.

The British manager has lodged a protest against the decision.

Victories were scored by two Filipino boxers, Simplicio de Castro out-pointed Sanchez of Luxembourg in a welterweight fight, while Jose Padilla, Jr. gained a verdict on points over Schmieds of Germany in the lightweight class.

Castro, 22 years of age, won the Philippines national welterweight championship last year and this year became the All-Student welterweight champion.

Padilla, two years older than his compatriot, was 1930 and 1934 Far Eastern lightweight champion and competed, without success, in the 1932 World Olympics at Los Angeles.—United Press.

BASKETBALL

Three basketball matches were played in the Olympics to-day. Poland beat Brazil by 33-25, Uruguay beat Czechoslovakia 28-10, and Canada swamped Switzerland 27-9.—United Press.

11,500 GUINEAS FOR A YEARLING

Miss Paget Buys Sister to Windsor Lad

Excitement ran high at the Newmarket Sales last month, when the yearling sister to Windsor Lad came into the rings. In appearance the filly is difficult to fault, and it was clear from the first that she would run into big money.

Mr. M. H. Benson, the owner of Windsor Lad, started the bidding at 4,000 guineas, and did not retire from the competition until she had reached the 10,000 guineas mark.

Mr. J. Shand, who had not made a move until interposing a bid of 9,000 guineas was left in rivalry with the representative of Miss Dorothy Paget, who secured her at 11,500 guineas.

The daughter of Blandford out of Resplendent seems certain to win good races, but even should she be a disappointment in this direction, she will still be of great value for the paddocks.

Mr. D. Sullivan, vendor of Radiant, also submitted Scotland's Glen, who was foaled in France. Sir V. Sassoon gave 2,000 guineas for her. The bay filly by Birthright out of Lady Eam went to Mr. G. Lambton at 700 guineas. Lady Eam is the dam of Slingo.

Four yearlings from the Lensfield Stud fetched good prices. Mr. H. Cottrill paid 2,400 guineas for the colt by Carleton out of Solopie (winner of two Irish "classics").

Mr. R. Adams bought the Cameronian-Shannon Jug filly for 940 guineas.

Mr. A. Barclay's yearlings included Una Brock, a filly by Cameronian out of Panna. She is a half-sister to the late Lord Portlaoigh.

Yearlings comprised the catalogue at the evening session of the second and intermediate stages of the Second July Bloodstock Sales, at Park Paddocks, Newmarket.

R. J. Colling, the Newmarket trainer, went to 640 guineas for Brackenale, a colt by Lanningdale out of Oamunda, sent up by the Heath Stud, Newmarket.

An unnamed filly by Manned out of Bucolic was purchased by P. Thrale for 470 guineas, and Mrs. Evans secured the colt by Lochiel out of Miss Prim for 230 guineas.

The total for the day was 34,800 guineas.

LEAGUE TENNIS

FINCHER BROTHERS REMAIN UNBEATEN

Yesterday's Matches

Chinese Recreation Club and Kowloon Cricket Club share first place in the "A" Division tennis league table as a result of yesterday's matches. Only two games were played, with C.R.C. (1) and K.C.C. maintaining 100 per cent. records.

Recreo are also undefeated, but have played one less game. K.C.C. were without Bertie Guest, who was indisposed, and who, according to reports, may not be able to take part in the season. However, Gray proved a useful deputy, and with Gross playing strongly, the pair succeeded in taking two sets from U.S.R.C.

The Fincher brothers retained their unbeaten record winning in conventional style against the at-one Goldmann-Sullivan combination.

The match was played on the U.S.R.C. courts, K.C.C. winning by six sets to three.

Chinese Recreation Club were never seriously extended by H.K.C.C., finally winning by 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Barthurst and Lys played well for the losers to snatch a set and a half, while Owen-Hughes and Sewell won the other set.

The new Lai Kwong-tsun-Tsui Yung-pai partnership was a collaborative failure. The last two out of three sets were won by the latter.

But Hung and Li Tak-cheuk were in excellent form, and noteworthy support was lent by Luk Ding-cheung and Wong Shui-wing.

Details of the two matches, and amended league table, follow.

C.R.C. (1) H.K.C.C.

Luk Ding-cheung and Wong Shui-wing (C.R.C.) beat A. W. Owen-Hughes and G. W. Sewell 6-0; beat T. A. Pearce and D. McDougall 6-1; drew with E. Barthurst and J. Lys 6-6.

Lai Kwong-tsun and Tsui Yung-pai lost to Owen-Hughes and Sewell 4-6; beat Pearce and McDougall 6-2; lost to Barthurst and Lys 5-7.

SOUTH CHINA BEAT K.C.C. (1)

IN "C" DIVISION MATCH

Playing in "C" Division league tennis match yesterday on their own courts, Kowloon Cricket Club first string was beaten 7 1/2 to 1 1/2 by South China Athletic. Watson and Capell secured one set and J. S. Smith and L. Jack the other half set for K.C.C. The visitors' strong overhead work proved too much for the losers.

Verity Wins Match For Yorkshire

Fine Batting By Paynter

London, Aug. 11. Bath prevented play to-day in two county cricket matches, both Sussex and Essex being robbed of very good winning chances. Three of the other matches were left depending on a first innings result and only Yorkshire, who won by 42 runs, and Somerset, who beat Hampshire by nine wickets, had outright victories.

But there were some bright individual performances. Paynter, playing for Lancashire who lost to Nottinghamshire, scored 84 out of his team's first innings total of 252 and then hit up 123 not out when he returned to the wicket.

Verity won the match for Yorkshire against Warwickshire. Yorkshire were in distinct danger of losing, Warwick needing 355 runs in their second innings. But Verity, bowling with great skill, sent back seven batsmen for 74 runs and Warwick lost by 42.

Bill Ashdown, who used to open the attack for Kent, but who, for the last two or three seasons has neglected his bowling for batting, suddenly sprang into his form with the leather against Sussex and took 5 for 60, his best piece of bowling this season.

The detailed results and individual performances were cabled by Reuter and were as under.

"INCIDENT"

CLOSED

Friendly Relations Unimpaired

The Sussex Committee has sent a letter to the Nottinghamshire Committee expressing the hope that the "incident" in the recent match at Hove would now be considered as closed. The Nottinghamshire captain, G. F. H. Heane, successfully appealed against rain and led his men off the field when Sussex needed only two runs for victory.

The letter to the Nottinghamshire Secretary, Mr. H. A. Brown, was as follows:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, which I laid before my Committee to-day. I am desired to say that they are glad to hear that the Committee of the Nottinghamshire County Cricket Club do not uphold the action of Mr. Heane.

In view of this assurance, my Committee consider that the incident should now be considered as closed, and that they hope that the friendly relations which have so long existed between our two counties may continue unimpaired.

Yours faithfully,
W. L. Knowles
(Secretary).

The Nottinghamshire Committee had previously expressed regret that their captain adopted such a course of action. At the same time they passed a vote of confidence in Mr. Heane.

FIRST CRICKET WINS UNDER ONE-DAY RULE

Since Law Was Passed Two Years Ago

London, July 16. The first counties to win ten points to their opponents' three for a one-day County Championship match are Gloucestershire and Northamptonshire. They succeeded yesterday against Warwickshire and Sussex respectively by winning on the first innings.

The rule awarding these points was passed over two years ago, but, although several counties have been involved in one-day matches since then, the prize had eluded them. Lancashire and Derbyshire also played under one-day rules, but Old Trafford weather, true to its reputation, ruined even this abbreviated match when a good finish looked possible.

Still Trying To Tempt Perry

HAZARDS OF ARRANGING PRO. TOURS

London, Aug. 11.—Every year, within a few hours after he has won the Wimbledon men's singles tennis championship, Frederick J. Perry receives a cablegram from the American professional tennis promoter, William (Bill) O'Brien, offering him a fortune to forsake the amateur ranks and turn professional.

This year was no exception. O'Brien cabled an offer of £2,000 and a four-month tour of the United States to commence on January 1, 1937. Perry has not so far committed himself, beyond admitting that such an offer has been received.

This offer is particularly interesting this year, in view of a story carried in the New York Herald Tribune, in which O'Brien reveals that professional tennis in America is in a critical state. The offer to Perry is rather like the last desperate grab by a drowning man at a straw. In this case the straw, could it seem, save O'Brien's tennis professional from sinking into oblivion.

LOSING PUBLIC FAVOUR

The reason for this state of affairs appears to be that the American public has all but lost interest in "pro" tennis, and "gate" receipts are extremely meagre. In his story to the Herald-Tribune, O'Brien reveals that after the last five months tour he was "out £840 of his own money because of having to pay the salaries of his players out of his own pocket on account of insufficient box office receipts. He said that on one evening alone the receipts amounted to only 77 dollars (about £19).

The harassed promoters, who two or three years ago put professional tennis on the map with a loud bang, is so discouraged that he is going to interest himself in baseball promotion in Pennsylvania through this summer, and then may take up boxing promoting in the autumn.

"TENNIS TEMPERAMENT"

O'Brien told of the worry and trouble he had gone through on account of the work entailed in making all the arrangements for his players' appearances in each town in which they performed. So only that, but O'Brien had to contend with what he calls the "tennis temperament." He said: "I had to 'babysit' eight various types of tennis 'temperament' every day and night of the five months we were on the road. Talk about opera singers and prima donnas! The tennis players can teach 'em a lot, I'm telling you."

The promoter said that he and William Tilden split up last March in Los Angeles. He had an altercation on the telephone with one of the latest acquisitions to the tennis group—Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold—who objected to his attempts to obtain publicity for her.

"If only I could get Fred Perry, Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs, Baron von Cramm and Donald Budge, I could pack the halls for one tour," O'Brien said in conclusion, "but I can't, so I'm laying off tennis for the time being."

"I don't want any more of those £840 loss trips," the O'Briens raised thirteen children, and I hope none of them will ever be that 'dumb,' " he said.

PLEASED WITH WHITE

Praise For Filipino Olympic Star

Writing in a recent issue of the Manila Bulletin, Ralph Hawkins, prominent sports commentator has the following to say about the performance of Miguel White, Filipino star, at the Berlin Olympics.

"This sector was just a wee bit disappointed that Miguel White did not come in second in the 400-metre hurdles in Berlin, but third, place, we concede, is not to be sneezed at when the competitors are the world's fastest and most durable. We were hoping that Glen Hardin would stumble or something and by just some such chance White would come romping home ahead of the lumber jockeys. Our next hope, and one we banked on pretty much, was that White would finish a close second to the American world record holder in a record-breaking race."

But even as it was Miguel White, the quiet, brown-skinned obstacle runner from the Philippines, lived up to all expectations of local fans. In fact he did better than many would have given him credit for. Although he finished third his time was two-tenths of a second better than he had ever run it before. He was clocked in the Olympic finals at 52.8. His best mark in these parts was 53 seconds. It only goes to show what the local boy can do when given the right kind of competition.

White is the second Filipino athlete to finish third in a World Olympic track and field competition. In 1932, at Los Angeles, Simon Torbilio tied for first place in the high jump at 5 ft 5 1/2 inches with three other jumpers, including Cornelius Johnson, this year's winner. In the jump-off Torbilio was third, beating out Johnson who was just beginning his leaping career. Guess it's age that got next to Torbilio. In Berlin he qualified for the finals, but failed to clear the bar at 5 ft 1 in. in the finals.

His group—Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold—who objected to his attempts to obtain publicity for her. "If only I could get Fred Perry, Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs, Baron von Cramm and Donald Budge, I could pack the halls for one tour," O'Brien said in conclusion, "but I can't, so I'm laying off tennis for the time being."

LAWN BOWLS

Noronha And Silva In Pairs Final

INDIFFERENT PLAY

Indifferent bowls was witnessed in the semi-final Open Pairs championship match between S. A. Bright and J. E. Henson against J. E. Noronha and F. X. M. da Silva on the Kowloon Cricket Club green yesterday, the latter winning by 24 shots to 16. They will meet R. Duncan and S. Randle in the final.

Play on the first fourteen hands was even, with each side in turn taking the lead. The Kowloon Bowling Green Club started off with a three, only to see the Portuguese pair score a single and a four on the next two hands to take the lead. They maintained this lead for the next two hands, but on the eighth hand, the Bowling Green Club pair chalked up a three to lead again with eight shots to seven. The scores were levelled on two of the next four hands, but on the 13th hand, the Bowling Green Club pair were leading by 13 shots to ten, and by 14 shots to 12 on the 15th hand. They lost the lead on the next hand when their opponents scored a four, and from then on they were pegged down to a single shot on the last hand, while the Portuguese pair added eight more shots.

The bowls was not of a high standard, although both Silva and Henson were responsible for some good woods. On the ninth hand, the Portuguese pair were lying four shots, when Henson drew the shot with his last wood, and on the 12th hand, although lying one shot, Silva touched the 'jack', moving it away to give his opponents three shots. Silva was applauded for some good work on the 18th hand, when Henson, apparently rattled by the position of the woods, rolled some bad woods.

Noronha and Bright did not show up too well, but the form was the more consistent, though inclined to be very short on occasions. The match was umpired by Mr. H. Overy.

The start saw the "D" men leading strongly, but the determined swimming of Lance-Corporal Roberts took the "B" Company to victory. He finished fully five yards ahead of Fusilier Owens of the "D" Company, who was leading at the beginning.

What is the good of a "Single" Whisky?

"A 'single' whisky has double meaning," said Johnnie Walker. "When we in Scotland talk about 'single' whiskies we mean the many separate whiskies which are blended together to make Johnnie Walker. No two 'single' whiskies are exactly alike; it is the art of the blender to retain the finest characteristics of each so that perfect harmony is achieved. In fact, harmonious blending, like harmonious marriage, is largely a matter of give and take. And the moral is, when giving or taking whisky, ask for Johnnie Walker by name."

HERBERT MORRISON

SIR WALTER CITRINE'S
"I Search for Truth in Russia" (Routledge, 10s.
6d.), will have a varied reception.

Reactionary propagandists
will pick and choose extracts from the volume with a view to proving that Communist Russia is the world's greatest failure.
Those Communists whose opinions are determined by preconceived views on policy rather than by fact will "go up in the air." They will denounce the book as a libel on Soviet Russia and as "an insult to the heroic struggle of the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union
for economic emancipation and advancement."

Both will be wrong. They will be wrong because they have become accustomed to the idea that all books about Russia are propagandist books.

ON this his second visit to the Soviet Union after a break of ten years, Sir Walter Citrine has been concerned with propaganda. He went to Russia to see what was to be seen; he went as a seeker for the truth.

Day by day he recorded in a note book (Citrine is a shorthand writer) things he saw, facts that were given to him by witnesses, sometimes after examination or even cross-examination, and the principal points of conversation he had with all kinds of people during his long journey.

He read through masses of decades, annual reports and statistical returns. He came to conclusions and recorded them in his diary, and here, in this book, the diary is printed.

The mind of Sir Walter Citrine is one of the most honest analytical and objective minds in the British Labour Movement.

That is why he is so hated by the Communists. For the man who will not cringe to them is black-listed and made the subject of abusive attack and interruption at public meetings.

I do not always agree with Citrine's mind and conclusions. He is very British, and when in Russia
he is very British.

Search for TRUTH in Russia

A REVIEW BY

The Right Honourable
Herbert Morrison, M.P.

SIR WALTER CITRINE

advancing; although the progress has been checked by the vast increase in expenditure on the armed forces.

That, nevertheless, the economic condition of the Russian workers is definitely inferior to that of our country and of most of the Western communities; and, finally, that the political dictatorship is irkssome, tyrannical and injurious to intellectual freedom and the speed
of economic advancement.

No simple tourist swallowing
everything at its face value was this distinguished British trade unionist.

He had taken pains to get as much as he could into his head about Russia before he went. He used his knowledge and his wit
while he was there.

And, after all, these differences
of national temperament and tradition are not without their charm. They go to make up the interest of this varied world.

Throughout, the diary appears to be the result of that honest
and courageous mental outlook
characteristic of the British T.U.C.
Secretary.

He is concerned with the truth
as he sees it, and he cares not in writing this fascinating and interesting record whether he pleases or displeases. And, to be of value,
it is in that spirit that the diary
of the scientific observer should be written.

What, broadly, are his conclusions?

They are these. That the economic and social effects of Soviet effort constitute one of the most important worth-while social adventures in the history of mankind; that management is not yet at a high state of efficiency, and that the industrial workers are driven at a pretty fast pace, despite the fact that until recent years they were not extensively accustomed to the rush of modern industrialism.

That is so, Comrade Citrine.
"So that was not an actual increase at all, was it? It only made up what the workers would lose because of increased prices. Are these increases in wages being maintained?"

"They vary from worker to worker, but they are going up all the time."

"What about the prices in the shops; they are increasing, too, aren't they?" I asked.

"The tendency is towards unity prices in all stores," said my guide.
"Ultimately we shall have the same prices for everybody."

This determination to get at the Socialists paid serious visits to Russia—Sidney and Beatrice Webb.
The result was their monumental and exceedingly valuable two volumes, "Soviet Communism."

Citrine's book is a diary. The diary of a man who is concerned with the ascertainment of facts rather than the elaborations of a social philosopher and a political socialist.

Some may consider Citrine's book to be a little on the harsh side, some may consider the Webb's volumes to be somewhat too benevolent.

In any case, Sir Walter Citrine is to be congratulated on his painstaking work.

There will be rows about his book; it will create controversy.
But it is a book of high value, written by a man who scorns any policy that ignores facts.

It is an essential book for those who seek the truth about the great Soviet Union and the results of the Bolshevik revolution.

MY advice to those who have read the Webb's book is to be sure to read Citrine's book. To those who read Citrine's book to read the Webb's volumes as well.

CLOSE RUN FOR LEAGUE PENNANT

CHICAGO DEFEATS
ST. LOUIS CARDS
REDS DIVIDE
HONOURS

New York, Aug. 11.

Chicago at last succeeded in beating St. Louis, the League leaders whom the Cubs trail so closely, in a closely contested game to-day. The Cubs won by six to four, with twelve hits to ten, and a home run by Hack.

Cubs had three and St. Louis two errors.

Pittsburgh and Cleveland split honours in a double-header, the Reds winning the night-cup seven to three, with seventeen hits to twelve, after Pittsburgh had made an effort to recover lost ground and had defeated Cincinnati six to three in the opener, when each had ten hits.

Boston beat the Phillies in ten innings, five to four, longer whacking a home run for the Braves. Boston hit twelve seven and each blundered once in the field.

New York Giants kept plugging along, winning eight to three from Brooklyn, on fifteen hits to twelve, Dodgers had an error.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

St. Louis Browns hit thirteen, including a home run by Sellers, and scored seven runs against Chicago's pum, made on three hits. Each had an error.

With twelve hits, and a home from Gehrig, Detroit still could not beat Cleveland, with only ten hits for Truesky and Knickerbocker. In homers and boosted the Reds' total to six runs.

Washington trimmed New York seven to three, with only ten hits to eleven. Each had an error. Philadelphia disappointed the home fans by letting Boston hit a dozen times and score six runs. The Athletics could only manage six hits and a lone run. Boston had two errors of the three.—Reuter.

FRANCO-ITALIAN AGREEMENT

Rome, Aug. 11.

An agreement has been signed between the French Ambassador and the Italian Foreign Minister for the resumption of trade exchanges, following the removal of sanctions between France and Italy.

A special clause in the agreement provides for the gradual liquidation of Italian commercial debts to France of about 300,000,000 francs.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

KOWLOON PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

huts, the obnoxious cultivation of vegetables on land adjacent to residences and the accumulation of stagnant water due to building development without adequate provision for contingent drainage.

It was decided that the report form the basis of a letter to be sent to Government making complaint and asking for the abatement of these insanitary and unhealthy conditions.

It was also decided to ask Government why no enquiry had been held following a drowning fatality last June in one of the pools in the area under discussion.

A report from the Membership Sub-Committee made several recommendations with a view to interesting potential members. European and Chinese.

HISTORIC SITES

The Kowloon Historic Sites Sub-Committee reported that a visit to Sung Wong Toi, Haai to Long Temple, and Kowloon Walled City had shown that the Association's recommendations for improvement had been carried out by Government. It was agreed to write to Government expressing appreciation and requesting that the two guns inside the South Dynasty, be afforded a suitable mounting.

Arising from this report, the Sub-Committee was asked to draw up a list of places of historic interest in Kowloon for submission to the Hongkong Travel Association with a view to its inclusion in their literature. A sub-committee was appointed to investigate and report on the bad condition of road surfacing in Central Kowloon.

SCHOOL FACILITIES

The question of utilizing the old Central British School building for the Kowloon Junior School was discussed and it was agreed to seek information regarding:

- Number of pupils at present at Kowloon Junior School.
- Number of pupils per class.
- Number of pupils refused or postponed admittance during the year, and reasons.
- Whether the accommodation at this school is considered adequate for present and future needs.

It was further agreed that the Association write to Government asking its intention regarding the disposal of the old Central British School.

OTHER MATTERS

It was also agreed to write Government asking that the lay-out of seats, plots, etc., in Chatham Road be extended to include the present vacant area.

It was further agreed that the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Kowloon, be interviewed concerning European police supervision to prevent the misuse of the seats, etc., by coolies, and to stop objectionable practices prevalent after dark.

London, Aug. 11.

Hitches have arisen in connection with the projected stoppage of work on the collieries on Thursday, in memory of the fifty-seven victims of the Barnsley disaster.

The Leicestershire mine-owners have refused to sanction the stoppage, and the Northumberland Miners' Association has decided not to close on Thursday.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

AIR FORCE CHANGES

ANNOUNCED

London, Aug. 11.

The Ministry announced to-day the following appointments:

LIQUID FOOD

SUBSTITUTE FOR HEAVY MEALS

Summer diets are frequently too light to supply the energy needed for carrying out the daily routine while ordinary refreshing drinks so often have no food or tonic value. Food beverages fill this need. They may be taken cold or merely chilled so that no feeling of heaviness or drowsiness is experienced.

It is not advisable to drink food drinks if one is overheated, as after violent exercise, unless such drinks are sipped slowly.

If your children turn away from even the most tempting tiffin and say they are not hungry, only thirsty, try them with a long glass of "Liquid Food." Make it even more tempting by allowing them to drink it through a straw and you will find that it is thoroughly enjoyed.

Actually if careful choice is made such a glass of Liquid Food, icy cold and refreshing, is a splendid substitute for solid food for jaded appetites during the summer months.

Casbury's ICED BOURN-VITA

THE PERFECT FOOD-DRINK FOR SUMMER WEATHER

Summer diets are frequently too light to supply the energy needed for carrying out the daily routine. Iced Bourn-vita taken regularly is not only a delicious, refreshing beverage, but it is nourishing and stimulating and makes up this deficiency in the diet. Ordinary refreshing drinks so frequently have no food or tonic value.

Bourn-vita is rich in valuable mineral salts, phosphates, iron, etc., which are invaluable to the dweller in hot climates. You need a supply of these mineral salts particularly in the summer months when the body is being deprived of these by excessive perspiration.

Bourn-vita is not too rich for use on the hottest summer day, as the fat content is kept low so that no feeling of heaviness is experienced after its consumption. Its high, readily assimilable carbohydrate content makes the drink light and readily digestible; at the same time a ready source of energy.

The phosphorus contained in Bourn-vita in the form of phosphates and lecithin is a valuable tonic food for jaded nerves.

TWO different types of men were described on this page last Monday by Muriel Segal.

She called them Peter (easy-going, with a charming smile) and David (dynamic, utterly sincere, but not universally popular). Readers were invited to say which of the two they preferred—and by more than two to one they have chosen David. The winning letters are published below.

TOMATO SOUP
ROAST CHICKEN WITH CORN
OYSTERS GOOSEBERRY FOOL

FOR the corn oysters you want a tin of sweet corn, not on the cob. Put two cups of this into a saucepan, bring to the boil and simmer for a quarter of an hour. Now add a teaspoonful and a half of salt, a little pepper, a couple of tablespoonsful of milk, a well-beaten egg and three quarters of a cup of powdered cream crackers or water biscuits. Melt a little bacon fat in a thick frying-pan, drop spoonfuls of the mixture into it, and brown them on both sides.

SAFE-GUARD YOUR CHILDREN AGAINST SUMMER ILLS.

Throughout the hot season there is always a danger of infants and little children developing diarrhoea, colic, and other stomach and bowel troubles. Neglect, or delay, in such circumstances may be fatal, so the wise mother safeguards her little ones by keeping Baby's Own Tablets ready at hand, to meet emergencies.

The formula of an eminent physician child-specialist, Baby's Own Tablets consist only of ingredients which—whilst simple, pure and entirely safe—are exactly suited for the prompt correction of digestive and intestinal troubles in the very young.

Administered in small doses, and without difficulty because they are pleasant-tasting, and children like them, Baby's Own Tablets quickly yet very gently, cleanse the system of offensive matter, thus purifying and sweetening the whole digestive tract. In this way they quickly remove the causes of constipation and also of diarrhoea, allay colic and teething-pains, cool feverishness, relieve cramp and colds, correct indigestion, expel worms, quiet the nerves and induce natural, health giving sleep.

Of chemists and medicine dealers everywhere.

"For Children of All Ages".

I PREFER the David of the large intense faults and virtues to the Peter of so many peccadilloes.

Peter, having the world for a friend, has no friend, while David, individualistic and sincere, has enemies—the hall-mark of personality.

Economically and emotionally a woman is dependent on her man; and Peter lacks both sympathy and prudence in money matters. His woman will be incidental in his life; David's will be instrumental.

The woman confers life. In David's hands that life will be blessed, for, while the Peters, having trained themselves from primeval slime, contentedly sun themselves on their mud-banks, the Davids, pioneers of racial development, evolve a new heaven and a new earth for generations yet unborn.—R. D.

PETER has, obviously, become engaged in much the same way that he might "drop into the nearest pub for a couple of drinks." No one woman is essential to his happiness, and he makes no pretence even of showing "her" the little preferences which an engaged man usually delights in. What a prelude to marriage!

Now, David needs one woman, and glories in setting her on a pedestal and worshipping her. Without the brilliance of his intellect, life with him might be dull, albeit safe, but with that intellect, allied to his idealistic, questing spirit, it promises—to the right woman—intense and never-ending happiness. Probably only she will ever know the real David—and she may count herself blessed above all women.—R. F.

NOT being a superwoman, I choose—Peter. Life with him may not make for peace of mind, but, given tolerance, it could be happy.

Peter may not notice my headache or share my anxiety about the rent, but then, neither will he nag about my "pronunciation" or fly into a rage because I prefer Bing Crosby to Wagner. He sets no impossible standards. Neither should I. What if he is happy-go-lucky, charming, casual? I fell in love with him because he was—Peter.

And when David has worn his wife's nerves to shreds, and ended either in greatness or the gas oven, Peter will still be the same exasperatingly-lovable companion. And companionship does count when it comes to choosing a man.—J. P.

I CHOSE David! Never again! His ambition dominates everything. No one dare speak—there must be quiet for studying. All spare money goes to further his research. The children, "the home and I are painfully shabby." It is years since he took me out; he has lost interest in all things except study. No one is allowed to call.

His temperamental moodiness has developed into sheer, common domineering. My personality—I stodge myself—has been so subjugated that I am a person whom I do not know now. I live in fear and dread the future. The children are difficult because of my husband's attitude towards me. His if not model, husband and father, his

I defy anyone to have foreseen this result. Peter's faults are at least open ones. To a large extent, one would know what to expect.—Embittered Wife.

GIVE me a Peter every time! We need gaiety, enjoyment and good companionship in this life. The ideal companion after a hard day's work; the ideal escort after a trying day. Tiredness and troubles disappear in his bright company and the consequential chatter. And the inconsequent Peter of pre-marriage days generally settles down and becomes, after marriage, quite as thoughtful and attentive as the serious David. So we have both ways—both "eat our cake and have it."—R. H.

SEVENTEEN years ago I married a "Peter." In the struggle to make ends meet and bring up a family, at 40 I am feeling and looking middle-aged, whereas the years have stood still for him; he simply will not worry about the future.

Mary may well "give Peter the air." I can assure her he will always neglect her, spend every penny available, "amused" at her tears, in short, she must be prepared to shoulder every responsibility and unpleasantness she meets in life.—J. R.

WHICH man do I prefer? I laughed uproariously—the first time for years—when I read of Peter and David. There is only one possible answer for me. I know both types; for I courted "Peter" and, tragically enough, married a "David."

I am not complaining. David is nice, loyal and true—but he demands too much. Although brilliant, successful, he is still moody and temperamental, so that I have to be continually "soothing" him.

Peter I dismissed because I thought him too frivolous and unreliable; now I long for the sound of laughter, and the boyish exuberance of Peter would more than compensate me for his failings.—David's Wife.

DAVID is my choice every time. His stormy brilliance tempered with the attractive stodge of reliability and his very own mood-giving spice and variety to life, which Peter's complacency would fail to produce.

David would mature into a good, if not model, husband and father, his staunchness and seriousness being two important ingredients. The dynamic qualities of David and his associations would fully compensate for any chaotic upheavals due to his extreme sensitiveness.

With Peter, life would become unbearable—his aggravating lack of concentration and forethought would be intolerable. Of the two, David would have deeper powers of sympathy and understanding, while Peter's "happy-go-lucky," selfish attitude bodes ill for the achievement of "living happy ever after."—P. S.

PETER is the stuff of which glorious adventures and pioneers are made. He is the type which compels love in spite of feminine reason and intuition. Were life an endless road of sunshine—he is the incomparable companion.

David brings certain gifts—exhilarating. Think of the splendid dash of wit, sharpening of mind on mind, safety of intellectual battle. With him life might be no beanfeast, but it would not be dull. David's outlook can be summarised, "The more I succeed—the better for you, darling"; while Peter's is, "Let's be happy together to-day—to-morrow never comes."

Because I'm of the legion of cautious women who prefer love with security rather than affection without it—David's my choice.—F. H.

HOW happy could I be with either? Peter or David would be my choice according to the one who proposed first—TOO OLD AT SIXTY.

BEAUTY BOX—Put Apples On Your Face

AMERICAN girls use apples in their beauty treatments all the year round. These are some of the ways they may help you.

If you are out of doors a lot, have been playing games, bathing, or holiday-making, here is a mask which will make good any harm done by wind and exposure.

Prepare it by cutting a good-sized apple without peeling the skin. Put it on a saucer and drop half a teaspoonful of pure olive oil into the core, then put the apple in the oven to bake thoroughly.

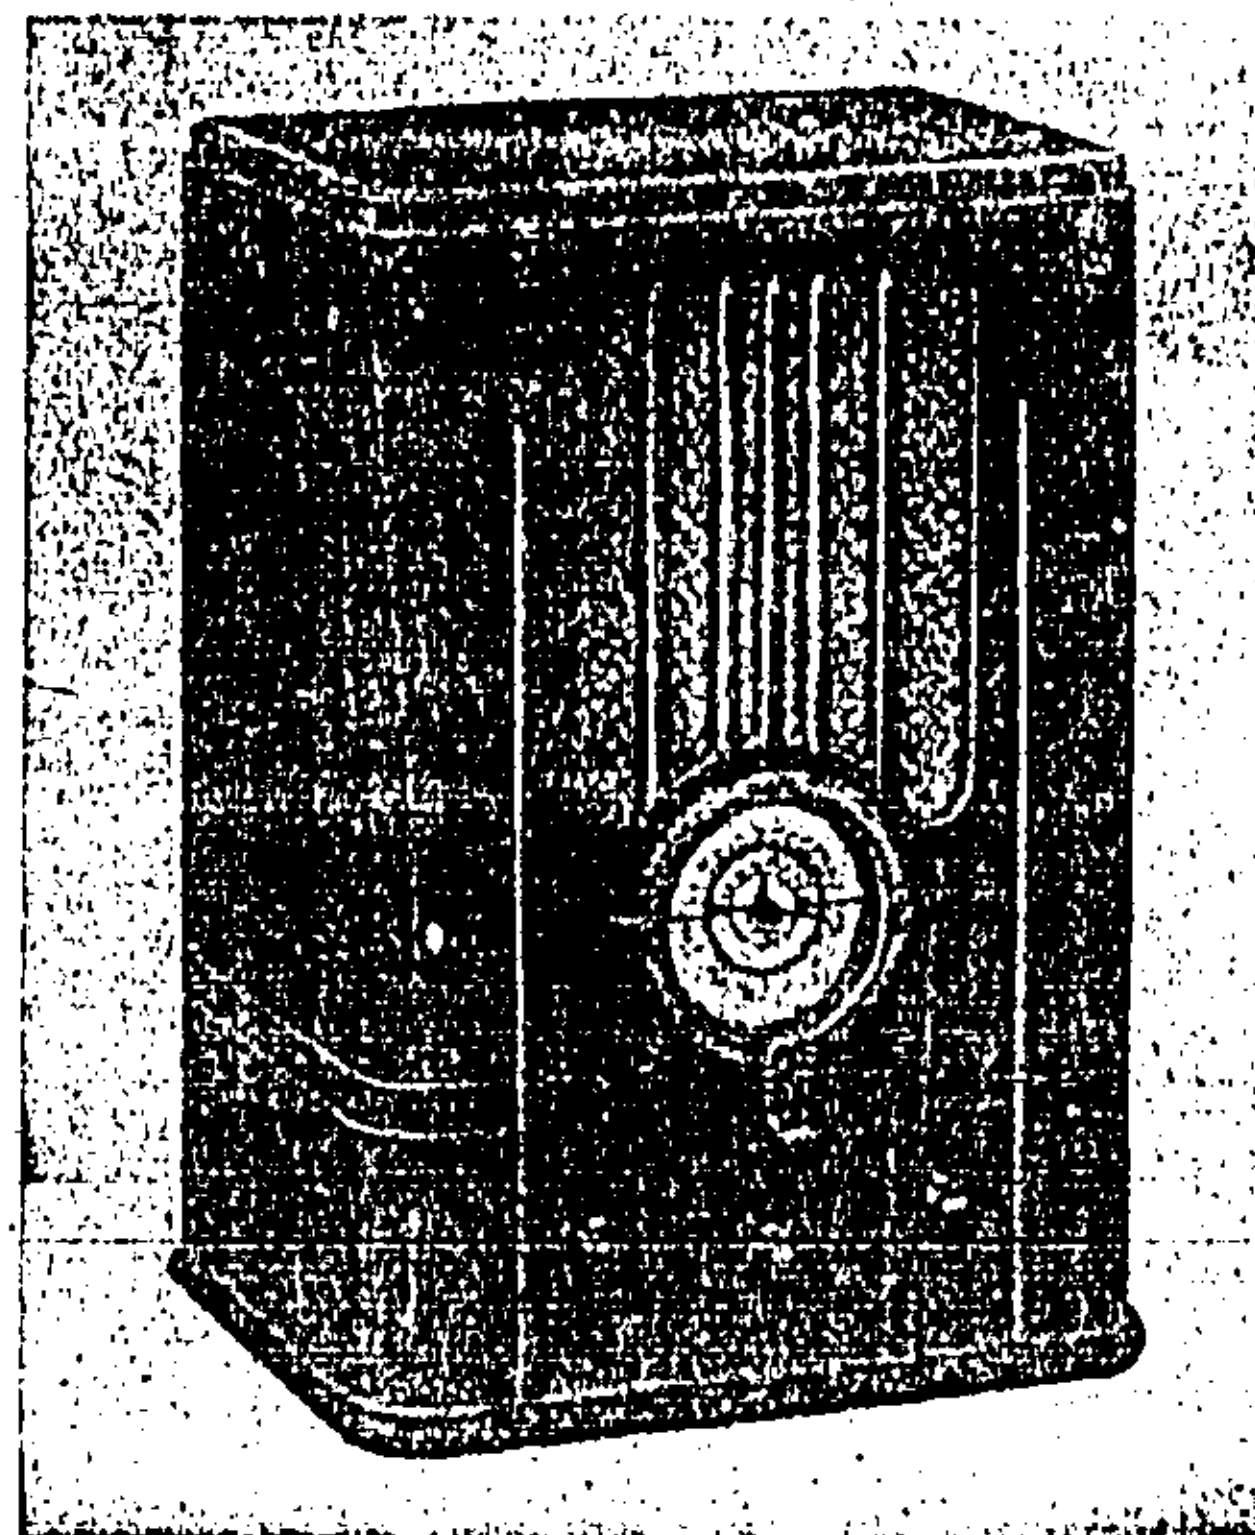

Before applying this mask—a bedtime proceeding—cleanse the skin in water hot enough to open the pores, then dry quickly on a soft curly towel, and apply the fruit pulp to the skin, rubbing it into the pores with a light rotary movement of the finger-tips. Swathe your head in an old silken scarf and sleep in it. Next morning the mask may be easily removed by washing in lukewarm water to which three or four drops of witch-hazel have been added.

If you are sunburned, make a lotion to bleach your skin.

Take two medium size apples to a mush, then squeeze to extract the juice, and strain, well. To each ounce of the liquid add five drops of rose-water, two drops of oil of sweet almonds, and two drops of olive oil. Shake well before using and apply to the skin immediately after washing and drying every time the face is washed.

DEAD CURATE'S SON BANNED FROM COMMUNION

"This Grave Wrong You Have Done"

LEGAL ADVICE SOUGHT ON BISHOP'S LETTER

IN view of the grave wrong which you have done to your neighbours and the Church you must not present yourself for Holy Communion in any church or place of worship in the diocese of Chichester until further order is given.

The Bishop of Chichester, Dr. G. K. A. Bell, writes these words in a letter to Mr. James P. Bunting, the son of the Sussex curate who, with his wife, was found gassed in his Camelsdale home.

At the inquest the jury censured Mr. Bunting for not helping his parents when they were in financial difficulties. The foreman said that they thought the son "acted in a very callous manner in not coming forward to see his father."

"My conscience is clear," said Mr. Bunting. He said he had taken legal opinion about the letter.

"GREAT SORROW"

The Bishop's letter to Mr. Bunting reads:

"Dear Sir, I write as Bishop of the diocese in which your father, the Rev. W. H. Boyle Bunting, was serving at the time of his unhappy death, to inform you that I have read with great sorrow the account of the coroner's inquest.

"I have received a personal report also from those who were present at the inquest upon your father and mother and I have noted the rider attached to the verdict at the jury's request and its reference to your callousness as a son—a rider which I am sorry to say, it appears to be fully justified. It seems to me that you have done in the rider which you have done to your neighbours and the Church, you must not present yourself for Holy Communion in any church or place of worship in the diocese of Chichester until further order is given.

"The wrong which you have done is one that calls for much repentance and I will call upon you to consider how gravely you have sinned and how necessary it is for you that you should repent. Should you have anything to say as to why you should not be thus repelled from the Holy Communion I am ready to hear it. In the meantime, this order stands. I am, Yours faithfully, George Chichester."

"GROSSLY UNFAIR"

Mr. Bunting said— "It is all grossly unfair. I am, apparently the biggest sinner ever. Even murderers are not excommunicated nowadays, I am told."

"This is all being done without an attempt being made to find out the full and true state of affairs. They have not even bothered to inquire into them."

"In the past it may be that I was a 'naughty boy,' but there are lots of sons who have been naughty boys. My father's letter explained the true circumstances and I can honestly say that my conscience is clear."

"The Bishop's letter was terribly curt and it contains no sympathy whatsoever. I understand my 'excommunication' is the first, apart from the Roman Catholic Church, for about 100 years."

MAKING GOOD

"I am not going to quibble about the money I received. I had between £3,000 and £4,000 from them, but my father, in the letter, plainly stated that he did not attach any blame to me because I had pulled up in recent months and was now settling out on a career upon which I was making good and had started to help them."

"I had given them about £600 in the last few months."

"I would have thought that in a letter so personal as the one I received that the envelope would at least have been addressed 'Confidential' and the letter itself would have been written. Instead, there was no confidential or private mark on the envelope and the letter was typically business in character, having been typewritten."

Mr. Bunting said that he had no intention of challenging the right of the Bishop.

BISHOP'S COMMENT

"I wrote a letter to the Bishop this morning in reply to his explanation, but I have now decided not to send it," he added. "I feel that no good will ever come from writing to him."

Dr. Bell, asked to comment on Mr. Bunting's statement, said:

"Mr. Bunting has no business to give the letter to the Press. The recipient of a letter cannot publish it without the consent of the writer."

He declined to comment further, beyond saying that the letter spoke for itself.

DR. BARNES IS AGAINST BAN

Dr. Barnes, the Bishop of Birmingham, said that he wished to dissociate himself decisively from the action of the Bishop of Chichester in "excommunicating" Mr. Bunting.

He added: "I should not myself condemn a man on a rider attached to the verdict of a coroner's jury where the jury was not set to inquire into a man's conduct."

An official of the Church Association said that the Bishop of Chichester's action was "almost an excommunication."

"Excommunication does not really exist in the Church of England at the present time," he said, "and it is rare for anyone to be excluded from Communion."

"The son is not a person and therefore does not come directly under the Bishop's jurisdiction."

"With divorced persons a clergyman would feel, and I think in law would be justified in excluding them from Communion, but such people do not usually present themselves."

"I do not know that there is any venue of appeal for a layman."

WHAT THE BAN MEANS

ACTION IS A "MINOR EXCOMMUNICATION"

The Bishop's action against Mr. Bunting is what is known as "minor excommunication." Major excommunication, which requires a sentence pronounced by a judge, is not nowadays practised in the Church of England.

Under a sentence of excommunication, against which an appeal would lie to the King, an offender would not only be denied all intercourse with other members of the church, but would be refused the rite of burial in consecrated ground.

There is no such intention behind the step taken by Dr. Bell, which is merely the disciplinary action provided for by rubric and is tantamount to suspension from church membership. A free church could take a similar course, but only after a vote by the responsible church officials.

The Bishop warns Mr. Bunting against presenting himself for Holy Communion. This phraseology serves to define his action, since it is warning against attendance and not a deprivation of the Sacrament. Only under a sentence of major excommunication can the Sacrament legally be withheld from a Church member.

MADE A LINER HIS HOME

MAJOR OBLIGED TO FIND NEW SHIP

Life Sailing To And From Australia

Plymouth, Aug. 1.

MAJOR W. E. Long, formerly of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars, who nearly a year ago decided to spend his years of retirement travelling in a liner between Britain and Australia, has had to find a new home.

The liner, the P. and O. Barrabool, is to be withdrawn from service and broken up.

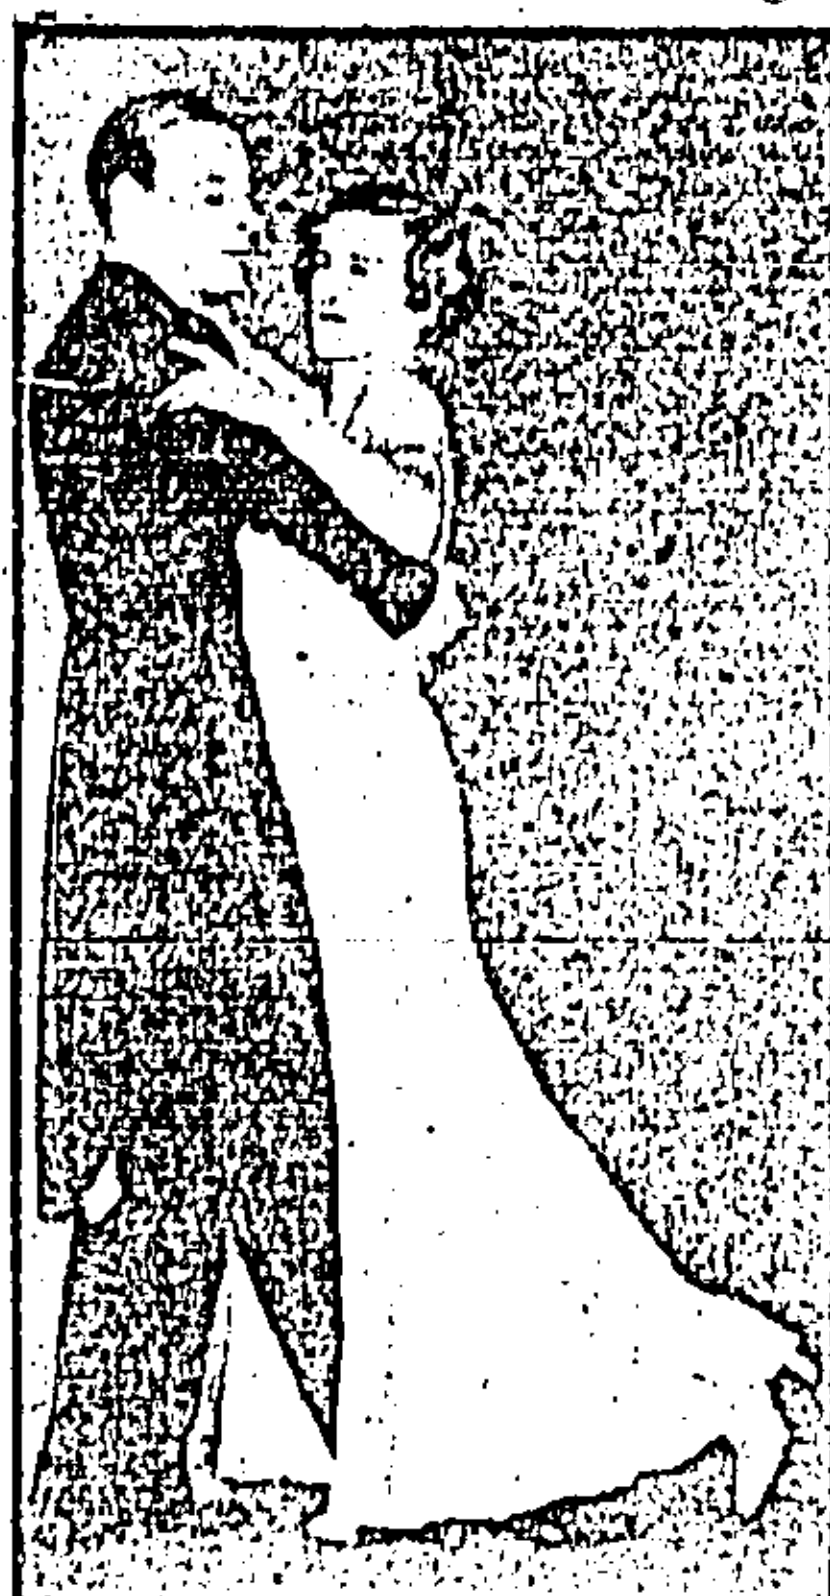

Last August, when he left London in the Barrabool, Major Long said:

"I have decided that this ship shall henceforth be my home. I think it is pathetic to see the number of retired men who spend their lives in stagnation. This is by far the most enjoyable kind of life."

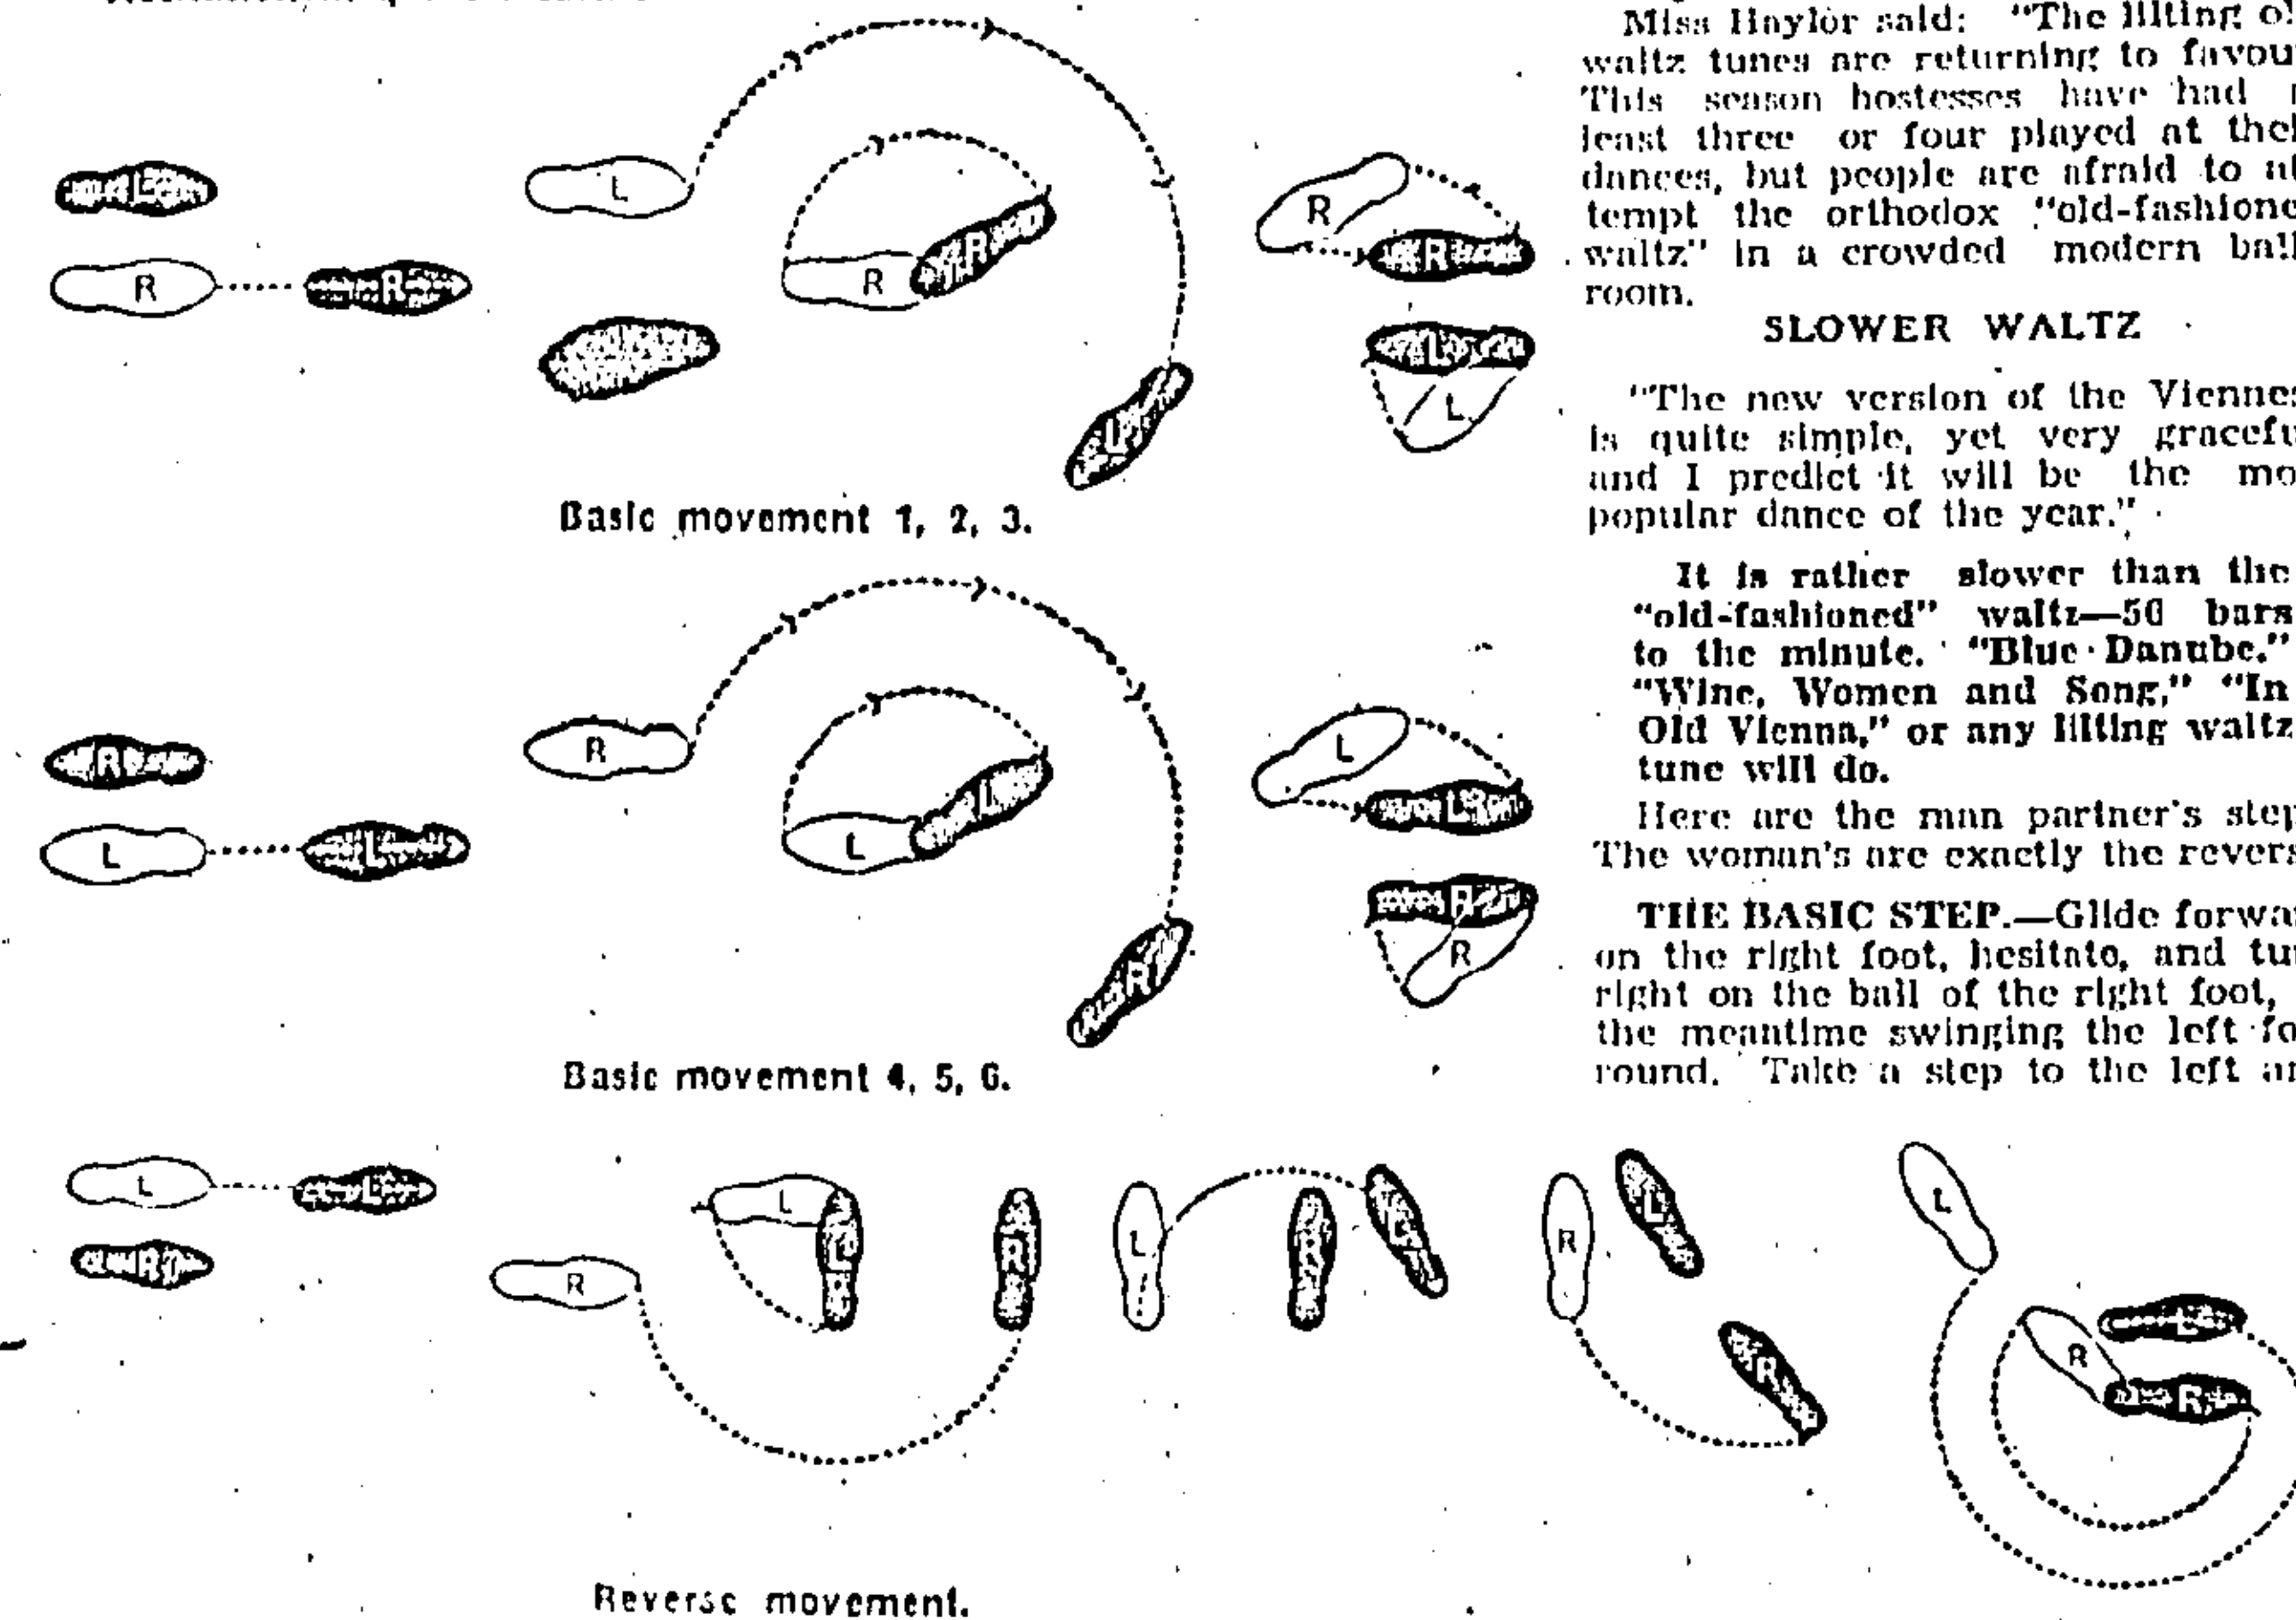

He arranged to have the same cabin for three consecutive trips, and furnished it with his own pictures, bureau and chairs.

Major Long said last week: "I am not worrying, although I shall miss the ship. I have already made arrangements for a new home, and I shall move my belongings to the liner Mongolia."

"The Mongolia leaves London for Australia on Aug. 7, and I shall live on board until I die or she is broken up."

Hesitation in quarter turns.

COMMONS DEBATE OTTAWA

COLONIES AND THE "OPEN DOOR"

By A Parliamentary Correspondent

DO the Ottawa agreements—one of the first results of the Protectionist policy of the Government—stand in the way of a fair distribution of raw materials and the prospects of world peace?

This question was raised by Liberals in the House of Commons recently and drew an indignant denial from Mr. Ormsby Gore (Colonial Secretary).

After Mr. J. A. de Rothschild (Lib., Isle of Ely) had stressed the importance of the open door, and Mr. D. O. Evans (Lib., Cardigan) had recalled that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain when Colonial Secretary had insisted that our colonies offered "the same open field to foreigners as to our own subjects and on the same terms."

Mr. Ormsby Gore surprised the House by asserting that the question of the open door in the Empire was raised only by "the old Cobdenite group."

NO CHECK ON RAW MATERIALS

He was amazed, he protested, at the suggestion that there was anything in our colonial policy which interfered with the free supply of raw materials to Germany or any other foreign country.

He claimed that the "narrow economic nationalism" of other countries was to blame. The whole difficulty of our colonies was to find markets for their produce because other countries imposed quotas, tariffs and other restrictions on everything we wished to sell them.

Then, he said, was the only colonial product subject to any export restriction. With that single exception Germany, or any other country, could buy as freely as we could. Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Liberal leader, protested at once against the Minister's reference to the "old Cobdenite group," and pointed out that Mr. Morgan Jones, earlier in the debate, had stressed, on behalf of Labour, the importance of the open door in the interests of peace.

RESTRICTIONS BY OTHER COUNTRIES

Mr. Ormsby Gore interrupted to claim that it was not British colonies but those of other countries which had imposed restrictions on exports.

Sir Archibald agreed that other countries must share the blame with us, but this did not satisfy the Minister. He jumped up again to ask

OLD STYLE WALTZ UP TO DATE

This is a pre-view for "Telegraph" readers of a dance that professionals from all over the British Isles are teaching in London this month.

By A Special Correspondent

GRACE is returning to the ballroom. The dancer that shocked our grandmothers ("actually, held in a man's arms, my dear") is returning in a new guise.

The Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing has determined to launch a dance which will combine

All the grace and gaiety of Old Vienna with the technique and smoothness of modern "bucket-handkerchief" ballroom dancing.

It is called the "New Viennese Waltz." Phyllis Hayler and Charles Scrimshaw, famous professional dancers of the Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, demonstrated it to me recently.

Miss Hayler said: "The lifting old waltz tunes are returning to favour. This season hostesses have had at least three or four played at their dances, but people are afraid to attempt the orthodox 'old-fashioned waltz' in a crowded modern ballroom."

SLOWER WALTZ

"The new version of the Viennese is quite simple, yet very graceful, and I predict it will be the most popular dance of the year."

It is rather slower than the "old-fashioned" waltz—58 bars to the minute. "Blue Danube," "Wine, Women and Song," "Old Vienna," or any lifting waltz tune will do.

This is repeated several times. Through the movement the man does not move his feet. He stands with crossed feet, swaying slightly to his partner's movements.

Gaol And Fine For Not Flying Church Flag

FATHER Alois Eckert, a priest, was sentenced at Frankfurt to three months' imprisonment and a fine of £80 for not flying the Swastika flag on his church when the 12th anniversary of Herr Hitler's unsuccessful Munich putsch was celebrated.

The King's First Parliament: November

King Edward will open his first Parliament in state in November. According to present plans, it is intended to adjourn Parliament on July 31, and resume on October 27.

The new session will be opened some time in November. Because the King is a bachelor, the setting of the House of Lords—where the Royal opening takes place—has been altered. There is only one throne on the gilded and crimson dais, instead of two, and the ornate chair on which the Prince of Wales used to sit has been taken away.

The King will read a speech from the Throne outlining the Government's programme for the new session. Before he does so, as this will be his first appearance before "the Lords and faithful Commons, in Parliament assembled," he will take an oath of loyalty and determination to carry out the duties of his office.

ONE of the most pleasing things about 'MANSION' is the quickness with which it gives such a brilliant polish. It has reduced the need of rubbing to a minimum—in a few seconds a hard, lasting brilliance to floors and furniture is obtained. And as it gives its beautiful finish 'MANSION' leaves a fresh, clean, germ-free surface that means a brighter and healthier home.

Juvenile depravity is mother fixation. Crime is misdirected self-expression, or else the reaction of repressions. A lady deputy prison governor, exulting in the fact that she is now running evening dancing classes for the women prisoners, assures us that prison is no longer "regarded" as a jail, but as "a hospital."

Examples of this curious modern tendency to call a shaven an agricultural implement might be extended to weary lengths. But the tendency is one that calls for serious reflection by thoughtful people. Never before in human history has there been a more subtle meaning imparted to Edmund Burke's rhetorical exclamation, "What shadows we are and what shadows we pursue!"

Wrong Party Sued WAGES CLAIM DISMISSED

An error in the wording of a writ was responsible for the dismissal of an action by the Chief Justice, Sir Athol Macgregor, in the Summary Court this morning.

The action in question was the one in which Yip Ah-may, formerly of Hongkong, sued Yip Kuan, alias Yip Hin-ye, as manager of the Kwong Tung boarding house for $400, being wages and bonus. After hearing the evidence, His Lordship held that the action should have been brought against the concern and not the defendant, and dismissed the case.

The plaintiff, who was not legally represented, said he first saw the defendant in April last year when he asked him for free lodging for a few days. The request was acceded to, and shortly after the defendant asked him to enter his employment at a salary of $30 a month. He agreed and worked until May this year, but during all this time he received only $25. The reason for this was that the defendant had told him he was saving the salary for him in Samsa. His work included dealing in English correspondence, looking after the transport of luggage and obtaining passports for the guests.

Sometime in May this year, he obtained a passport for a guest of another boarding house. The defendant came to hear of this and became very angry. He abused him for a day and a night, and asked him to leave.

LIVED ON TIPS

In reply to His Lordship, the plaintiff said that during the time of his employment he lived on tips given him by the guests and on money sent by his father in Hongkong. Cross-examined by Mr. C. Y. Kwan, for the defence, the plaintiff said the defendant was an old friend of his father. The defendant had had much trouble with the Urban Council, and consequently he had to deal with a lot of English correspondence. He denied that he was ungrateful or had done anything improper, and maintained that the defendant had promised him a salary for his work.

In regard to the bonus, he understood it was the practice of the business to share half the profit among its employees. He did not know that the concern had been losing money for the past two years.

The defendant, in the witness box, testified that the plaintiff had never asked him to have free meals in the boarding house because his father was an old friend of his.

Witness then went on to say that he was a partner of the business and not the sole proprietor, whereupon His Lordship asked him to produce proof. The defendant replied that he had not the partnership book with him, and the Court then adjourned for half an hour for him to produce it.

Subsequently the defendant returned with the book which showed that the capital of the concern was $20,000, subscribed by about ten persons, all of whom were in Hongkong. He failed, however, to produce proof to show that he had written letters to the partners telling them of the position of the business.

EVASIVE REPLIES

On several occasions, the witness was reprimanded for failing to give direct answers to questions. In this respect, His Lordship remarked: "I have seldom seen a more unsatisfactory witness. I have been wasting half an hour trying to get you to answer half a dozen of the most simple questions." His Lordship said: "On the evidence the action is clearly against the boarding house and not the defendant, and the case therefore must be dismissed. I should have dismissed it with costs but in view of the way the defendant had given his evidence after repeated warnings, I would make no such order."

FOREIGNERS NOT RECOGNISED DESTITUATES SENT TO "HOUSE"

Appearing on remand before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning, two destitute foreigners, Schin Fogel, 29, unemployed, from Benshin, Posen, Germany, and Aaron Bardach, 23, unemployed, from Katowitz, Poland, were committed to the House of Detention, until arrangements could be made for an expulsion order.

Sergeant Russell said that he had been asked to recognise the two accused as their respective subjects, as they had no proof whatsoever to show that they were born in Germany or in Poland. Consequently, an expulsion order could not be made, as they could not send the accused out of the Colony without passports.

Speaking for themselves, the two men said that since they were not recognised as the subjects of the countries they claim to be, it was impossible for them to obtain passports.

Replying to a question from Mr. Balfour, Sergeant Russell said the only way for the defendants to get out of the Colony, was to obtain help from the Government. They were accordingly committed to the House of Detention.

ART EXHIBITIONS

H.K. WORKING ARTISTS' GUILD DISPLAY

A display of the work of members of the Hongkong Working Artists' Guild is now on view at their Permanent Show Room on the first floor of Gloucester Building. It includes oil-paintings and water-colours by Messrs. Luis Chan, Lee Byng, and Pui Siu-yau (a Chinese traditional artist), portraiture in oils and pencil etc. by Mrs. A. N. Macfadyen and others.

From August 20 a representative exhibition of the Guild will be held. In the meantime, the public is invited to inspect the display, a portion of the entries of which are for sale at moderate prices.

Scroll Paintings

There is still an opportunity for those interested in Chinese paintings to visit the exhibition of scroll paintings by the Chinese Fine Arts Club on the top floor of China Buildings. The club held an exhibition of its pictures in Gloucester Building last week which attracted much attention in art circles.

In the scroll paintings the individuality of each artist is further enhanced. Mr. Ip Shiu-ping's paintings of birds and flowers have impressed a number of art lovers, and the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall has placed an order for four pictures by this artist.

The last day of the exhibition is Sunday.

HISTORIC SITES' PRESERVATION

The usual monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association took place on Monday evening in St. Andrew's Church Hall, Kowloon.

Those present were: Mr. D. Wylie (President), Mr. F. C. Mow Fung (Vice-President), Mr. R. P. Phillips (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. R. Baldwin (Hon. Secretary), Messrs. Lam Ming-tai, W. C. Fung, F. H. Loeb, C. E. Terry, H. Gittins, J. M. Alves, R. Pestonji and Mrs. E. W. Garner. The Hon. Secretary being delayed by a professional engagement, at the request of the Chairman, his duties were undertaken by Mr. C. E. Terry. Apologies for absence were received from Messrs. Li Chor-chi, L. D'Almeida e Castro, Jr., and A. Cheung.

INSANITARY SPOT

A lengthy report was submitted by the Markets and Sanitation Sub-Committee on conditions in the recently developed area adjacent to Kowloon City. It was stated that insanitary conditions existed in this locality because of the defective drainage, the dirty and insanitary conditions of the numerous squatters' huts, the obnoxious cultivation of vegetables on land adjacent to residences and the accumulation of stagnant water due to building development without adequate provision for contingent drainage.

It was decided that the report form the basis of a letter to be sent to Government making complaint and asking for the abatement of these insanitary and unhealthy conditions.

It was also decided to ask Government why no enquiry had been held following a drowning fatality held due to one of the pools in the area under discussion.

A report from the Membership Sub-Committee made several recommendations with a view to interesting potential members, European and Chinese.

HISTORIC SITES

The Kowloon Historic Sites Sub-Committee reported that a visit to Sung Wong Toi, Hau Wong Temple and Kowloon Walled City had shown that the Association's recommendations for improvement had been carried out by Government. It was agreed to write to Government pressing appreciation and requesting that the two guns in the T'sing Dynasty be afforded a suitable mounting.

Arising from this report, the Sub-Committee was asked to draw up a list of places of historic interest in Kowloon for submission to the Hongkong Travel Association with a view to its inclusion in their literature. A sub-committee was appointed to investigate and report on the condition of road surfacing in Central Kowloon.

SCHOOL FACILITIES

The question of utilising the old Central British School building for the Kowloon Junior School was discussed and it was agreed to seek information regarding:

- Number of pupils at present at Kowloon Junior School.
- Number of pupils per class.
- Number of pupils refused or postponed admittance during the year, and reasons.
- Whether the accommodation at this school is considered adequate for present and future needs.

It was further agreed that the Association write to Government asking its intention regarding the disposal of the old Central British School.

It was also agreed to write Government asking that the lay-out of seats, plots, etc., in Chatham Road be ex-

IMPORTANT TO LIVER SUFFERERS

By Dr. Quignon of the Faculty of Medicine, Paris

Just now I am kept very busy by an epidemic of "liver" disorders—a great many people feeling "out of sorts," bilious, depressed and unable to enjoy their food. Undoubtedly the best remedy for an upset liver is provided by certain famous Continental Mineral Springs, but science has now made it possible for all liver sufferers to enjoy in their homes, all the benefits of Continent Spa treatment, at little cost. By reproducing in crystalline form the essential principles of seven world renowned Spas, including those at Vichy, Carlsbad, Aix-les-Bains and Marienbad, "Alka Salutes" provides what is probably the finest liver tonic and corrective known. It is obtainable from all high class Dispensaries and Stores.

To men and women who are feeling liverish and "out of sorts," and to those who are suffering from rheumatism, Lumbago, Kidney trouble and high blood pressure I can recommend "Alka Salutes" with confidence and I advise them to start the treatment without delay.

FRANCO-ITALIAN AGREEMENT

Rome, Aug. 11. An agreement has been signed between the French Ambassador and the Italian Foreign Minister for the resumption of trade exchanges, following the removal of sanctions between France and Italy. A special clause in the agreement provides for the gradual liquidation of Italian commercial debts to France of about 300,000,000 francs. — Reuters' Bulletin Service.

It was further agreed that the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Kowloon, be interviewed concerning European police supervision to prevent the misuse of the seats, etc., by coolies, and to stop objectionable practices prevalent after dark.

BRITAIN'S NEW CRITICS

As one looks over the international situation to-day, it would seem that the dictators are having all the diplomatic triumphs. Against their recent successes, the main pillars of the League of Nations have little to show except a melancholy record of misfortune, mistakes and dissensions. It is not surprising, therefore, that critics of the British Government—a Government which tried might and main to support the rights of the victims of aggression—should now come forward and reproach it for a policy which, even after the decision to remove sanctions was made, is said likely to antagonise Italy. It is suggested by these people that British policy has been the means of throwing Germany and Italy into each other's arms, and has made it more difficult for Italy to co-operate within the framework of the League in efforts to strengthen European security. These critics present the usual spectacle of wisdom after the event. They have apparently ceased to view the Ethiopian affair from the point of view of its rights and wrongs, and its connective responsibilities, and would have Britain bow down incontinently before the Duce and the accomplished facts, even to the point of recognising the annexation of Ethiopia. They have, in fact, become worshippers of success as success, now matter how it is attained. Might seems to them to be the only right. And yet some of these self-same critics were, not long since, loud in protesting that Ethiopia must be saved from the aggressor at all costs. As we look back on all that has occurred during the past six months, marked by situations without military or diplomatic precedent, it is difficult to escape the conviction that the British Government would have been charged in some quarters with bungling and indecision, or indiscretion, whatever line it took. So far as the perpetuation of sanctions is concerned, it is clear that Britain reluctantly fell in with the viewpoint of other Powers, for the very simple reason that none were prepared to support her in the matter. But it surely cannot now be argued that because of that circumstance Britain should shake hands with the aggressor as if nothing whatever had happened. To worship success and condone actions for which there never was any real justification may appeal to a minority, but that is not, and never has been, the British way.

1. Is your child happy? 2. What is he going to be?

YOUR child's answers to the twenty questions set (this page, Monday) will provide clues to solve these two problems:—

1. How happy is he (or she)?
2. What career shall I consider for him?

How Happy Is He?

The child who is unhappy for some reason:—

1. Wants to be stronger, cleverer, better-looking, more popular; if a girl, often would prefer to be a boy;
2. Thinks that one has the best fun in life after twenty-five years of age;
3. Wants to be grown up;
4. Feels that grown-ups don't really understand children.

TO be more specific, the child may be unhappy because of: 1. A feeling that he is inferior in some respect; 2. Some difficulty in his relationship with his parents, his brothers and sisters, his teachers, his friends.

He may feel insecure and inferior because he is a weakling physically or has been led to consider himself as weak, does not like rough games, wants to be grown up and strong like Peter (the strong boy of the school), fancies himself in the first question as a boxer, a policeman, or some one whom he identifies with power.

The girl who feels inferior because of her appearance wants to be better looking, more popular like Mary, the prettiest girl in the school, fancies herself as a movie star, a princess, something glamorous. The child who is backward—whether through illness, faulty teaching or mental dullness—wants to be brighter in his studies, to go to a different school or no school, wants to be grown up; fancies himself as a detective, a doctor, an inventor or any one whom he identifies with knowledge and its prestige.

The shy child—who feels socially inferior—admits to few friends and wants hundreds; he wants to be grown up and to be popular; he is a day-dreamer.

IN question 1 (Which you like to be?), the child who feels inferior and unhappy often reveals the qualities he lacks by the heroes he chooses; the weakling wants to be a prize-

NOTES OF THE DAY

At the Olympic Games, sport is a genuinely serious thing. But the extent to which the Peruvian people have been aroused by the decision at Berlin to force them to play again a match they won from Austria is regrettable. Not that we cannot understand the bitterness of Peruvians, who believe they were the victims of unfair decisions both during and after the match; but we deplore such a demonstration as that reported from Lima, where mobs smashed the windows of the German Consulate, tore down the Olympic flag from a German factory and, at Callao, refused to work German vessels. These things rather disturb the contention that the Olympic Games are always beneficial to international relations.

The soccer match replay was ordered at Berlin because Peruvian supporters rushed on the field of play and attacked the Austrian players as a result of allegedly unjust decisions by the referee and unfair tactics by the Austrian footballers. Though Peru eventually won the match, it was the decision of the Olympic Committee that it should be played again. Peru has withdrawn from the Games, and is attempting to draw with it the fighter, the plain child a movie star, the shy child an actress or singer, and so on.

In question 2 (Which of these wishes do you want to come true?), the child begins to reveal in more detail the particular qualities that he is scornful about. To the child they are very real fears and may interfere vitally with the normal development of his personality and character.

TWO reactions are especially noteworthy because they are signals that the child needs your help.

They are bragging and day-dreaming. The bragger—usually a boy—considers himself very strong, very good looking, very popular, very bright; although his record obviously indicates that it cannot be true.

Tests show that talented children never boast about the particular gifts they possess. Bragging is a reaction—true, an aggressive and therefore a healthy reaction—to a sense of insecurity, to a fundamental lack of self-confidence.

The obvious remedy is to provide the child with opportunities for real achievements and success so that he does not need the false satisfaction of bragging. If he is physically backward, let him have boxing lessons; if his school work is too arduous, cut out a subject so that his remaining work may benefit.

A LESS healthy—because more passive—reaction to insecurity and fear of life is day-dreaming.

The day-dreamer has few friends, does not wish to grow up, prefers to remain a child; if anything to be younger than he actually is; for inferior to most things, sets few real satisfactions outside his fantasies, identifies himself readily with James the day-dreamer in question 18.

He is potentially a problem child; if not already a problem child.

His social contacts must be carefully chosen and gradually increased. SECOND to a sense of inferiority as a cause of unhappiness in the child is some difficulty in his relationship with others, his family, his teachers, his mates.

Question 2 (What three people would you take to a desert island with you?) gives an idea what people have the greatest emotional value for him. Leaving out a member of the family may suggest jealousy, resentment.

His attitude to his parents—over-attachment, the feeling that he is not loved, etc.—is further clarified by his answers to the questions: Do you wish to have other parents? Do you like Jack, who does not mind his father and his mother? The child will reveal these things by indirect questions when he would not admit them directly.

WHAT is worth while keeping in mind about the child of the age (eight to sixteen) for which this questionnaire is intended is that:—

1. He needs to belong to a group of companions of his own age;
2. School offers little terror for him if he feels that his teacher is fair to him;
3. He is at the age when children are most ready to co-operate with the work in the home and to learn to help themselves.

Consider His Career

It is too early to choose a career. But it is just the right time to note his bent and to allow his studies to follow that bent; be it science, languages, handicrafts, etc.

IN choosing a career, you must consider the child's (1) capacities, (2) interests, (3) opportunities.

Where the questionnaire helps in defining his interests.

His interests and his aims will suggest which of the three kinds of intelligence predominate: (a) abstract intelligence

(which enables him to deal with ideas), (b) mechanical intelligence which enables him to deal with things, and (c) social intelligence (which enables him to get on with people).

The choice of a career will be indicated by: 1. The quality of his abstract intelligence (whether superior, good, average, etc.); 2. Whether (b) or (c) predominates.

If he is interested in people and successful with them and his abstract intelligence is superior, he will make a teacher, preacher, politician, physician, lawyer, publicity expert, etc. With good intelligence, a salesman, receptionist, nurse, reporter, shop-assistant, waitress, bus-conductor, etc.

If he is mechanically minded and of superior abstract intelligence, he will make an engineer, inventor, chemist, scientist, agriculturist, etc. With good intelligence, a fitter, mechanic, craftsman, chauffeur, domestic servant, etc.

With superior intelligence that is predominantly abstract, he will make an architect, accountant, editor, a director of scientific research. With good intelligence, a secretary, clerk, typist, etc.

Certain careers—such as music, sports master, etc.—should, naturally, only be encouraged if the child has definitely from an early age a very special gift.

By AN OLD STAGER

Somehow he has scraped together enough money to buy, with the help of some society, a small plot of land in a pleasant semi-rural suburb. There he is slowly but surely building himself a new home. After his day's work is done, he puts in what time he can on the job. At week-ends he takes his family out there to picnic in a discarded bus that he bought for an old song.

Whilst his wife cooks the meals, the youngsters help father to build their new home. In my view that sort of reality is infinitely better, both for that family and the community, than any thrills of film illusion.

Vain Pretences

Though a prodigious one, the film illusion is not the only symptom. The factory girls' lipstick, dyed fingertips, high heels, and imitation silk gown are all illusions. She is merely aping the ugliness of a class of society to which she does not belong, and which is far less lucid, if only she realised the fact, than her own might be were all its opportunities fully seized.

Equally illusory are the really fashionable dame's cosmetics, faceliftings, and other vain pretences. She is trying, at great expense and travail, to look what she is not. She would probably appear far more attractive as what she actually is, and incidentally have a much better time.

And having a good time, which frequently is the sole ambition of such people, is itself a soul-destroying illusion. It is one of the great secrets of life that people intent on a good time always have a bad one, whereas those engrossed in some useful occupation generally have a good time without effort.

These are minor evidences of the passion for sheer delusion. We can discover plenty of major ones. Halle Selassie could tell us that the League of Nations is an elaborate illusion.

This is because the righteous devotion of European statesmen to the cause of international peace and the sanctity of pledges lacked the grim realism of Mussolini's ambition to found a new Roman Empire. Whilst the rest of Europe played a game of let's pretend, his lions were jagged, snarling and gassing primitive tribes into submission.

"Letting On"

Mark Twain, like all great humorists a keen student of human nature, invented the artifice of "letting on." When Tom Sawyer found anything in his romantic plans beyond achievement, he "let on" that the thing had been done as arranged instead of doing it. One may perhaps conjecture that Twain had read his "Tom Sawyer" to some purpose.

A monumental object lesson in "letting on" was America's prohibition law. At one blow Americans salved their conscience and slaked their thirst. But that illusion was less dangerous than our post-war peace illusion.

How many citizens could recite all the peace pacts, treaties, and pledges signed and sealed by all the Great Powers since the war? I confess I could not name one half. Yet we all knew, in our hearts, that these were all fudge. The nations were just "letting on."

The very redundancy and overlapping of these peace pacts betrayed how little real faith anybody had in them. We alone took the make-believe with apparent sincerity, and disarmed to such a pitch that, when stark reality put its hoof right through all the benevolent protocols, we found ourselves impotent to stand up to the realists.

It is much the same with other projects. We decide to raise the school age, and insert a proviso that nullifies the decision. We "let on" we are doing something we are really not doing at all. What else but this narcotic cult of illusion is behind the renaming of our workhouses and asylums? We call them something else and "let on" they no longer exist.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH LEARNS TO BE A QUEEN

The King, Queen Mary, and Cabinet Plan Her Education

TO HAVE PRIVATE TUTORS LITTLE TOMBOY NOW STUDIOUS

PRINCESS ELIZABETH, third lady in the land, now 10 years old, is to be educated privately—to prepare her for the day when she may be Queen.

Originally, the Duchess of York had expressed a wish that her elder daughter should go to a girls' school and enjoy the normal companionship of girls of her own age.

But after a discussion between King Edward, Queen Mary, the Duke of York and members of the Cabinet it has been decided to substitute a more formal plan of education.

British Princesses have always received private education, and the little Princess, it was felt, might be embarrassed by her rank if she mixed with other children at school.

So, like Queen Victoria, Princess Elizabeth is to be entrusted to tutors and a governess.

Tutors for special subjects are shortly to be engaged.

ONCE A TOMBOY

The Royal Princesses have both made excellent progress with their governess, Miss Marion Crawford, a former pupil of the High School of Danfermline. She will continue to instruct Princess Elizabeth in history and English literature.

Princess Elizabeth will still entertain her little friends regularly in the miniature house presented to her by the people of Wales.

As a small child, Princess Elizabeth and her two brothers, Prince Edward and Prince George, were called for her toys than her lessons. She is now definitely studious.

Princess Elizabeth thinks about her lessons long after she has locked the study books in her desk. Often she discusses with Queen Mary and King Edward various phases of history which have intrigued her.

She keeps a scrapbook of other Royal children in Europe with notes as to the relationship these children bear to her.

History is her favourite subject, with geography second, then French, and lastly arithmetic, a subject which brought an expression of impatience to her face when she was younger.

Scottish poems fascinate her. She can also sing and recite in French. From her mother she inherits musical ability, and can play simple tunes on her miniature piano. Her singing voice is pure and sweet.

She reads a lot, her best-loved book being Black Beauty.

TALKS IN FRENCH

By the suggestion of her grandmother, Queen Mary, she is told of the towns and castles famed in English history, and is also taken to see them in their proper background. Recently she visited Hampton Court to view the portraits of the Tudor Kings and Queens.

At private family gatherings her parents encourage her to lead an all-French conversation.

She cultivates her own garden at Royal Lodge.

Making Roads Safer

BIG SCHEMES OF RECONSTRUCTION

London, Aug. 11. The Kingston-by-pass nine mile stretch on the London-Purton road, one of the first of the great by-passes to be constructed on roads out of London since the war, is to be reconstructed. The road, which cost £400,000 and took four years to build, has since it came into use in 1927, acquired a bad reputation for accidents.

The proposal is to reconstruct it with a dual carriageway, separated by a central reserve. Lighting will also be improved. The work, which will begin on the two miles section west of Surbiton, will be put in hand immediately.

The great increase of traffic has necessitated the rebuilding of a number of comparatively new roads, and dual carriage-ways are a growing feature of these reconstructions. The number has grown so rapidly that the Ministry of Transport is issuing special regulations regarding their use, in order to secure uniform observance of one-way working of each of the two carriage-ways.

The recent decision of the Government to place trunk roads under the central authority of the Ministry of Transport will facilitate measures of modernisation such as the plan for the Kingston-by-pass. The urgency of the matter is emphasised by the number of new motor vehicles registered each month. The figures for June, at 38,536, were more than 6,000 in excess of June last year.—British Wireless.

VETERINARY COLLEGE HEAD

London, Aug. 11. Mr. J. Basil Buxton, Professor of Animal Pathology at Cambridge, has been appointed to succeed Sir Frederick Hobday as Principal of the Royal Veterinary College on the latter's retirement, which will take place after the completion of the main block of the new College buildings. From the end of September, Professor Buxton will take up duties as Acting Principal.—British Wireless.

CRUELTY TO CHICKENS HOUSEBOY FINED AT KOWLOON

A charge of cruelty to 21 chickens, by carrying them in such a manner in a cage of such construction as to cause them unnecessary suffering, was preferred against Tse Kan, aged 19, houseboy, when he appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning. Defendant was arrested in Waterloo Road near Dundas Street.

Sergeant H. Green, prosecuting, said that the basket in which the chickens were kept had no matting, and the legs of the birds were all injured and bleeding.

Defendant pleaded that he had only recently arrived in the Colony and was not paid for his work.

The Magistrate imposed a fine of $5 on defendant.

It is learned in a dependable quarter that the Italian reservation to her acceptance of the principle of the neutrality proposals are that financial support for Spain should be prevented and exports of materials prohibited, and that volunteers should not be allowed to go to fight for either side.—Reuter.

Decision Awaited

Shanghai, Aug. 12. China's hope of averting a costly civil war, which, by guerrilla tactics the Kuomintang troops might prolong for months, rests with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and whatever influence his presence in Canton may exert.

After attempting every method provided by traditional formula to settle domestic disputes, troops movements, circular telegrams and police negotiation, Marshal Chiang, accompanied by Madame Chiang, boarded a private plane at Kuikung, below Kuling, and flew to Canton, seat of Nanking's resuscitated authority in the South-west.

While growing corps of administrators and party officials hasten to reorganise Kwangtung, Marshal Chiang's driving energy will be devoted to assisting the National Government's authority against truculent and belligerent Kwangsi.

Among those who will work with Marshal Chiang in Canton is Mr. W. R. Donald, veteran Australian observer of the Chinese political scene and close friend and counsellor of Chinese political leaders for thirty years, and who for the past three years has been a virtual member of Marshal Chiang's household.

Will Need Time

Yesterday, the Japanese Shanghai Mainichi predicted that the settlement of the Kwangsi trouble would take a long time, but observed it was inevitable that "this province will sooner or later become another Kwangtung."

The paper believes Kwangsi must submit to Nanking's authority.

The paper asks whether Shanghai will follow suit. "Chiang Kai-shek's only fear is that General Han Fuchen may turn pro-Japanese," the Mainichi declares.

According to Japanese correspondents, Marshal Chiang has ordered five additional divisions to proceed to the West and North River areas, bordering Kwangsi, thus necessitating temporary suspension of other traffic on the Canton-Hankow Railway for the second time in two months.—United Press.

Held for Questioning

Canton, Aug. 12. Chinese morning papers state that Mr. Feng Ju, director of the Kwangtung Agricultural Bureau, who recently came into the limelight as a peace delegate to Nanking and who is now detained at the Gendarmerie Headquarters here, is held for questioning in connection with accounts of his Bureau.

He has been head of this department for nearly five years.

He will also be questioned about the smuggling of opium on a gigantic scale during General Chan Chi-tong's regime.

It is reliably stated that the Government contemplates appointing Mr. Lin Tao-yang, Agricultural Director at Nanking, to succeed Mr. Feng in Kwangtung.—Reuter.

NO RADIO LICENCE VISITOR GETS OFF LIGHTLY

Mitigating circumstances caused a merely nominal fine of $10 to be inflicted on Esther Banc, a young newcomer from the United States, who pleaded guilty at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning to owning a radio set without a licence on July 20. She pleaded that she had just recently come from America, where a licence was not necessary.

It was stated that on June 27 information was received that spare parts had been bought for a radio installed on the third floor of 753 Nathan Road. It was discovered that it had no licence and on July 20 a visit was paid. The next day Miss Banc took out a licence.

The Magistrate, Mr. F. H. Himsforth, remarked that he did not think that there had been any attempt to defraud the Revenue Department and accordingly imposed a small fine.

In another case, P. H. Smith, 288 Prince Edward Road, summoned for not having a licence for his radio on July 20, sent a letter to the Magistrate, explaining that he was unable to appear. An adjournment was made until Tuesday.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

A FRIEND YOU HAVE TO BUY WON'T BE WORTH WHAT YOU PAY FOR HIM, NO MATTER WHAT THAT MAY BE.—G. D. Proulx.

Wing Commander A. G. Bishop will be leaving Hongkong by the Imperial Airways liner Dorado on Friday for Penang en route to Malaya, where he will join his wife and stay for a month's holiday.

Mr. R. Forbes, advertising agent, residing at Kai Tak, admitted to the General Civil Hospital yesterday, suffering from concussion, caused when he accidentally fell down the stairs at the Hongkong Fish Store, Dea Voex Road Central. His condition is reported to be fair.

With three previous returns from other banishments against him, Cheung Yau, 32-year-old deportee, was sentenced to three months' hard labour when he appeared before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning. His latest banishment, for 10 years, was imposed on June 10 of this year. Subsequent, E. Rogers prosecuted.

Sentence of two months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, on Tsui Tsui, who appeared on remand on a charge of larceny of $10 from Choi Wun-nam, shopkeeper, at Morrison Street on Monday. Sergeant J. S. Ebbell said defendant carried on his own work at an address in Shanghai Street, where he was living with his wife and family.

An application for the confiscation of 199 rounds of ammunition found by a Chinese constable in Stubbs Road near the Vamchal Gap was made by Sergeant Hill before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning. The constable, Yeung Sik-yin, stated he found 201 rounds of ammunition in a pit near Stubbs Road on August 6. Sergeant Hill said he checked up the ammunition and found 119 rounds of .385 rifle ammunition, and 80 rounds of .22 rifle ammunition. Mr. Schofield ordered confiscation.

Wong Se, 25, was given one month's hard labour by Mr. S. F. Balfour this morning, on a charge of having obtained goods by false pretences from a shop in Bonham Road Central. It appears that the defendant was employed by the Tai Kwong Press Co. where he was usually sent to a Chinese comrade in Bonham Road to obtain goods for the Company. Owing to inefficiency, he was dismissed from the firm, and, on leaving, took with him the Company's pass-book, which enabled him to obtain credit on goods from the company. This he actually did, and went undetected till his fifth visit to the shop, where they had just received news, about the loss of the pass-book, and about the dismissal of the defendant.

Wong Yuk, aged 60, a widow, was charged with behaving in a noisy and disorderly manner in the chambers of the Yumati Police Station before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning. She tearfully said that all her money had been taken from her by the police. It was stated by Inspector R. Shannon that the woman had $1.61 in her possession when arrested, and she was fined $1 in Court. She had apparently upset her. He proposed that she be bound over. She had been quite a nuisance, and her behaviour had attracted large crowds around the Station. Defendant was bound over, and warned that if she created a noise again, she would be fined.

CLOSE RUN FOR LEAGUE PENNANT

CHICAGO DEFEATS ST. LOUIS CARDS

REDS DIVIDE HONOURS

New York, Aug. 11. Chicago at last succeeded in beating St. Louis, the League leaders whom the Cubs trail so closely, in a closely contested game to-day. The Cubs won by six to four, with twelve hits to ten, and a home run by Hack. Cubs had three and St. Louis two errors.

Pittsburgh and Cleveland split honours in a double-header, the Reds winning the night-cap seven to three, with seventeen hits to twelve, after Pittsburgh had made an effort to recover lost ground and had defeated Cincinnati six to three in the opener, when each had ten hits.

Boston beat the Phillies in ten innings, five to four, Burger whacking a home run for the Braves. Boston hit twelve and each bunched once in the field.

New York Giants kept plugging along, winning eight to three from Brooklyn, on fifteen hits to twelve. Dodgers had an error.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS hit thirteen, including a homer by Solters, and scored seven runs against Chicago's pair, made on three hits. Each had an error.

With twelve hits, and a homer from Gehrig, Detroit still could not beat Cleveland, with only ten hits, for Trosky and Kiekerbecker hit homers and boosted the Reds' tally to six runs.

Washington trimmed New York, seven to three, with only ten hits to eleven. Each had an error.

Philadelphia disappointed the home fans by letting Boston hit a dozen times and score six runs. The Athletics could only manage six hits and a lone run. Boston had two errors of the three.—Reuter.

PIERCE FIGHTING FOR KEY POINTS

troops from Morocco to assist the rebels.—Reuter, Special.

Sharp Engagement

Burgos, Aug. 11. A rebel column from Navarre has entered the outskirts of Tolosa and is engaged in fierce street fighting in an effort to occupy this town and thus cut communications with San Sebastian, eighteen miles north-east.

While there have been heavy casualties on both sides, the battle was still raging in mid-afternoon. The Loyalists, with machine-guns and rifles, were perched on balconies and roofs and kept up a running fire upon the rebel column of Fascists and Loyalists which pushed into the winding streets of the city.

The rebels are said to have finally formed flying squads and to have occupied houses on the outskirts of the city, converting them into miniature fortresses, from which they are firing heavily on the loyalist defenders.

It is to be noted that this attack represents a counter-offensive against the Government activities in the San Sebastian area and is entirely separate from the main northern and southern rebels drive against Madrid.

Loyal aviators from Madrid have bombed Arranda, sixty miles south of Burgos, and one bomb is said to have crashed through the roof of a house occupied by a woman and six children. However, the cat was the only casualty.—United Press.

UZZUDUN KILLED?

Bayonne, Aug. 12. The newspaper Courier publishes an unconfirmed report that Paulino Uzzudun, the so-called "Baque Wood-chopper," who won fame in the prize ring in America and Europe, has been killed in the fighting at San Sebastian.—United Press.

LIQUID FOOD

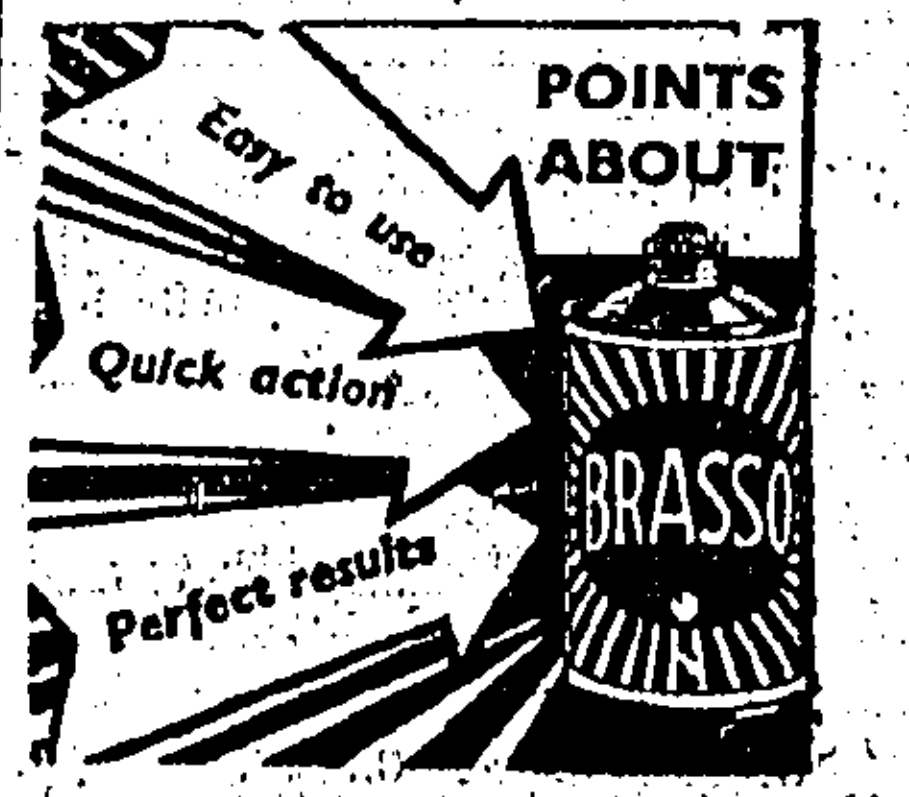

SUBSTITUTE FOR HEAVY MEALS

Summer diets are frequently too light to supply the energy needed for carrying out the daily routine while ordinary refreshing drinks so often have no food or tonic value. Food beverages fill this need. They may be taken cold or merely chilled, so that no feeling of heaviness or drowsiness is experienced.

It is not advisable to drink iced drinks if one is over-heated, as after violent exercise, unless such drinks are sipped slowly.

If your children turn away from even the most tempting tiffin and say they are not hungry, only thirsty, try them with a long glass of "Liquid Food". Make it even more tempting by allowing them to drink it through a straw and you will find that it is thoroughly enjoyed.

Actually if careful choice is made such a glass of Liquid Food, icy cold and refreshing, is a splendid substitute for solid food for faded appetites during the summer months.

HONGKONG-SHANGHAI TENNIS INTERPORT LIKELY

(By "Veritas")

HONGKONG Lawn Tennis Association last evening decided to extend an invitation to the Shanghai L.T.A. to send men's and ladies' teams to Hongkong for an Interport contest on or about October 10. This decision was reached when the Executive Committee met under the chairmanship of Mr. Ng Sze-kwong.

The Shanghai players are invited to come down here for the Double Tenth, but if this is not suitable, to arrive here in time for Armistice Day. It is suggested that the Interport takes the usual form, namely three singles and two doubles in both contests.

Pending Shanghai's reply, a meeting of the Interport Selection Committee will be held to issue a ranking list for 1935-36, and from such a list will be drawn Hongkong's team to play Shanghai.

Immediately Shanghai's reply is received, and if it is to accept Hongkong's invitation, the selection committee will meet to choose the Colony's teams, after which a series of practice matches will probably be arranged.

Shanghai last sent a tennis team to Hongkong in 1932. It was a men's combination, Shanghai being unable to send a ladies' team. The side was captained by John L. Wade, who has since retired from tennis of this nature, and Hongkong were beaten 3-2.

This contest also marked the debut in Interport tennis of Tsui Wai-pui, who beat Wade in three sets.

Hongkong was represented by S. A. Rumjahn, H. D. Rumjahn, E. C. Fincher, Tsui Wai-pui, M. K. Lo and M. W. Lo. Shanghai's players were Gordon Lum, Guy Cheng, J. L. Wade and Raoul Carnavaro, the latter having since turned professional.

When Hongkong sent two teams to Shanghai last year, they were decisively beaten, the men losing all five matches and the ladies failing by three matches to two.

Colony's teams that time were:—Men: Lee Wai-long, Tsui Wai-pui, Tsui Yun-pui, Ho Ka-lau and W. C. Hung. Ladies: Mrs. Nora Wilson, Miss R. Hancock, Miss M. Griffiths and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu.

RAIN COSTS CRICKET THOUSANDS OF POUNDS

ALL COUNTY CLUBS REPORT VERY HEAVY LOSSES

LAST MONTH'S COMPLETE WASH-OUT

COUNTY cricket is facing a financial crisis owing to the abnormal weather this summer.

In four matches last month—Northamptonshire v. Sussex, at Rushden; Lancashire v. Derbyshire, at Manchester; Warwickshire v. Gloucestershire, at Birmingham; and Yorkshire v. Nottinghamshire, at Bradford—not a ball could be bowled.

In the third three of these games no play was possible on the first day.

Northamptonshire were breaking new ground at Rushden, and the loss there cannot be estimated. Rain delayed the start of every other game on the last day except that at Yeovil between Somerset and Worcestershire.

TOTAL LOSSES £10,000

The following messages from Daily Mail correspondents indicate that the financial losses to the counties this season run into more than £10,000:—

Warwickshire.—On games already played there is a loss of £750 compared with the position at this time last year. Present indications are that there will be a deficit of about £2,000 at the end of the season.

Derbyshire's losses are estimated at nearly £2,000. Lancashire.—"We are about £1,000 down in our takings," the club's secretary told The Daily Mail. "We are hoping to recoup ourselves with the bank holiday fixture with Yorkshire."

Yorkshire estimates its losses due to rain at £2,000. "It is the worst season we have had for a long time," the secretary stated.

Worcestershire's loss to date is between £800 and £1,000. Five days' cricket has been completely washed out.

Leicestershire has lost about £1,000 in gate money.

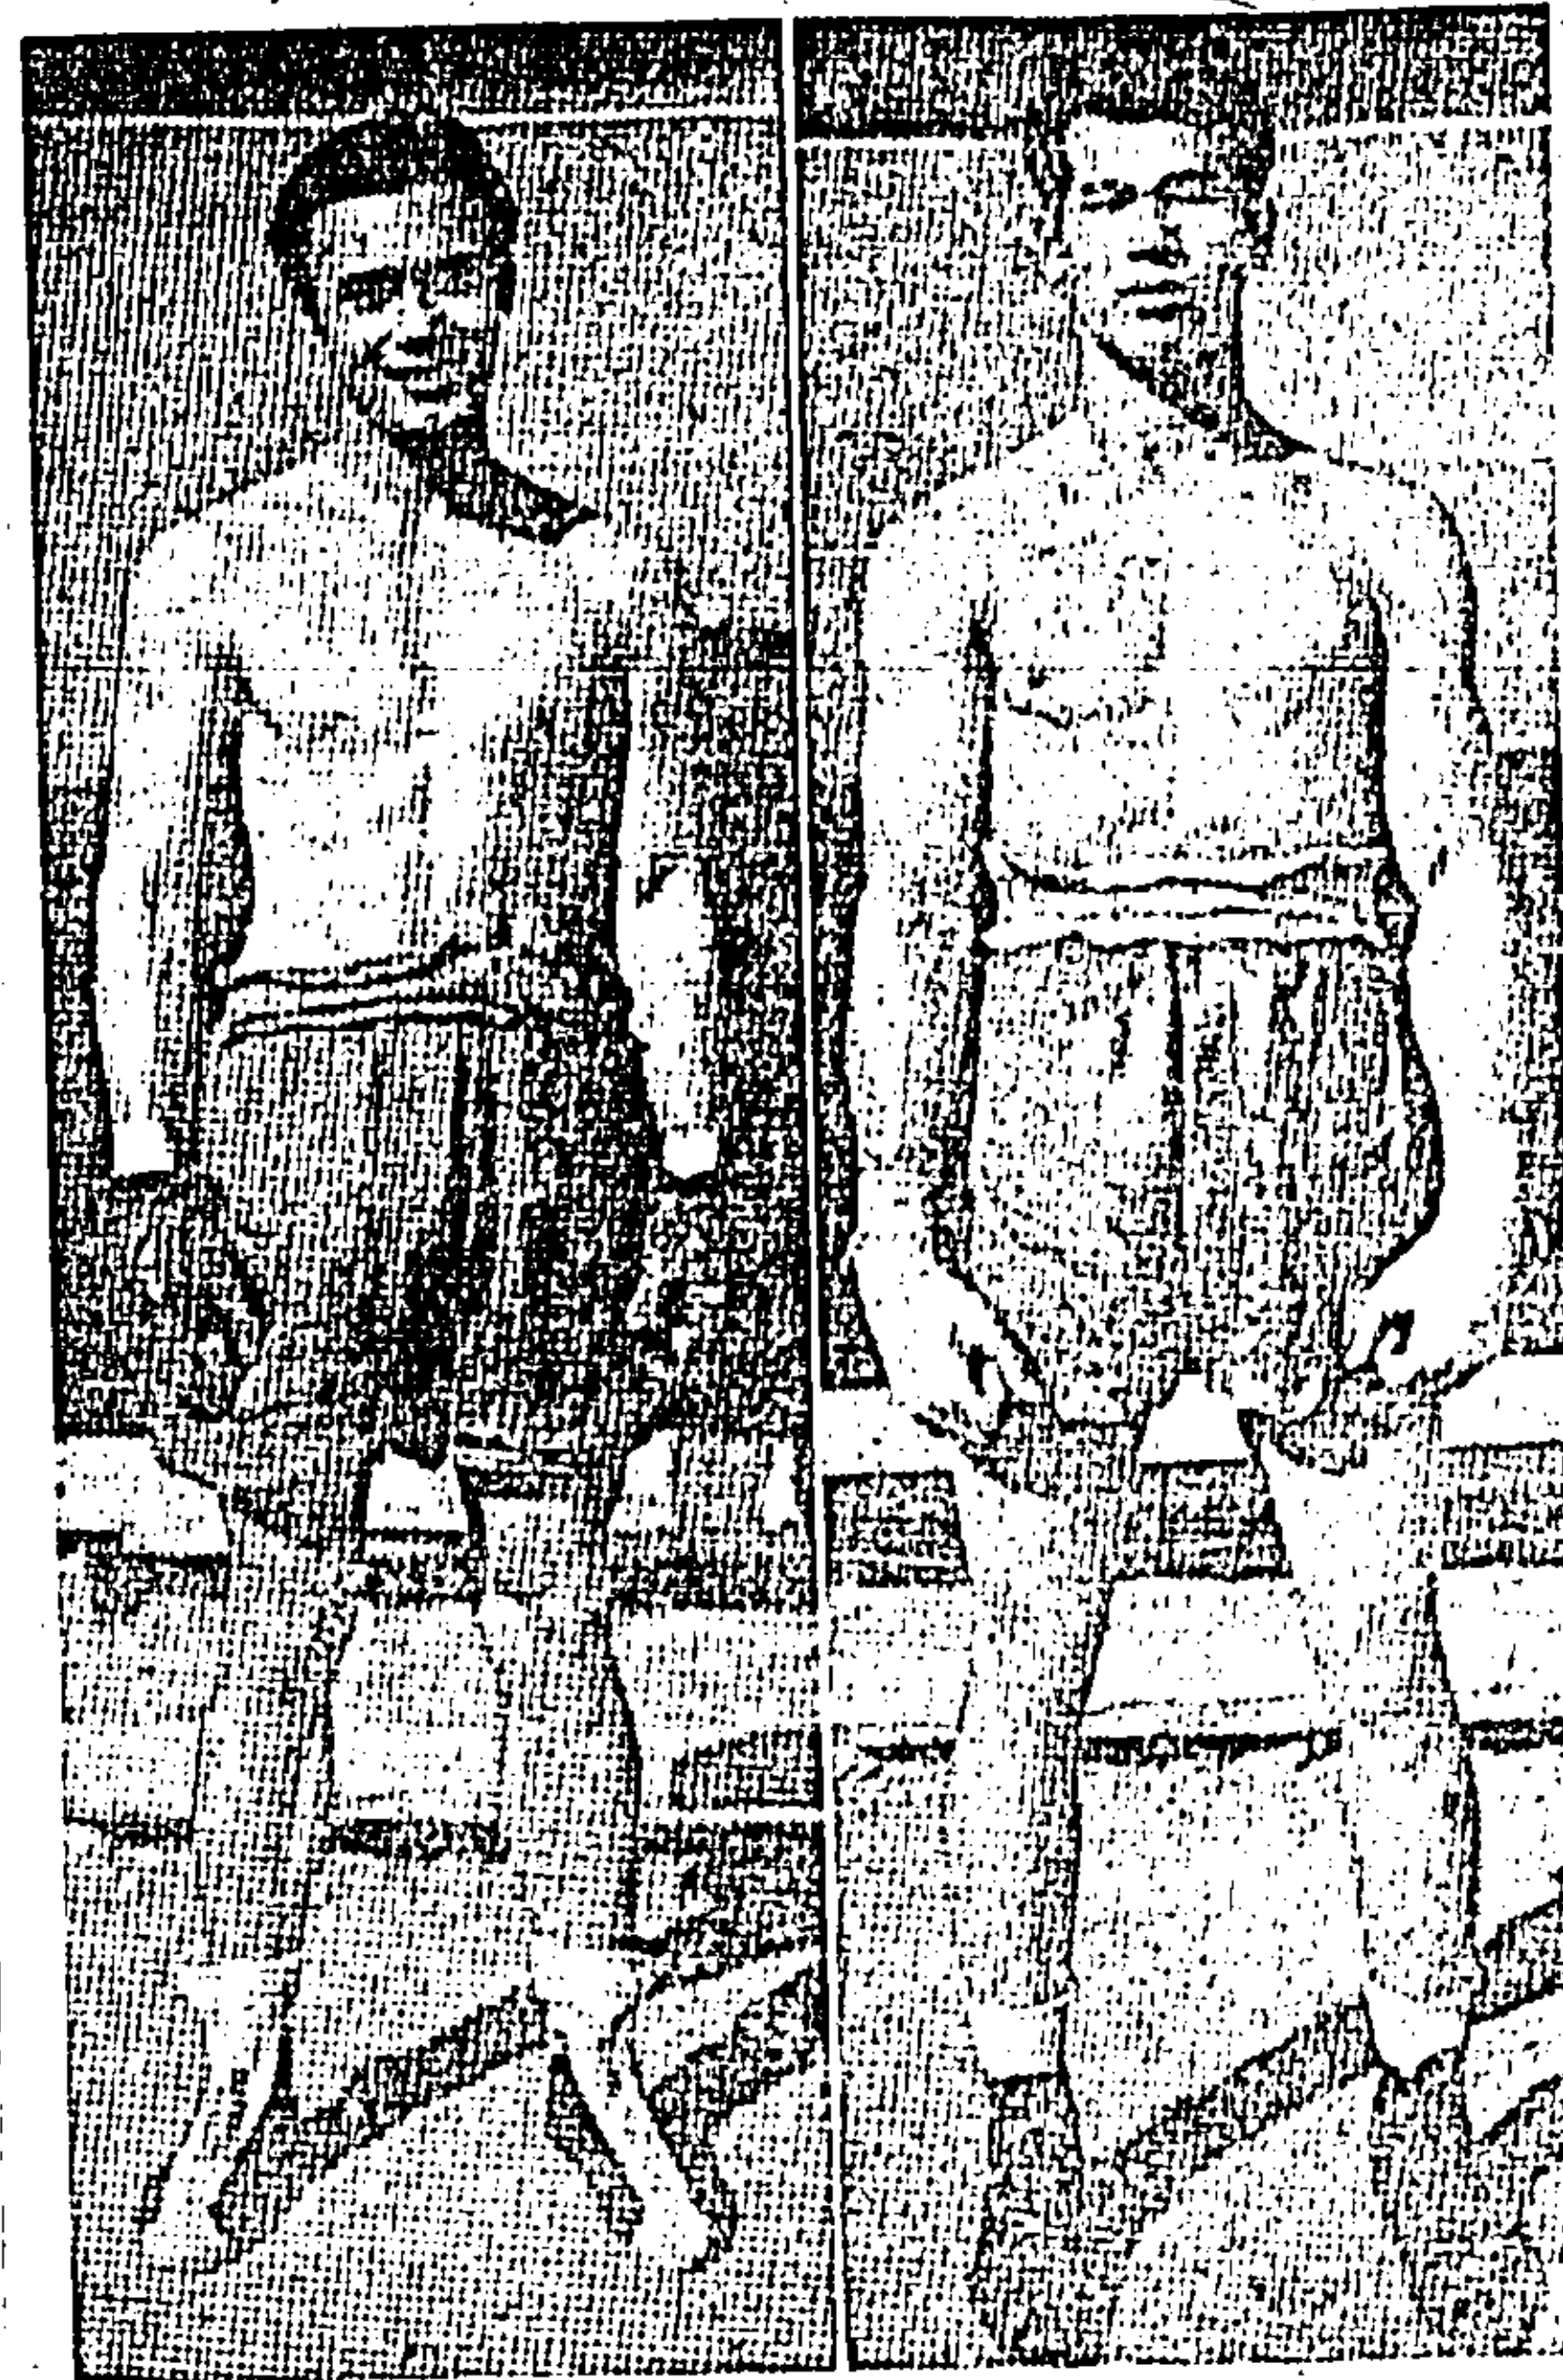

Glamorgan reports a disastrous season. Compared with last year the club's finances are down by £1,000, and the position is rapidly becoming critical.

Northamptonshire's loss to date is said to be £700. Sussex.—"We have lost about £400 on matches at Hove and Hoveham," the club secretary said.

Somerset's loss runs into hundreds of pounds. Rain interfered with every match the club has played this month.

Gloucestershire.—On only two days this season have matches not been interrupted by rain, causing "considerable financial loss." Kent.—Finances have suffered severely, but Canterbury Week, still to come, is one of the club's main sources of revenue. Essex.—As all this club's home matches take the form of county festivals, where numerous admission tickets are sold beforehand, its finances have not yet been seriously affected by rain. Surrey.—Gate receipts to date are approximately £2,000 down on normal expectations. Had weather at Blisley, it is estimated, has cost the National Rifle Association about £250.

More Discontent At The Olympics

British Boxers Resent Decision When Chinese Wins On A Foul

Berlin, Aug. 11. China to-day scored a success in the World Olympic boxing tournament, though in a somewhat unsatisfactory way. Ching Kui-ti, taking part in a first round middleweight contest received a decision over Shrimpton the Englishman, the latter being disqualified for hitting too soon after coming out of a clinch in the third round.

An earlier report stated that Shrimpton was disqualified because he hit too low during the third round, but this report was subsequently amended.—Reuter.

BRITISH BOXERS DISGUSTED Consider Decision Was Absurd

The British team was very dissatisfied with the result, says a Reuter despatch.

The fight opened with Ching Kui-ti flooring Shrimpton in the first few seconds, and then he shook the Briton with a right to the jaw.

Immediately the count was finished one of the judges protested that Shrimpton had hit the Chinese too soon from the clinch, whereupon the Englishman was disqualified.

The British team was disgusted with what they considered an absurd decision and wondered what they must do to win.

The British manager has lodged a protest against the decision.

Victories were scored by two Filipino boxers. Simplicio de Castro out-pointed Saneval of Luxembourg in a welterweight fight, while Jose Padilla, Jr., gained a verdict on points over Schmidt of Germany in the lightweight class.

Castro, 22 years of age, won the Philippines national welterweight championship last year and this year became the All-Student welterweight champion.

Padilla, two years older than his compatriot, was 1930 and 1934 Far Eastern lightweight champion and competed, without success, in the 1932 World Olympics at Los Angeles.—United Press.

BASKETBALL

Three basketball matches were played in the Olympics to-day. Poland beat Brazil by 33-25, Uruguay beat Czechoslovakia 28-10, and Canada swamped Switzerland 27-9.—United Press.

Miss Paget Buys Sister to Windsor Lad

Excitement ran high at the Newmarket sales last month, when the yearling sister to Windsor Lad came into the ring. In appearance the filly is difficult to fault, and it was clear from the first that she would run into big money. Mr. M. H. Paget, the owner of Windsor Lad, started the bidding at 4,000 guineas, and did not retire from the competition until she had reached the 10,000 guineas mark.

Mr. J. Shand, who had not made a move until interposing a bid of 9,000 guineas was left in rivalry with the representative of Miss Dorothy Paget, who secured her at 11,500 guineas.

The daughter of Blandford out of Resplendent seems certain to win good races, but in this direction, she will still be of great value for the paddocks.

Mr. D. Sullivan, vendor of Radiant, also submitted Scott's Glen, who was bought in France. Sir V. Sassoon gave 2,300 guineas for her. The bay filly by Birthright out of Lady Esmer went to Mr. G. Lambton at 700 guineas. Lady Esmer is the dam of Slingo.

Four yearlings from the Levensfield Stud fetched good prices. Mr. H. Cottrell paid 2,400 guineas for the colt by Caerleon out of Solopie (winner of two Irish "classics"). Mr. R. Adams bought the Cameronian-Shannon Jug filly for 940 guineas.

Mr. A. Barclay's yearlings included Una Breek, a filly by Cameronian out of Panna. She is a half-sister to Yeuve Cliequo, and realised 2,500 guineas to the bid of Lord Portal.

Yearlings comprised the catalogue at the evening session of the second and intermediate stages of the July Bloodstock Sales at Park Road, Newmarket. Mr. J. Colling, the Newmarket trainer, went to 640 guineas for Brackendale, a colt by Loamingdale out of Osmunda, sent up by the Heath Stud. Mrs. Evans secured the colt by Lophiel out of Miss Prim for 230 guineas.

The total for the day was 34,809 guineas.

LEAGUE TENNIS FINCHER BROTHERS REMAIN UNBEATEN

Yesterday's Matches

Chinese Recreation Club and Kowloon Cricket Club share first place in the "A" Division tennis league table as a result of yesterday's matches. Only two games were played, with C.R.C. (1) and K.C.C. maintaining 100 per cent. records.

Recreation are also undefeated, but have played one less game.

K.C.C. were without Bertie Guest, who was indisposed, and who, according to reports, may not be able to play again this season. However, Gray proved a useful deputy, and with Grose playing strongly, the pair succeeded in taking two sets from U.S.R.C.

The Fincher brothers retained their unbeaten record in consecutive style against the strong Goldmann-Sullivan combination.

The match was played on the U.S.R.C. courts, K.C.C. winning by six sets to three.

Chinese Recreation Club were never seriously extended by K.C.C., finally running out winners by 6-2 to 2-3 sets. Bathurst and Leys played well for the losers to snatch a set and a half, while Owen-Hughes and Sewell won the other set.

The new Lai Kwong-tsun-Tsui Yun-pui partnership was a comparative failure. They lost two out of three sets. But Hung and Luk-chuek were in excellent form, and noteworthy support was lent by Luk Ding-chung and Wong Shui-king.

Details of the two matches, and amended league table, follow.

Luk Ding-chung and Wong Shui-king (C.R.C.) beat A. W. Owen-Hughes and G. W. Sewell 6-0; beat T. A. Pearce and D. McDougall 6-1; drew with E. Bathurst and J. Leys 6-6.

Lai Kwong-tsun and Tsui Yun-pui lost to Owen-Hughes and Sewell 4-6; beat Pearce and McDougall 6-2; lost to Bathurst and Leys 5-7.

In Tak-chuek and W. C. Hung beat Owen-Hughes and Sewell 6-4; beat Pearce and McDougall 6-2; beat Bathurst and Leys 6-1.

K.C.C. v. UNITED SERVICE R.C.

The tie between the Kowloon Cricket Club and the United Service Recreation Club was played off yesterday on the U.S.R.C. courts, resulting in a win for the home team by six sets to three. The scores were as follows:

E. C. Fincher and E. F. Fincher (Kowloon C.C.) beat L. Goldman and A. L. Sullivan 6-3; beat Major Willington and Captain Milne 6-3; beat W. C. Commander Bishop and L. Ravenhill 6-1.

G. Bodiker and G. Clark (Kowloon C.C.) lost to Goldman and Sullivan 6-6; lost to Willington and Milne 3-6; beat Bishop and Ravenhill 7-5.

S. A. Gray and F. Grose (Kowloon C.C.) lost to Goldman and Sullivan 1-6; beat Willington and Milne 7-5; beat Bishop and Ravenhill 6-0.

Playing in "C" Division league tennis match yesterday on their own courts, Kowloon Cricket Club first string was beaten 7½ to 1½ by South China Athletic. Watson and Capell secured one set and J. S. Verity Wins Match For Yorkshire

Fine Batting By Paynter

London, Aug. 11.

Rain prevented play to-day in two county cricket matches, both Sussex and Essex being robbed of very good winning chances. Three of the other matches were left depending on a first innings result and only Yorkshire, who won by 42 runs, and Somerset, who beat Hampshire by nine wickets, had outright victories.

But there were some bright individual performances. Paynter, playing for Lancashire who lost to Nottingham on first innings, scored 84 out of his team's first innings total of 252 and then hit up 123 not out when he returned to the wicket.

Verity won the match for Yorkshire against Warwickshire. Yorkshire were in distinct danger of losing, Warwick needing 303 runs in their second innings. But Verity, bowling with great skill, sent back seven batsmen for 74 runs and Warwick lost by 42.

Bill Ashdown, who used to open the attack for Kent, but who, for the last two or three seasons has neglected his bowling for batting, suddenly sprang into form with the leather against Sussex and took 5 for 60, his best piece of bowling this season.

The detailed results and individual performances were cable by Reuter and were as under.

NOTTS "INCIDENT" CLOSED

Friendly Relations Unimpaired

The Sussex Committee has sent a letter to the Nottinghamshire Committee expressing the hope that the "incident" in the recent match at Hove would now be considered as closed. The Nottinghamshire captain, G. F. H. Henne, successfully appealed against rain and led his men off the field when Sussex needed only two runs for victory.

The letter to the Nottinghamshire Secretary, Mr. H. A. Brown, was as follows:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, which I laid before my Committee to-day. I am desired to say that they are glad to hear that the Committee of the Nottinghamshire County Cricket Club do not uphold the action of Mr. Henne.

In view of this assurance, my Committee consider that the incident should now be considered as closed and they hope that the friendly relations which have too long existed between our two counties may continue unimpaired.

Yours faithfully,
W. L. Knowles
(Secretary).

The Nottinghamshire Committee had previously expressed regret that their captain adopted such a course of action. At the same time they passed a vote of confidence in Mr. Henne.

HONGKONG SUCCESS

B. W. BRADBURY SKIPS RINK TO VICTORY IN "ESPLEN" CUP

Hongkong lawn bowlers will be pleased to learn that, following the example set last year, Hongkong has again won the "Esplen" Cup in the annual match against the Wanstead Bowling Club.

News to this effect was received in Hongkong yesterday. The match was played on July 29 at Wanstead and resulted in a victory for Hongkong by 24 shots to 18.

The Hongkong rink was a strong one, being composed of E. G. Poole (Police R.C.), V. Pedersen (Kowloon R.C.), G. Moss (Police R.C.) and B. W. Bradbury (Craigengower C.C.), skip.

Wanstead started very well by scoring ten shots on the first two heads, but Hongkong pulled up very well and finally had six shots to spare.

FIRST CRICKET WINS UNDER ONE-DAY RULE

Since Law Was Passed Two Years Ago

THE first counties to win ten points to their opponents' three for a one-day County Championship match are Gloucestershire and Northamptonshire. They succeeded yesterday against Warwickshire and Sussex respectively by winning on the first innings.

The rule awarding these points was passed over two years ago, but, although several counties have been involved in one-day matches since then, the prize had eluded them. Lancashire and Derbyshire also played under one-day rules, but Old Trafford weather, true to its reputation, ruined even this abbreviated match when a good finish looked possible.

Still Trying To Tempt Perry

HAZARDS OF ARRANGING PRO. TOURS

London, Aug. 1. Every year, within a few hours after he has won the Wimbledon men's singles tennis championship, Frederick J. Perry receives a cablegram from the American professional tennis promoter, William (Bill) O'Brien, offering him a fortune to forsake the amateur ranks and turn professional.

This year was no exception. O'Brien cabled an offer of £2,000 and a four-month tour of the United States to commence on January 1, 1937. Perry has not so far committed himself, beyond admitting that such an offer has been received.

This offer is particularly interesting this year, in view of a story carried in the New York Herald Tribune, in which O'Brien reveals that professional tennis in America is in a critical state. The offer to Perry is rather like the last desperate grab by a drowning man at a straw. Perry, in this case the straw, could, it seems, save O'Brien's tennis professionals from sinking into oblivion.

LOSING PUBLIC FAVOUR

The reason for this state of affairs appears to be that the American public has all but lost interest in "pro" tennis, and "gate" receipts are extremely meagre.

In his story to the Herald Tribune, O'Brien reveals that after the last five months tour he was "out £140 of his own money because of having to pay the salaries of his players out of his own pocket on account of insufficient box office receipts. He said that on one evening alone the receipts amounted to only 77 dollars (about £15).

The harassed promoters, who two or three years ago put professional tennis on the map with a loud bang, is so discouraged that he is going to interest himself in baseball promotion in Pennsylvania through this summer, and then may take up boxing promoting in the Autumn.

"TENNIS TEMPERAMENT"

O'Brien told of the worry and trouble he had gone through on account of the work entailed in making all the arrangements for his players' appearances in each town in which they performed. No only that, but O'Brien had to contend with what he calls the "tennis temperament." He said: "I had to 'babysit' eight very ink. Aspies of tennis 'temperament' every day and night of the five months we were on the road. Talk about opera singers and prima donnas! The tennis players can teach 'em a lot, I'm telling you."

The promoter said that he and William Tilden split up last March in Los Angeles. He had an altercation on the telephone with one of the latest acquisitions to the ten-

PLEASED WITH WHITE

Praise For Filipino Olympic Star

Writing in a recent issue of the Manila Bulletin, Ralph Hawkins, prominent sports commentator has the following to say about the performances of Miguel White, Filipino flash, at the Berlin Olympics.

This sector was just a wee bit disappointed that Miguel White did not come in second in the 400-metre hurdles in Berlin, but third place, we concede, is not to be sneezed at when the competitors are the world's fastest and most durable. We were hoping that Glen Hardin would stumble or something and by just some such chance White would come romping home ahead of the timber tappers. Our next hope, and one we banked on pretty much, was that White would finish a close second to the American world record holder in a record-breaking race.

But even as it was Miguel White, the quiet, brown-headed obstacle runner from the Philippines, lived up to all expectations of local fans. In fact he did better than many would have given him credit for. Although he finished third his time was two-tenths of a second better than he had ever run before. He was clocked in the Olympic finals at 52.8. His best mark in these parts was 53 seconds. It only goes to show what the local boy can do when given the right kind of competition.

White is the second Filipino athlete to finish third in a World Olympic track and field competition. In 1932, at Los Angeles, Simon Torbilo tied for first place in the high jump at 6 ft. 5 1/2 inches with three other jumpers, including Cornelius Johnson, this year's winner. In the jump-off Torbilo, third, beating out Johnson who was just beginning his leaping career. Guess it's age that got next to Torbilo. In Berlin he qualified for the finals but failed to clear the bar at 6 ft. 1 in. in the finals.

His groups—Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold—who objected to his attempts to obtain publicity for her.

"If only I could get Fred Perry. Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs, Baron von Cramm and Donald Budge I could pack the hulls for one tour," O'Brien said in conclusion, "but I can't, so I'm laying off tennis for the time being."

"I don't want any more of those £140 loss trips," the O'Briens raised thirteen children, and I hope none of them will ever be that dumb,"—Reuter.

LAWN BOWLS

INDIFFERENT PLAY

Indifferent bowls was witnessed in the semi-final Open Pairs championship match between S. A. Bright and J. E. Henson against J. E. Noronha and F. X. M. da Silva on the Kowloon Cricket Club green yesterday, the latter winning by 24 shots to 15. They will meet R. Duncan and S. Randle in the final.

Play on the first fourteen heads was even, with each side in turn taking the lead. The Kowloon-Bowling Green Club pair started off with a three, only to see the Portuguese pair score a single and a four on the next two heads to take the lead. They maintained this lead for the next two heads, but on the eighth head, the Bowling Green Club pair chalked up a three to lead again with eight shots to seven. The scores were levelled on two of the next four heads, but on the 13th head, the Bowling Green Club pair were leading by 13 shots to ten, and by 14 shots to 12 on the 15th head. They lost the lead on the next head when their opponents scored a four, and from then on they were pegged down to a single shot on the last head, while the Portuguese pair added eight more shots.

The bowls was not of a high standard, although both Silva and Henson were responsible for some good woods. On the ninth head, the Portuguese pair were lying four shots, when Henson drew the shot with his last wood, and on the 12th head, although lying one shot, Silva touched the Jack, moving it away to give his opponents three shots. Silva was applauded for some good work on the 18th head, when Henson, apparently rattled by the position of the woods, rolled some bad woods.

Noronha and Bright did not show up too well, but the former was the more consistent, though inclined to be very short on occasions. The match was umpired by Mr. H. Overy.

"B" Company Wins R.W.F. Race

Ideal weather conditions favoured the 440 Yards Inter-Company Swimming Relay of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, held at the Bamboo Pier at Sharncliffe yesterday.

Five Companies entered the competition, which was won by a team from the "B" Company, with the "D" Company second.

The start saw the "D" men leading strongly, but the determined swimming of Lance-Corporal Roberts took the "B" Company to victory. He finished fully five yards ahead of Fusilier Owens of the "D" Company, who was leading at the beginning.

PROMISING SWIMMER

Another youngster is showing the proficiency in swimming which is usual in Shanghai boys when they go home to school, says the N. C. D. News. Dick Bartley, aged 14 (the son of H. S. Bartley, S.M.C. Education Dept.) who is now at Highgate School, recently represented his school in swimming matches against Harrow and Felstead, Highgate winning both matches. What is the good of a "Single" Whisky?

"A 'single' whisky has double meaning," said Johnnie Walker. "When we in Scotland talk about 'single' whiskies we mean the many separate whiskies which are blended together to make Johnnie Walker. No two 'single' whiskies are exactly alike; it is the art of the blender to retain the finest characteristics of each so that perfect harmony is achieved. In fact, harmonious blending, like harmonious marriage, is largely a matter of give and take. And the moral is, when giving or taking whisky, ask for Johnnie Walker by name."

HERBERT MORRISON

SIR WALTER CITRINE'S
"I Search for Truth in Russia" (Routledge, 10s.
6d.), will have a varied
reception.

Reactionary propagandists
will pick and choose extracts
from the volume with a view to proving that Communist Russia
is the world's greatest failure.
Those Communists whose opinions are determined by preconceived views on policy rather than by fact will "go up in the air." They will denounce the book as a libel on Soviet Russia
and as "an insult to the heroic struggle of the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union
for economic emancipation and
advancement."

Both will be wrong. They will be wrong because they have become accustomed to the idea
that all books about Russia are propagandist books.

ON this his second visit to the Soviet Union after
a break of ten years, Sir Walter Citrine has not been concerned with propaganda. He went to Russia to see what was to be seen; he went as a seeker for the truth.

Day by day he recorded in a note
book (Citrine is a shorthand writer) things he saw, facts that were given to him by witnesses,
sometimes after examination or
even cross-examination, and the principal points of conversation he had with all kinds of people during his long journey.

He read through masses of decrees, annual reports and statistical returns. He came to conclusions and recorded them in his diary, and here, in this book, the diary is printed.

The mind of Sir Walter Citrine is one of the most honest, analytical and objective minds in the British Labour Movement.
That is why he is so hated by the Communists. For the man who will not cringe to them is black-listed
and made the subject of abusive attack and interruption at public meetings.

I do not always agree with Citrine's mind and conclusions. He is very British, and when in Russia

he perhaps finds it a little more difficult to "be a Russian" than I do.

He makes generous allowance for the great difference between Russia and Britain, but perhaps not quite enough for the differing economic, political and social conditions, and for the very different customs and racial or national traditions.

The Bolshevik lack of understanding of these differences is infinitely more serious; they hardly understand them at all.

Yet the real approach is on the basis that these differences are real; that they are going to last for a long time, maybe for centuries.

And, after all, these differences
of national temperament and
tradition are not without their
charm. They go to make up the interest of this varied world.

Throughout the diary appears to be the result of that honest
and courageous mental outlook
characteristic of the British T.U.C.
Secretary.

He is concerned with the truth
as he sees it, and he cares not in writing this fascinating and interesting record whether he pleases
or displeases. And, to be of value,
it is in that spirit that the diary
of the scientific observer should be written.

What, broadly, are his conclusions?

They are these. That the economic and social effects of Soviet effort constitute one of the most important worth-while social adventures in the history of mankind; that management is not yet
at a high state of efficiency, and that the industrial workers are driven at a pretty fast pace, despite the fact that until recent years they were not extensively accustomed to the rush of modern industrialism.

HOUSING, building work and capital equipment are very imperfect, the impressions continue, but there may be, in part at any rate, understandable reasons for this at the present juncture.

That in many respects definite and important improvements have taken place in the last 10 years, and the social and economic condition of the people, particularly the children, has advanced and is facts, sometimes by gentle questioning, sometimes by almost brutal cross-examination, runs through these pages.

Citrine was treated very well. He was shown every consideration, in accordance with the delightful hospitality of the Russians. It made no difference.

He had gone to seek the truth, and, please or offend, it was the truth he was determined to get.

Yet I am quite certain that at the end of his visit the Bolsheviks had infinitely more respect for him than for many of the tourists who go to Russia wanting only to begotten themselves.

He met Tomsky, the former leader of the Russian trade unions, now engaged in the State Publications Department. At the end of an argument—

Tomsky disputed most of this with all his old fire and fury. We left him and Bron after a long conversation, and he concluded by saying almost sorrowfully, "You remain the same clever, courageous but stubborn fellow you always were."

"Stupid," I cried. "Stubborn.
He calls me stubborn. Talk about the pot calling the kettle black!"

I added that I was hard to convince, but once I had been convinced, my convictions lasted long.

Two other distinguished British advancing; although the progress has been checked by the vast increase in expenditure on the armed forces.

That, nevertheless, the economic condition of the Russian workers is definitely inferior to that of our country and of most of the Western countries; and finally, that the political dictatorship is irksome, tyrannical and injurious to intellectual freedom and the speed
of economic advancement.

No simple tourist swallowing
everything at its face value was
this distinguished British trade
unionist.

He had taken pains to get as much as he could into his head
about Russia before he went. He used his knowledge and his wits
while he was there.

Here's one way motor-car and trains will enter San Francisco after November 12, when the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge is completed. Costing over 77 million dollars and over eight miles long, it is the world's largest span, built by the state under the California Toll Bridge Authority. Photo from one of the gigantic towers shows the upper deck, being paved, and in the distance, the San Francisco waterfront and downtown business section. The upper deck will carry six lanes of motor-car; the lower, three truck lanes and two interurban train tracks.

A small transportable motor for agricultural purposes has been constructed in Germany. The motor is light enough to be carried on the back, together with its steel tube stand.

Widening Appeal For Neutrality

UNITED STATES JOINS EUROPEAN MOVEMENT

London, Aug. 11.
It is learned here that the French appeal for non-intervention in the Spanish civil war has been extended to include all important industrial countries of Europe, as well as the United States.

The British views regarding the Portuguese reservations, outlined yesterday, have been communicated to the Portuguese Government. Portugal desires to have some reassurance from Great Britain and France that her integrity will be respected, and defended by these powers if necessary, since the Government at Lisbon feels apprehension lest a Communist state's proximity should lead to disorders within its own borders.

The British reply, while recalling the Cranborne Declaration of March 16, reaffirming the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty of Alliance, reserves the right to decide the circumstances in which the treaty obligations can be invoked. Great Britain's obligations under the League of Nations Covenant to defend Portuguese territorial integrity, are also recalled in the British reply.—Reuter.

Arms Ban Enforced

London, Aug. 11.
In anticipation of the general adherence to the Spanish neutrality pact, both Holland and Sweden have banned the export of arms to Spain.—Reuter.

U.S. Keeping Clear

The possibility of the United States adhering to the Spanish neutrality pact is considered remote in the extreme here. Authoritative circles hold to the opinion that the necessity for the Senate's ratification would prevent adherence while Congress is not in session.

Moral persuasion is considered the only means by which the Administration can seek to enforce strict American neutrality.—Reuter.

Informal Neutrality

Washington, Aug. 11.
The United States, through the State Department, has informally declared its neutrality in Spain through a circular telegram to all diplomatic representatives in Spain.

The telegram states: "In conformity with a well-established policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries, this Government will, of course, scrupulously refrain from any interference whatsoever in the unfortunate Spanish situation."

It is also revealed that the State Department has issued instructions discouraging American companies from supplying planes to either side.—United Press.

NOT POPULAR WITH NAZIS

Mr. Sean Lester, High Commissioner in Danzig, whose removal was recently urged by Nazi leaders.

Fliers Sentenced

Uria, Aug. 11.
The Correction Court of French Morocco has sentenced the Italian airmen who landed at Saida on July 30, to a month's imprisonment and a fine of 200 francs.

They were found guilty of transporting arms and war material on a plane carrying no identification marks. The sentence carries the benefit of the First Offender's Act. The court ordered arms and aeroplanes to be confiscated.—Reuter.

Farnsworth Indicted On New Charge

JAPANESE NAMED AS CONSPIRATORS

Washington, Aug. 11.
The Grand Jury has indicted the former United States naval officer, John Farnsworth, on a new charge to-day, that of attempting to sell naval secrets to Japan.

The indictment said that the Japanese officers, Commander Yoshioka Itimya and Lieut.-Commander Okura Yamaki had conspired with Farnsworth in efforts to transmit information to the Japanese Government. However, the Japanese are not indicted. It is understood both left the United States about a month ago.

The indictment alleges the conspiracy started in January, 1933, and involved the sale of code books, sketches, signals, photographs, blueprints, maps and models. The end of the association of the Japanese officers with Farnsworth came on July 13, 1936.—United Press.

AIRSHIP MAKES FAST TIME

RECORD FOR OCEAN CROSSING

Berlin, Aug. 11.
Averaging ninety knots over 2,800 sea miles, the airship Marshall von Hindenburg made a record journey from Lakehurst, New Jersey, to South Ireland.

It is expected that when the giant Zeppelin reaches Frankfurt, she will clip the last record of 45 hours and 39 minutes by over two hours.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

BANKER FAILS IN APPEAL

SHANGHAI COURT DECISION

Shanghai, Aug. 12.
The High Court has refused the appeal of Julius Kieffel, former manager of the American Oriental Bank, and has affirmed the lower court's sentence of six months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 for breach of confidence in connection with the safe keeping of accounts. Kieffel was not present in Court. He is, however, expected to appeal to the highest Court in Nanking.—United Press.

Casbury's ICED BOURN-VITA

Summer diets are frequently too light to supply the energy needed for carrying out the daily routine. Iced Bourn-vita taken regularly is not only a delicious, refreshing beverage; but it is nourishing and stimulating and makes up this deficiency in the diet. Ordinary refreshing drinks so frequently have no food or tonic value.

Bourn-vita is rich in valuable mineral salts, phosphates, iron, etc. which are invaluable to the dweller in hot climates. You need a supply of these mineral salts particularly in the summer months when the body is being deprived of these by excessive perspiration.

Bourn-vita is not too rich for use on the hottest summer day, as the fat content is kept low so that no feeling of heaviness is experienced after its consumption. Its high, readily assimilable carbohydrate content makes the drink light and readily digestible, at the same time a ready source of energy.

The phosphorus contained in Bourn-vita in the form of phosphates and lecithin is a valuable tonic food for jaded nerves.
